TYPHOON SWEEPS HONGKONG HARBOR; 12 STEAMERS LOST

American Ship S. P. Hitchcock Among the Craft Driven Ashore by Terrific Storm Which Struck Without Warning, Sending a Wall of Water Into the City.

CREWS BATTLING WITH SEA PERISH NEAR LAND

Storm Rages for Two Hours, Strewing the Wreckage Along Water Front and Leveling Buildings in the City—Mobs Flee Through the Streets, Seeking Refuge.

By Associated Press.

HONGKONG, Sept. 18.—Twelve steamers were sent to the bottom of the bay or were wrecked ashore by a typhoon which swept Hongkong harbor this morning and raged for two hours, destroying shipping, flooding the water front and leveling buildings in the city. The American steamship S. P. Hitchcock is among the vessels driven ashore.

The storm, which began at 10 o'clock, swept down on the port without warning. Water was sucked up by the big twister and hurled into the city. Streets were flooded. The inhabitants were panic-stricken.

Out on the bay crews were battling with the storm. Mountain waves submerged the ships. The crews had no time to launch lifeboats. Bodies were washed to the shore, which was lashed with foam. Wreckage was strewn over the bay.

For more than an hour it was feared that the city was doomed. Houses were unroofed and buildings blown down. Terror-stricken crowds rushed through the streets seeking places of safety from the storm.

The damage cannot be estimated. The loss of life, it is feared, was heavy.

HONGKONG A BRITISH CITY; MANY AMERICAN RESIDENTS

Hongkong ("red harbor"), or Hiang-Kang ("the fragrant or flowing stream"), is an island belonging to the British off the southeast coast of China at the mouth of the estuary that leads to Canton. It is about 10 miles long and 7½ miles wide.

Victoria, the capital, commonly called Hongkong, is situated on the north side of the magnificent bay of the same name.

Hongkong is a great center of foreign trade for China and a mart for opium and flour, mercury, ivory, betel, cotton, amber, oil, petroleum, woolens, silks, salt, tea, sugar, etc., and has manufactures of sugar, rum, ice and vermillion. It has a mint for trade dollars.

Hongkong was ceded to Great Britain by the treaty of Canton in 1841 and again by the treaty of Nanking in 1842. Since then many wealthy Chinese merchants have established branch houses there, and charter British ships to carry goods to the northern ports.

The government of the colony is vested in a governor, secretary, commandant, chief justice, attorney-general and legislative council. It is the See of an Anglican Bishop. The population in 1901 was 263,905.

There are many Americans resident in Hongkong and it is visited annually by a large number of American tourists.

FLOOD MENACES TOWN IN KANSAS

The Lower Portion of Kingman Is Threatened — Railway Bridges Washed Away.

KINGMAN, Kan., Sept. 18.—The heaviest rains in 25 years fell in this part of the State last night and continued today.

At Kingman the lowlands are flooded and the lower part of the town is threatened. The Ninescah River is out of its banks for miles.

Bridges on the Wichita & Western branch of the Santa Fe Railroad, between Wichita and Pratt, are out. The State fish hatchery near Pratt and croppy hatchery near Turon, in Reno county, are reported washed out.

KIDNAPERS OUTWITTED.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 18.—Determined that he would not be kidnaped at his own wedding, Chief of Police J. W. Jones of this city slipped out of the house at Mitchellville last evening, where he had been married to Miss Millie Zeus, borrowed a complete outfit of woman's clothing and took a train for Omaha, while policemen who were his guests searched the town to see what had become of him.

The bride knew the program and hugely enjoyed the discomfiture of the would-be kidnapers.

The search was continued until nearly midnight, when a telegram was received from Chief Jones, then in Omaha, requesting that his bride be forwarded by the next train.

The kidnapers, thoroughly enjoying the way they had been outwitted, escorted the bride to the train, where she was able to join her husband in Omaha for the honeymoon through the West.

BANKERS CONFIRM THE B. & O. MERGER

Harriman's Acquisition Will Give Union Pacific Transcontinental System.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A representative of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. said today that the report that they have sold the Union Pacific Railroad Co. the stock of the Baltimore & Ohio road, which that firm purchased from the Pennsylvania Railroad, is premature.

Negotiations for the sale are under way, but not completed, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announce.

The announcement of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is the first official statement in confirmation of rumors current in Wall street for some time to the effect that E. H. Harriman was seeking a large interest in Baltimore & Ohio.

With their large holdings in Chicago & Alton, and the control of Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, the acquisition of Baltimore & Ohio would give the Harriman interests control of a railroad line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mr. Harriman and his associates also would have a voice in the affairs of Reading, a large block of that company's stock being held in the Baltimore & Ohio treasury.

HOTEL CLERK FINED $50.

John D. Barnard, clerk of the Hygeia Hotel, Twentieth and Morgan streets, was fined $50 by Judge Kielber in the Wyoming Street Police Court Tuesday for conducting a disorderly house.

On the night of Sept. 4 Patrolmen William Lawler and Patrick Lardner obtained rooms from Barnard. The same woman was used by both policemen to get evidence. Barnard appealed to the Court of Criminal Correction.

RITTER, BOODLE AGENT, WITNESS IN SNYDER CASE

Says Majority of the Members of 1898 House Got Share of Money.

UTHOFF DOESN'T APPEAR

Ritter Declares Effort Has Been Made to Silence the Witnesses.

It developed Tuesday that W. H. Ritter, former member of the House of Delegates, who was at one time a butcher with a shop on Olive street, has volunteered to come to St. Louis and testify that he received $75,000 from Robert M. Snyder in 1898 and divided it among the members of the House combine who voted for the Central Traction bill.

Ritter wrote the letter from Denver. Circuit Attorney Sager and Gov. Folk had a conference relative to Ritter in Jefferson City Monday and telegraphed him to come immediately to St. Louis. It is expected that he will be here to testify at the trial.

Ritter suddenly left St. Louis when the boodle inquiry began and his whereabouts had remained a mystery until he voluntarily wrote to Gov. Folk announcing his willingness to testify against Snyder.

In his letter to the Governor he also stated that there was a conspiracy to prevent the principal witnesses against Snyder from appearing against him. It is supposed that he referred to Frederick G. Uthoff, now living in Denver, a former member of the Council combine, who was the principal witness against Snyder when he was tried here four years ago.

Ritter's connection with the Central Traction scheme has been known to Gov. Folk since early in the boodle inquiry, but the State was never able to get the direct testimony which he says he will recite at the trial of Snyder.

Trial Passed Down.

The trial, which was set for hearing in Judge Reynold's division of the Circuit Court at 10 a. m. Tuesday, was passed down on the docket until 2 p. m., to give Circuit Attorney Sager an opportunity to ascertain definitely whether Frederick G. Uthoff, a former member of the St. Louis City Council, now living in Denver, will appear as the State's prosecuting witness against the defendant.

Sager has been in communication with Uthoff for weeks, endeavoring to secure his appearance against Snyder. Last week the Circuit Attorney telegraphed him $100 to defray his expenses to St. Louis. When the case was called Sager announced that he had not heard from his star witness, and was uncertain as to whether he will be here for the trial.

Snyder appeared in good cheer with his attorneys and announced ready for trial. He is represented by H. S. Priest, Fred Lehmann and Morton Jourdan of St. Louis and Senator William A. Warner of Kansas City. These attorneys represented him at his former trial.

"I desire to have the case passed until 2 p. m.," said Circuit Attorney Sager, when Judge Reynolds announced that he was ready to proceed. "I shall then be able to make a definite announcement to the court as to whether the State is ready."

"The defendant is ready," said Attorney Jourdan, "and we do not want to lose our place on the docket."

"There is no danger of that," said Judge Reynolds. "This case is set for today and the court holds itself in readiness to try it."

Snyder was in the courtroom for a few minutes only. He came in with his attorneys, and took a seat among other defendants within the railing. When the Court announced that Circuit Attorney Sager's request for time had been granted, he left the court with his lawyers. He refused to make any statement concerning his expectations in the case.

"Uthoff, without whose testimony the State cannot prosecute the case, has promised me many times that he would come to St. Louis and testify against Snyder," said Circuit Attorney Sager to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I heard from him regularly until something more than a week ago, when he ceased answering my letters and telegrams. I am now in the dark as to his intentions. I telegraphed him $100 to defray his expenses. The last time I heard from him he said he would come only on the condition that I call certain other witnesses to corroborate him. As Uthoff himself is not within the jurisdiction of the Court, and as it is impossible for the State to obtain the witnesses he suggested, I have no power to compel his attendance.

"If Uthoff is not here by 2 o'clock I shall ask for another principal continuance."

Uthoff is the State's witness. He was a member of the City Council when Snyder promoted the Central Traction deal in 1898, and it was his vote that passed the franchise bill over the veto of Mayor Ziegenhein. Uthoff testified at the former trial of the case that he received a package from Snyder containing $50,000. He had previously returned $25,000 to a promoter who opposed the bill. He demanded $100,000 for his vote, and said he expected to get that sum from Snyder. He, therefore, returned the $50,000, and in the meantime cast his vote for the bill, expecting, he said, that Snyder would make good his promise and pay him the $100,000.

After the passage of the bill Snyder returned to New York. Uthoff followed him and demanded the $100,000. He testified that all he got was $5000 and a bill of good character. In this testimonial to the character of Uthoff, given him by Snyder, and introduced as evidence in the former trial, appeared the remarkable statement that no bribe money had passed between the two men, and that Uthoff considered Snyder as far above offering a bribe as he (Uthoff) would be of accepting one.

Snyder was indited by the St. Louis grand jury, then working under the direction of Joseph W. Folk, now Governor, April 5, 1902. It was charged that on March 22, 1898, he had bribed Uthoff and other members of the St. Louis City Council to pass the Central Traction bill, granting extensive street railway franchises in North and South St. Louis. He was tried before Judge O'Neil Ryan of the Circuit Court and was convicted Oct. 4, 1902, and his punishment fixed by the jury at five years in the Penitentiary.

Snyder took an appeal to the Supreme Court and that tribunal reversed and remanded the case June 14, 1904.

The theory of the prosecution was that although the offense with which Snyder was charged was committed more than four years prior to the finding of the indictment, the defendant's usual place of residence for more than a year during the interim had been in New York, which stopped the running of the statute of limitations during his absence from the State.

The defense offered no testimony in rebuttal of the bribery charge. Snyder's attorneys relied solely upon the statute of limitations as a defense.

It was during Judge H. S. Priest's speech to the jury in defense of Snyder that he made the statement that "bribery is merely a conventional crime," a remark that has since become famous in boodle literature.

Snyder is reputed to have made more than $1,000,000 on the Central Traction franchise. It developed at the former trial that its passage by the Municipal Assembly cost him about $250,000 in bribes, and that he sold the franchise for $1,250,000. Snyder is now a farmer in Kansas City. At the time he promoted the Central Traction deal he claimed New York as his residence, but he contended during his trial that he had maintained a home in Kansas City ever since he first appeared in St. Louis as a franchise promoter.

HARBORED GIRLS, FINED.

Judge Tracy, in the City Hall Police Court, Tuesday, denounced Frank E. Anderson of 734 South Seventh street, whom he fined $300 for harboring two girls, both under 16 years of age. Among other things, he said:

"Th's is the lowest and most vile-ous character that I have ever tried in my long career on the bench."

He deplored the fact that he could not impose a heavier sentence. It was testified that Anderson had been keeping the two girls in his home the past two weeks.

WITTE ACCUSED OF POISONING TREPOFF

Former Premier of Russia Charged by Jews and Reactionaries With Assassinating Dictator Who Passed Away in Czar's Palace, a Fugitive From Bombthrowers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 18.—The Russian Banner, the chief reactionary organ, accuses Count Witte, former Premier and Russia's foremost statesman, with poisoning the tyrant, Trepoff, the "real Czar of Russia," who died in the Czar's palace Saturday evening.

The Jews here also are trying to prove that Trepoff's death was accomplished by an assassin, and are linking Witte's name with the case.

Count Witte and Trepoff clashed last winter when the question of granting legislative rights to the peasants came up. To Trepoff Witte owes his practical banishment from the palace. The frowns of Nicholas were turned on the former Premier after Trepoff, backed by the rabid reactionists, insisted upon his downfall.

During the ceremonies at the granting of amnesty Witte was alone, unattended, ostracized by court officials and sneered at by royalty and peasants alike.

The Banner intimates that Trepoff was killed by Witte or at his instigation and gives revenge as the cause.

The accusation comes as the result of the newspaper's endeavor to ascertain the cause of Trepoff's death, as it was not content with the statement that the former Governor-General of St. Petersburg died from heart disease caused by fear, although it is generally conceded that he spent his last days in an agony of remorse and terror.

6 PASSENGERS THE ONLY SURVIVORS OF CRASH AT DAYLIGHT

Weakened by Terrific Rains, Structure Over the Cimarron River Gives Way Beneath Train's Weight, and Crowded Coaches Plunge Into Water and Quicksand.

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 18.—A telephone message from Hennessey, Okla., eight miles from Dover, where Rock Island passenger train No. 12 plunged from a bridge into the swollen Cimarron River at 5 o'clock this morning, states that all the cars, excepting the rear Pullman, and 225 persons were carried into the water.

Only six of this number are reported saved.

The wires were carried down with the bridge as the result of last night's storms, the heaviest the Southwest has known in years, and details are meager.

Weakened by the storms and the sharp current of the Cimarron, a narrow and treacherous stream because of shifting quicksands, the bridge gave way under the weight of the train.

COMPOSITION OF THE TRAIN.

The train consisted of a baggage, mail car, coach and smoker, two Pullmans, a chair car and day coach.

The engineer, fireman, express messenger and postal clerk are said to have escaped from th river.

The railway officials here are unable to state how many passengers were in the doomed coaches or whether any escaped. The brief message received here was from the conductor in charge of the tain. The names of the train crew in charge are unwnokn.

Relief trains had been sent from Herrington and Caldwell, Kan., and probably also from points south of the wreck.

A number of dead bodies have been taken to the morgue at Kingfisher.

A number of Kingfisher people, known to have been on the train, have not been found.

KENTUCKY YOUTH ADMITS MURDER

Killed Companion With Iron Bar, Secured His Money—Sentenced for Life.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PADUCAH, Ky., Sept. 18.—Jas. Franklyn Graham, 19 years old, this morning pleaded guilty to murdering Claude Bass, a companion in an open field at Terrell and Sixth streets on the outskirts of the city on the night of Aug. 21, and robbing him of nearly $50.

The two were drinking and Graham knew Bass had money. He first tried to entice him into a skiff, but could get none. He toow an iron bar and beat Bass' brains out. Bass was unidentified for three days.

Graham returned to the scene of his crime and was caught. At first he pleaded self-defense, but today when brought into court pleaded guilty.

He got a life sentence on recommendation of the Commonwealth Attorney. Bass was a railroad man of Grayville, Ill., and Graham a laborer without a knowledge of reading and writing. The trial consumed five minutes.

PONY AND WAGON CRASH.

Boy Is Thrown From Animal to Vehicle's Seat.

A small boy, whose name, he says, is Jimmie, had an experience Monday evening that he will probably remember until his dying day. Jimmie, who is employed as a runner for the Keyes-Marshall Livery Co., is the proud possessor of a rather spirited little pony and they both take to and from the stables the horses and vehicles which are ordered.

Monday evening Jimmie had just left a horse and buggy in front of a house at Newstead avenue and Morgan street and, tired of his daily labors, which were almost done, he started on a gallop down Morgan street. All went well until Jimmie reached Pendleton avenue, when his pony collided with the grocery wagon of D. L. Hotton.

The wagon was going west on the east side of the street. Jimmie evidently thought that the pony and grocery wagon could pass in the space, for he kept straight on his way. The grocery wagon made a sudden turn south on Pendleton avenue just as Jimmie reached the corner and before he could check himself he was riding on the front seat of the wagon.

He was carried 60 feet before the driver could check his horse. The pony was knocked down when the bridle caught on the hub of the wheel. Jimmie, after much complaining, rode away. The grocery wagon was not damaged.

COOL WEDNESDAY WITHOUT RAIN

Cloudy Weather Forecast, but No Showers.

Cooler weather is coming Wednesday. There will not be any showers, but clouds part of the time will contribute to the cooling effect.

The official forecast: "Partly cloudy Tuesday night and Wednesday; cooler Wednesday; northerly winds."

The tropical storm which has been sweeping the sea has moved inland in Northwestern Georgia, but its intensity has materially decreased. Within the next 24 hours it will move to the Middle Ohio Valley.

There have been showers in Western Missouri and at many other points. There has been an increase of temperature in the East and on the Pacific Slope. The changes elsewhere have been slight. Frost formed Monday night in the Rockies.

Car Runs Off Track When Motorman Is Displaced.

Although it was in charge of one of the United Railway Co. road officers, Michael Clooney of 3641 Lee avenue having just taken the place of the regular motorman, a Lee car became unmanageable at Kossuth and Prairie avenue and jumped the track while rounding the curve there. Sterba, the motorman, who was on the front platform watching the road officer manipulate the motor, sprained his arm, a telegraph pole, although withstanding several well-directed blows from the car, broke in two, a letter box was smashed, an iron lamp post was broken into four parts and eight persons, including F. H. Grinter, the conductor, were injured.

Bruises, scratches and a wrenched shoulder or two constituted the other injuries to the passengers, who were Mrs. W. D. Griffin, 4114 North Newstead avenue; Miss Pearl Tamm, 4116 Prairie avenue; Mrs. Otto Kollmeyer, 3728 Barrett street; F. J. Freeman, 4108 Kossuth avenue; W. C. SELPH RUNS AS BUTLER FIGHTER

Doesn't Want Congressional Honor if He Must Disavow Friendship.

HE ASKS FOR FAIR DEAL

Publisher Hopes to Become Big Enough to Discuss National Issues.

Colin M. Selph, whose nomination for Congress by the Democrats of the Twelfth District is predicted by an opposing candidate, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday that he expected to win the nomination on his record as a fighter for the Butler wing of the local Democracy. He said he expected to be elected on his showing of his purpose and ability to serve the district, regardless of party or faction.

"If I am obliged to disavow my friendship for Mr. Butler, I do not desire the nomination," Selph declared to a Post-Dispatch reporter. The interview took place in the Standard Theafor building, a Butler property.

All my energy and whatever ability and ingenuity I possess have been given to the task of building up the St. Louis Democratic Club," Selph declared. "Eight of the nine members of the Twelfth District Congressional Committee are affiliated with this club, and they know of my efforts in its behalf.

"They know of my work in successfully defending James J. Butler and James P. Miles before the State Committee. They know also that I defended the Twelfth District committee before the State Committee, and won a victory for the district committee.

"The members of the committee are my friends, but I believe they are going to give other candidates a fair deal. They will best please me by doing so. I do not think it fair for anyone to impute fraudulent purposes to them in advance of the primary."

"Will you, if nominated, have any suggestions to make as to election methods which Congress will be more likely to approve than those used in the district in recent years?" Selph was asked.

Wants a Fair Election.

"The conduct of the campaign will rest entirely with the committee," he replied. "I desire a fair election, just as I desire a fair primary."

In answer to a question as to his views on national issues, Selph said:

"I don't think myself a big enough man to pose as an authority on national issues. I hope I may some time become a big enough man to do so, but for the present I am content to let the big men, like Mr. Bryan, Gov. Folk and Mr. Hearst, discuss these issues.

"I expect to make my appeal to the voters of the Twelfth District on the service I intend to perform for the district and all its people, regardless of wealth, position or politics. A Congressman can serve the people of the district in many ways, by services in connection with the Government departments as well as by his proposals and his vote on laws and appropriations. I would work for the best possible mail facilities and for the best possible service in all other work of the Government which affects this city.

"My work in behalf of the Free Bridge is an indication of my interest in the city's commercial welfare.

"I told Tom Rowe, as he says, that I was 'after the pob,' meaning the nomination, and I considered it only a joke when he took me to task for speaking of a congressional nomination as a 'job.' I like and admire Tom Rowe, and I have the highest regard for Mr. Scullin, the other of my announced opponents for the nomination.

"I filed my petition for nomination yesterday. I am going to be nominated, I believe, but if I should not be, I am a good soldier."

"The boss wants to see you," said a boy from Manager Butler's office as the interview closed, and Selph climbed the stairs which lead from the barroom to the office of the manager of the theater.

Selph was chairman of the district congressional convention of 1904, whose nominee, Ernest E. Wood, was unseated by Congress after being elected on the face of the returns. Selph was president of the St. Louis Democratic Club, and was a member of the Legislature of 1903. He is in the publishing business and has an office downtown. He dresses stylishly and wears eyeglasses.

A Sorrowful Dog Story.

There is much perturbation in the home of Mr. Julius Baer, 5 27 Washington boulevard, because of the disappearance of a beautiful St. Bernard dog, which had too much sense to get lost, and which is being restrained of its liberty in strange quarters. The dog has for a long time been the most treasured possession of Master Arthur Baer, as well as the pet of the neighborhood. Arthur is now in Europe, but there will be a day when he will call on his homefolks for an accounting, and no one has yet been able to build a story calculated to appease his grief if his friend be missing when he returns.

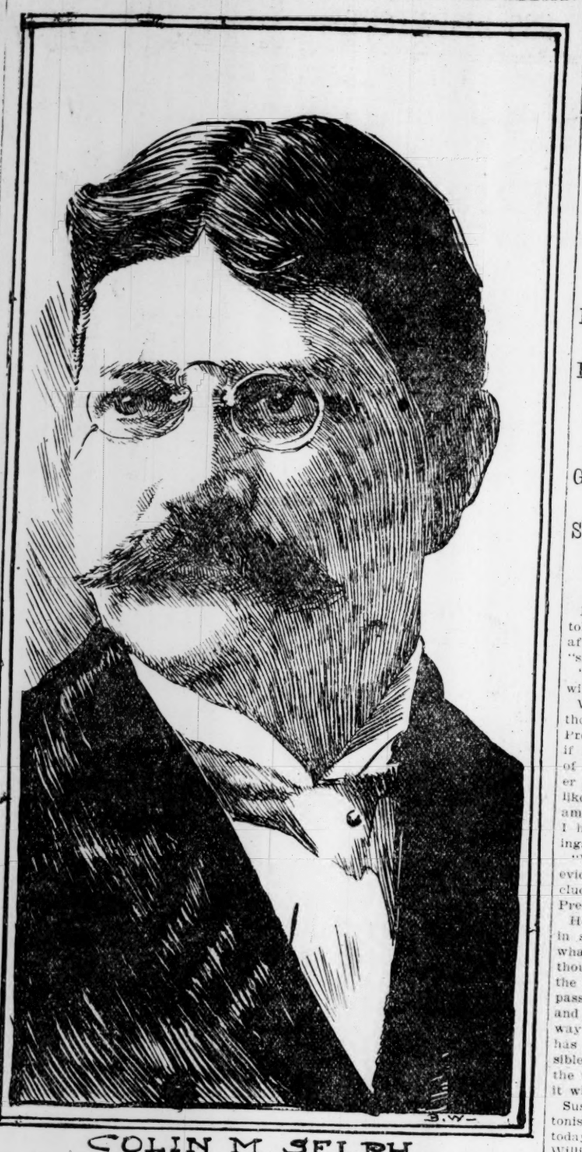
COLIN SELPH, WHO'D RATHER BE BUTLER MAN THAN CONGRESSMAN



COLIN M. SELPH.

GRAPEVINE AROUND A DROWNED BODY

Man's Death Apparently Accounted For, Murder Theory Is Dropped.

The body of George Covert was seen floating in the river, 30 feet from the Wiggins Ferry landing at the foot of Wash street, at 8 a. m. Tuesday. Henry Strutman, river pilot, who lives aboard his gasoline launch, the "Kansas City," put out, reached the body and towed it ashore opposite Franklin avenue, one block away.

Strutman took the body out of the water onto the levee approach. Two policeman took it to the morgue, where it was identified by Cora Covert, a daughter, and Margaret Lauth, a boarder at the Covert home, 929 Rutger street.

A mark on the head resembling a bullet wound and a grapevine wound about the legs and shoulders gave rise to a murder theory.

Covert had been fishing off the Colorado Sand and Gravel Co.'s tug "Colorado" Sunday night with his friend, Lee Garah, of Fourteenth and Monroe streets, who is employed as night watchman at the sand plant. At 1:30 a. m. Monday Garah heard a splash, looked for his comrade and could not find him.

Twelve hours later, at 1 p. m. Sunday, the watchman reported the supposed drowning of Covert to the police. He said he had heard the splash and missed Covert, but had not seen him drown.

The suspicions of Garah were confirmed when Strutman saw the body floating in the water. Strutman lives almost most of his 52 years along the water front, and has taken 50 or a hundred bodies from the water.

He was surprised when he took this body free of the river to find a staple the entwined about each leg, crossed in the back and wound about the abdomen. The vine so firmly encircled limbs and body that Strutman lifted the corpse from the water by it.

Strutman's conclusions started a police investigation. Strutman believed the ends of the vine were knotted. He believed the vine had been entwined in such a way that it encompassed a heavy stone which, he concluded, had fallen between the vine and the abdomen to weight the body in the river.

Then there was the wound. Covert's family soon explained he had fallen at a shoe factory a few days ago, causing the wound.

The police decided the grapevine had become attached to the body by accident. "Just picked it up in the water," concluded Capt. Johnson after they viewed the body and the vine.

LEADING FRISCO MAN DIES

Banker and Former Police Commissioner Passes Away.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—R. J. Tobin, one of the founders of the Hibernia Bank and its former president, died early today after a lingering illness.

He formerly was a police commissioner and was one of the best known citizens of San Francisco.

Minister's Wife Asks Alimony.

Suit for alimony pending the disposition of the case has been filed in Clayton by Mrs. Ella E. Eby, wife of Rev. Samuel C. Eby, former Swedenborgian clergyman, who has sued her for divorce. The divorce case is under advisement. Mrs. Eby sets forth that her husband agreed to pay her $30 a month, but has not done so since last May. She asks for $120 in a lump sum and $30 monthly from Oct 1.

Rockefeller Not Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 18.—John D. Rockefeller played golf today, in spite of reports that he was indisposed. He swung his golf clubs like a 16-year-old boy and never seemed to mind the sun, which beat down with unusual severity. Finishing his game, he made a tour of Forest Hill, accompanied by his superintendent, Howatt. Howatt said later that Mr. Rockefeller was in the best of health and had tired him out walking.

TWO WED BEFORE DIVORCE APPROVAL

East Side Judge Questions Legality of Marriage of Those He Freed.

A complication involving the validity of the Illinois law governing divorce proceedings and questioning the legality of two marriages Monday, following divorces granted Saturday, may be aired in Judge Moyers' court in East St. Louis.

Two persons were granted divorces by Judge Moyer Saturday, and they married again Monday before Judge Moyer approved of the decree, and the question now is whether or not they are legally married. Both marriages took place in St. Louis Monday. Another woman granted a divorce Saturday by Judge Moyer had the decree approved on the spot and was legally married in Clayton Monday.

In granting another divorce Tuesday, Judge Moyers finds things still more complicated. The court finds that the law does not provide a penalty for persons marrying in Illinois within a year after being granted a divorce, but the law says specifically that a person shall not marry within a year after being granted a divorce. Holding that there is no penalty attached to the law governing the question, Judge Moyers granted a divorce Tuesday to L. R. Ferguson from Mary Ferguson. Mrs. Ferguson was wranted a divorce in July from Edward Parks, her first husband. She immediately married L. R. Ferguson. They failed to live happily, according to a petition filed by Ferguson, and they separated. Both a month after they were married. Ferguson alleging that his wife had been attentive to her first husband.

After Judge Moyers had heard the case Saturday he decided to wait until Tuesday to render his decision. The question arose, if Mrs. Ferguson had been illegally married to Ferguson within a year after being divorced from her first husband, could he legally grant a divorce? Tuesday, granting the divorce, he referred to the omission of a penalty for violations of the divorce law.

Married in Clayton.

Mrs. Dessie Clavey, a pretty blonde of East St. Louis, was granted a divorce by Judge Moyers Saturday from William Clavey, and her maiden name, Dessie Miller, was restored. In her petition she alleged that her husband was cruel, returned home daily intoxicated and often beat her. She said that she left her husband once, but they were reconciled and he promised to reform. Soon afterward, however, he returned home and gave her a severe beating, she testified. Her attorney had the decree approved immediately after it had been granted by Judge Moyers and Monday the plaintiff accompanied Charles L. Donnelly of East St. Louis to Clayton and she was married.

Mrs. Bessie Palmer was granted a divorce from Richard Palmer Saturday and given the custody of a 6-year-old child. The decree was not approved by Judge Meyers and has not yet been approved. Mrs. Palmer alleged that her husband returned home drunk and whipped her often. She said that she left him, but returned under the promise of her husband to reform. She was beaten on her return, she said. Tuesday Mrs. Palmer came to St. Louis and was married to Claude W. Ray of East St. Louis before her divorce decree was approved and the question of the legality of her marriage has arisen. Marriages in Missouri are legal if the divorce has been approved.

Thomas Jenny of East St. Louis was granted a divorce from Carrie Jenny Saturday and the custody of two children was given the woman. Albert Morris was named in the divorce petition. Monday Mrs. Jenny was married in St. Louis to Albert Morris before her decree was approved.

President Stewart of the Police Board told a Post-Dispatch reporter Tuesday afternoon that the board was getting "sick and tired" of the Kiely trial.

"I'll be hanged if I know when it will end," continued Mr. Stewart.

When asked by the reporter when he thought the trial would be concluded, President Stewart said: "I'll be hanged if I know; I am getting sick and tired of it. It's lasted now a great deal longer than I expected it would, and looks like it might last still another day. I am anxious to get back to my business. I have tried to hurry up the proceedings as much as possible."

"Will the board deliberate over the evidence long after the trial is concluded before rendering a verdict?" President Stewart was asked.

He said: "I don't know. Things are in such a shape that I can't tell just what we are liable to do. At first we thought sure that we would be through the trial by Saturday. Now Monday has passed and Tuesday has nearly gone, and still the end is not in sight. The way this thing is being dragged along has got me nearly crazy. It is impossible for me to tell now just what time the trial will be concluded, or how long it will take us to reach a verdict."

Suspended Chief of Police Kiely astonished the commissioners at his trial today when he brought to light Dr. William R. Faulkner, long known in sub-surface police circles as the power behind the throne, the real Chief of Police and head of the department. Kiely testified that Andrew C. Maroney, when a Police Commissioner, told him (Kiely) of Dr. Faulkner's countermanding orders from the Chief, and further that he would like to "fix-can" Faulkner.

Kiely also told of a talk he had with Maroney, in which Maroney said Folk would be "like a pelican" if he did not reorganize the police force, adding that Folk and Hawes would both have been better if they had taken his (Maroney's) advice in their affairs.

When Chief Kiely took the stand again in his own behalf at 10:15 a. m., he resumed his statement of the alleged opposition of Maroney to his administration as Chief.

"You detailed Monday afternoon several interviews you had with Maroney. Do you remember any others?" asked Attorney Saunders.

"I do," replied Kiely.

"I will first ask you what were your relations with Maroney prior to the inauguration of Gov. Folk?"

"Friendly, so far as I was concerned, and so far as I observed, Maroney showed no disposition to be unfriendly toward me until about the time of Folk's election.

Called Kiely "Big Head."

"One day shortly after the election Maroney happened into my office. He said that he felt that I was handicapped in my administration of police affairs by interference. He said that some general orders I had issued were countermanded at the various police stations by Dr. Faulkner, superintendent of police properties. I told him I did not believe that was true, that it was only gossip. He insisted that such was the case, and added that if he had his way he would 'tie a tin can' to Dr. Faulkner."

"COFFEE DOESN'T HURT ME" Tales That Are Told.

"I was one of the kind who wouldn't believe that coffee was hurting me," says a New York woman.

"You just couldn't convince me its use was connected with the heart and stomach trouble I suffered from most all of the time. My trouble finally got so bad I had to live on milk and toast almost entirely for three or four years. Still I loved the coffee and wouldn't believe it could do such damage.

"What I needed was to quit coffee and take nourishment in such form my stomach could digest. I had read so much about Postum, the cereal coffee, but never thought it would fit my case until one day I decided to quit coffee and give it a trial and make sure about it. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions.

"Soon I found I began to get better and was able to eat carefully selected foods without the aid of pepsin or other digests and it was not long before I was really a new woman physically.

"Now I am healthy, hearty and sound, can eat anything and everything that comes along and I know this wonderful change is all due to my having quit coffee and got the big quantity of nourishment I needed through this delicious Postum in place of the dangerous coffee and tea.

"My wonder is why everyone don't give up the old coffee and the troubles that go with it and build themeselves up as I have done, with Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Easy to prove by 10 days' trial of Postum in place of coffee. The reward is big and "there's a reason."

"What else did Maroney say?" asked Saunders.

"He said: 'And that son of Faulkner's, your secretary, has no more respect for you than he has for a dog. Just the other day I heard him refer to you as a "big head." I was standing outside the Four Courts and heard Faulkner say to a man who asked him for a circus ticket: "Why don't you see the 'big head,'" meaning you.'

"It was subsequent to that that Maroney wanted me to appoint his friend, Scholl, as my secretary. Faulkner's term had expired, and Roscoe Shaw was acting as secretary.

"When Maroney returned from Jefferson City after Folk's inauguration I asked him how the Governor felt and if he contemplated making any change in the department. At that time the newspapers were full of rumors to the effect that I was to be dropped.

Maroney, Political Adviser.

"Mr. Maroney said: 'The Governor would be no better than a hypocrite if he didn't contemplate removing you. His attitude would be that of a pelican sticking its bill in the sand and exposing its body to be shot. He couldn't afford to go back on the ministers who adopted resolutions protesting against your administration. If the Governor would take my advice he would be much better off, and if Harry Hawes had taken my advice in political matters he would be the biggest man in the State today.'"

"Was Maroney ever a candidate for Circuit Attorney?" asked Saunders.

Prosecutor Williams objected at this stage, on the ground that such matter was wholly immaterial to the present proceedings. The objection was sustained.

"You testified Monday afternoon that you were loyal to Folk. What did you do to show your loyalty?" asked Saunders.

Kiely was allowed to answer the question, provided he would do so briefly.

"I co-operated with Folk in his crusade against the boodlers. I located Kratz in Mexico and telephoned the Chief of Police there to hold him for me. I wired the Chief of Police in New York when Kelly returned from Ireland to arrest him and when the New York police missed Kelly I wired Philadelphia and succeeded in having him apprehended there.

Kiely Says He Protected Folk.

"During the heat of the boodle prosecutions, when there were rumors of plots to assassinate Folk, I detailed Detective John McGrath to follow him about without his knowledge and when McGrath died I put in his place Dan Danaher. Folk was followed day and night at my instructions, without his knowing anything about it."

"How many transfers have you made as Chief?"

"Thousands."

"You were not asked Monday about your connection with the National Association of Chiefs of Police. Please state something about that."

"I was president of the Board of Governors of the National Bureau of Identification. I held that position from the time of Col. Dietz's death until the date of my suspension. During the world's Fair period I transferred the headquarters of the bureau from Washington to St. Louis and later transferred it back again."

"Were you detailed by the present board to visit other cities and study police methods?"

Mr. Jones corrected Saunders, saying it must have been a former board.

"I was detailed by the former board to visit the large cities with Desmond and study the police conditions. We visited Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Montreal and Toronto, in Canada, Detroit and Buffalo. We were gone a month.

Kiely Tells of Dorsey Affair.

For the next two hours Kiely's testimony was devoted exclusively to the story of the Sergt. Dorsey affair in connection with the fight at the polling place at 5609 Delmar boulevard. Kiely was instructed by his attorneys to give all the details. He thought for a few moments and then abruptly standing up and sitting down he gave a detailed account of the affair. It was noticed that he lowered his voice so that several times his words could not be distinguished by the reporters at the press table two feet behind him, and his attorneys told him to speak louder.

"On the afternoon of Sept. 16, 1902, when the Republican primaries in the Twenty-eighth Ward were held," said Kiely, "I received several telephone messages from the polling place out on Delmar boulevard that there was going to be trouble and they needed more police. I called up the Mounted District, and learning the Captain was out, I decided to go out to the polling place myself.

"It was dusk when I got out to the shed where the polls were, and I found Sergt. Dorsey there, and he told me there wasn't very much trouble. A little while afterward there was a complaint from the judges that a man had repeated and that they wanted him arrested and he was arreted.

"He was led out of the polling place west on Delmar to the box and I followed behind the policeman who had him under arrest. Sergt. Dorsey was walking near me.

Ordered Duly Released.

"While we were walking toward the box I heard a scuffle behind me and running back saw Dorsey run into the crowd and grab Lawior Daly. I said 'You've got the wrong man, Dorsey,' and the man was released. Then I turned to the man who had been struck in the scuffle and I said, 'Are you hurt?' and he said, 'Oh, it's all right; let it go at that.'"

Here Saunders interrupted.

"Who was the man who was hit?"

"Well, I didn't know at the time, but I learned afterwards that it was George H. Williams.

Then Kiely went on with his story.

"The wagon was called and the prisoner put into it and then I sent Dorsey back to the polling places to ask the judges and clerks what charge they would put against the prisoner. And Dorsey came back soon after and said that the judges did not want to prosecute him and so he was released.

"When did you next hear of the affair, Chief?" asked Saunders.

"The next thing I heard of it was when the papers took it up on the eve of my reappointment as Chief of Police. But wait—I want to modify that. I did hear of it before that in this way: I went up to Jefferson City at the request of Gov. Folk and the Governor told me there that over at a meeting in the House chamber a man named Williams had been saying bad things about me, accusing me of being present at an election when he was knocked down and assaulted. Thinking the Governor meant the primaries of 1904, I said that the man must be mistaken, as I was in Hot Springs at that time.

Asked Dorsey for Report.

"That was all I said to Gov. Folk. Afterwards when all the papers took it up, I recalled that I was out there at the polling place in September, 1902, and as a result on February of last year I looked for the records of the incident there. I found that there was no report and I phoned for Sergt. Dorsey to come to my office. He said he had some recollection of the affair at the primaries. I asked him to first inquire at the station for any data and then to see the officers, get their reports and then give me a report of all they knew about it. He did so and these reports were brought to me. I don't remember whether Dorsey brought them himself or whether they came by messengers."

"What was your motive?" asked Saunders.

"My motive in getting these reports was to present them to Mr. Stewart," said the witness. "And then to ask Mr. Stewart to bring about a meeting between Mr. Williams and myself, so that I could show the reports to Mr. Williams and convince him he was mistaken in what he said of me."

"Shortly afterwards Mr. Stewart was in my office. I told him I had the reports. In fact, they were on my desk while I was talking to him. I don't recall, whether or not I showed the reports to Mr. Stewart or whether he read them."

"Why did you ask Stewart to arrange the meeting?" asked Saunders.

"Because Stewart, being his father-in-law, I thought he could do easily enough. I didn't hear anything more about it, till I was subpenaed to the grand jury Nov. 29. Stewart had left me under the impression that he would arrange the meeting in the grand jury room after I got through."

"Remember, Chief, you can't state anything you said in the grand jury room or what was said there," interrupted Saunders.

Kiely turned upon Saunders impatiently and said: "I am not going to."

Says Sager Wanted Dorsey.

"It was when the session was over, that evening, that Mr. Sager asked me if I could get Dorsey to come down to my office that night.

"I phoned out that night for Dorsey and found I couldn't get him. I told Mr. Sager so, and he said to get him Friday, Dec. 1. The next day, Thanksgiving Day, I sent a special officer to Dorsey's house, with instructions for Dorsey to call me. Dorsey called me up before the morning was over. I said, 'Sergt. Dorsey, how far do you live from the Eleventh District Station?' He gave me his number on Euclid avenue, not far away from the station, and I told him to come down there at 7 p. m.?' He said, 'All right,' and he met me there."

Here Saunders again questioned the Chief.

"Chief Kiely, you heard Sergt. Dorsey say on the stand that the conversation you had with him over the phone was this way. You said, 'Can you meet me at your home?' and then you pause and said, 'No, I might be seen there. Meet me at the Eleventh District Station.'

"Did you say that, Chief?'

"No," said Chief Kiely, "there would have been no object for saying so. My house on Dickson street is in a much less public place than in the Eleventh District Station. There are very few times I am found my house—no detectives or policemen very near, whereas out at the Eleventh District Station it would be much different."

"Did you say, Chief, over the phone: 'Now, Harry, remember I am Chief of Police and that I will be your friend?' Be sure to put these two things in your report?'

"Kiely: 'No, I did not. I didn't instruct Dorsey in any manner, shape or form how to make the report.

Saunders: 'I hand you a report, Col. Kiely, which is reported to be that made by Dorsey, which you took to the Eleventh District Station.'

Kiely put on his glasses and examined the report carefully and then said: "I won't swear that it is, but it looks like it."

Saunders then asked if two brackets made in pencil were his. The brackets inclosed the words referring to who ordered the arrest and Williams' inability to identify the man arrested.

Kiely said the brackets were not his. Kiely then told the story of his visit to the Eleventh District Station. He said:

"I went out there, having some business with acting Capt. Mansfield, and Mansfield was out when I got there. The Desk Sergeant sent out a messenger for Mansfield and I took Dorsey upstairs to the assembly room. I handed him a copy of his report and said: 'Here is a copy of your report. Refresh your memory and when you go down to the grand jury tell the truth about the affair, regardless of consequences.'"

Saunders: 'Why did you go upstairs?

Kiely: 'Because I didn't want to give him a copy of his report in the presence of other people.

This statement was made very slowly. Saunders went quickly to another line of questioning.

"Is it a custom for superior officers," asked Saunders, "to show their inferior officers their reports before they appear before the grand jury?"

Kiely: "It has been so long as I have been in the department.

"Hix" Moynihan Dead.

James M. (Hix) Moynihan, aged 35, a former St. Louis fireman and a well-known Democratic politician, died Monday at his home, 622 South Broadway, after a six-weeks' illness of liver trouble. Moynihan was a brother of John J. Moynihan, congressional committeeman of the Fifth Ward, and Mrs. E. Shean and Mrs. Anna L. Kraemer are his sisters. The funeral will take place Tuesday from the residence and interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

BAILEY SAYS HIS "CLIENTS" ARE SATISFIED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Senator Bailey of Texas arrived in the city today. Mr. Bailey was asked if he had read the statement of Roger Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman quoted as saying that William J. Bryan should read Senator Bailey out of the party before he reads Sullivan out of the party.

In reply to the inquiry he dictated and authorized the following statement: "If Mr. Sullivan made the statement attributed to him, he has exhibited a reckless disregard for the truth, which renders him even less fit for membership on the Democratic National Committee than any circumstances which Mr. Bryan has yet mentioned against him.

"The Standard Oil Co. has no more interest in or connection with the Tennessee properties for which I am attorney than Mr. Sullivan or the Czar of Russia.

"I am not required to explain my professional employments in answer to such contemptible statements as that made by Mr. Sullivan.

"My employment in this instance, as well as in all other instances, was such as any honorable lawyer is glad to accept, and my clients are entirely satisfied with the manner in which I have protected their interests."

It has been developed through the H. Clay Pierce depositions in St. Louis and the Senator's statements that he obtained for the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. a charter to do business in Texas in 1900 after it had been ousted by the Attorney-General for violation of the anti-trust laws, and that Pierce turned over to Bailey the Tennessee Central Railway, construction and coal properties to the value of $13,000,000 to be handled as the Senator saw fit.

When Roger Sullivan of Chicago, who has been denounced by Bryan for his connection with gas companies and other corporations, heard of Pierce's testimony connecting Bailey with Standard interests, the Illinois National Committeeman issued a pronunciamento that Bailey would have to retire from the Democratic party.

WOMAN INSPIRED CREW IN STORM

St. Louisan's Yacht Swept by Gale, Dismantled Off Cape Hatteras.

DEATH SEEMED CERTAIN

Wife of Owner Kept Sailors at Pumps Until Assistance Arrived.

In a heavy gale off Capt Hatteras, the auxiliary yacht Palatine, belonging to Charles H. Ledlie of 4162 Washington boulevard, was dismantled and it is due to the bravery of Mrs. Ledlie that the yacht with all on board was not lost. Battered and rudderless, with most of her rigging gone, the little vessel was towed into the harbor of Norfolk, Va., by the British steamship Loraine Monday afternoon.

Special dispatches to the Post-Dispatch from New York tell the story of the thrilling cruise.

Mrs. Ledlie with her husband and their 19-year-old son, John, have been spending the summer at Jamestown, R. I. In June Mr. Ledlie had the yacht built in Boston and throughout the past season the family with their guests have cruised about the coast.

The disastrous cruise, which was to have been the last for the year, began Saturday when Mrs. Ledlie with her husband and son went aboard at Bay Ridge, N. Y. They intended to sail for Norfolk, and avoiding the threatened equinoxial gales, cruise about in Chesapeake Bay.

A stiff breeze was blowing, good headway was made and all went well until the yacht reached a point off Atlantic City. Then without warning a hurricane struck the vessel. It was furiously lashed and the rapidly mounting waves broke clear over it.

275 Miles in 18 Hours.

At that point there was no harbor to run for. All sail was taken in and with bare poles the yacht ran before the wind. The little vessel went down the coast at great speed, fetching up off Cape Henry at 6 a. m. Sunday, having run 275 miles in 18 hours.

Then appeared the shoals off False Cape, near Hatteras, upon which the boat was drifting. Helpless, the yacht was apparently sweeping toward certain destruction on the treacherous Caroline coast.

An effort was made to put about. A closely reefed sail was hoisted. It remained in place less than five minutes. Then the main boom with the improvised sail went overboard. Heavy with the broken boom and the mass of tangled rigging the vessel heeled over until every wave threatened to capsize it.

The five members of the crew, weary with the all-night struggle, seemed to abandon hope in the face of the almost hopeless condition of the vessel. It was found that the copper sheeting that covered the bow had been torn away by the wind and waves, and a leak had started. It was at this point that Mrs. Ledlie appeared on the heaving deck.

Mrs. Ledlie Gave Courage.

Without a trace of fear she shouted encouragement to the crew. Mr. Ledlie and his son, armed with knives, sprang to the mass of rigging and the crew with axes followed them. They worked frantically and as the mast, with its weight of sail and ropes dragged overboard, the little vessel again righted herself.

As she came to the crest of a wave a cross sea struck her and loosened the rudder post. Another wave tore the rudder from its fastenings and the vessel drifted helplessly.

No one aboard believed that the vessel could keep off the shoals they were rapidly approaching. A sailor reported that water was pouring in the bow, where the leak had grown larger.

Blankets and canvas were taken below and held against the open seams while the pumps were put in action. Then the fires under the boilers, already dampened from the waves which broke over the decks, began to go out. Suddenly the pumps refused to work. The men became hopeless.

As the pumps were brought out of use, Ledlie again cheered the men to new endeavor, and although they felt that the vessel was lost, they worked stolidly and steadily. It was then that the British steamer was sighted. She had heard their calls of distress and approaching, signaled that she would attempt a rescue. At a tremendous risk she succeeded in getting a line to the sinking yacht and towed it to safety.

At Norfolk the escape of the yacht, which is only of 54 tons, became the topic of moment. Not one yacht in a hundred, old mariners said, would have lived through the tempest that the Palatine did.

Mr. Ledlie and his family have been away from home since June 1st. They are expected to return early October.

The only relative of the family in the city is Mrs. Clarence O'Fallon of 5704 Cates avenue. She had only heard that the yacht had nearly been lost, but had received no word from her sister.

Mrs. O'Fallon's daughter, Miss Nancy O'Fallon, has just returned from a two weeks' visit to Jamestown, where she had been a guest of Mrs. Ledlie. While on her visit she said she had enjoyed several cruises on the yacht.

LABOR'S FIGHT BUT BEGUN---GOMPERS

Federation Head Says Campaign Against Littlefield and Kind Is Still On.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—"That battle in Maine, although closed at this time in the Second District, is not at an end. The contest was merely incidental to the task which labor has set itself to accomplish," said President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor last night at Typographical Temple, where a reception was given in honor of the labor leaders who fought against Representative Littlefield's re-election in Mai.

"Not only Mr. Littlefield, but 'Uncle Joe' dared reiterate that we stand for the licensing of criminal and unlawful conduct. We ask for equal rights before the law as any other citizen. I have it not in mind to say a word in criticism of the President other than this. The right of petition is the right of the American citizen guaranteed by the Constitution, and neither the President nor Congress can take that right away from him. Labor is the only power in society that represents the masses.

"Why did we begin the fight in Littlefield's district? Because the election was held two months earlier in Maine than in other States. Had we passed over the district, they would have said we were afraid. We were not afraid. We conducted a clean fight and used no arguments or language that might not have been repeated in polite society. The laboring people have outgrown the stooped back and receding forehead of 'the man with the hoe.' They now stand erect. They are waging a fight against child labor and against the white plague. By securing better hours and higher wages, they will found better homes into which tuberculosis cannot enter."

BRYAN IN CAROLINAS.

To Give Public Reception at Columbia Tomorrow.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 18.—William J. Bryan today began the second stage of his speechmaking trip through the South. His speech at Charlotte tonight will be the final chapter of his two-days' itinerary through North Carolina.

Tomorrow he will continue into South Carolina, where he will make a widel heralded speech at Columbia, S. C., the only one scheduled in the State and where after the speaking, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan will give a public reception in the State Capitol.

Don't Be a Crank About Your Food

But Be Sure It Is Healthful As Well As Good To Eat.

It is undoubtedly true that some people carry to an extreme their ideas about proper eating, therefore being dubbed "cranks" by the skeptical, but the importance of selecting our food with intelligent care cannot be disputed. Our health depends to a great extent on what we eat. Particular care should be taken to select food which supplies much nourishment and is not hard to digest.

We know of no other food that is so nutritious, so easy to digest, so healthful and so good to eat as Malta-Vita. It is a pure grain product, made from finest whole white wheat and rich barley malt extract, clean and unadulterated. After the wheat has been thoroughly cooked and matured it is mixed with the malt extract, which is an important digestive agent. The malt extract makes all the valuable food elements of the wheat easy to digest by turning the starch of the wheat into maltose, or malt sugar. Maltose is so strengthening and so easily digested that physicians everywhere recommend it. Malta-Vita is rich in maltose. The malt extract not only makes Malta-Vita so easy to digest and so healthful, but also gives it that fine Malta-Vita taste. The malted wheat is rolled into little wafer flakes and baked until "done to a turn," crisp and brown.

Malta-Vita is always ready to eat. No cooking. Get some today. Eat it with milk or cream or fresh fruit. There's nothing else like it, no other wheat food that compares with it. All grocers. Now 10 cents.

STARVED MAN GETS A NICKEL; EXPIRES

Too Weak to Eat a Sandwich, Stranger Orders, He Expires.

An unidentified man, probably 60 years old, with a thin, haggard face and a small grayish mustache, who was so emaciated by hunger that he could not eat when, after days of starvation, he had been given a nickel to buy bread, was found dead in a toilet room in the Ohio saloon, Seventh and Market streets, at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Traces of refinement in the unfortunate's face showed the man had evidently seen prosperous days.

Charles Elg, proprietor of the Ohio saloon, said he had never seen the man around his place before, although he might have gone in and out of the saloon without being noticed. The saloon is frequented largely by railroad laborers.

The man was seen coming up Market street towards Seventh. As he reached the corner he stopped a man and begged him for the price of a loaf of bread.

"I haven't had a square meal in a month," he said.

Receiving the nickel, he started across the street to a lunchstand.

He called for a sandwich.

The lunch man filled the order, but he couldn't eat.

"I'm too weak," he gasped.

He then went inside the saloon and 15 minutes later was found dead by John Holzfoorter, the saloon porter.

Policeman Silverman was called and the body removed to the Morgue.

While waiting the arrival of the city undertaker's wagon, Policeman Silverman had the body removed from the saloon and placed on the sidewalk outside, with the head resting against the wall of the building. There a large crowd soon gathered. The man's face presented a ghastly appearance as the hot rays of the sun beat down upon it. It was probably forty minutes before the undertaker's wagon came.

The man weighed about ninety pounds and was 5 feet 6 inches tall. He wore a dark suit, torn and tattered, a black slouch hat and a dark undershirt.

HOUSE OF FASHION OPENS.

Werner & Werner's New Store Is Thronged.

After a long and patient wait the public of St. Louis was for the first time admitted to the new "Home of Fashion on Quality Corner," on Monday when the firm of Werner & Werner opened its doors on Sixth and Locust streets. The new store was thronged all day with visitors and purchasers, of which many came to see and stayed to buy.

A very important fact connected with the opening is that every thing is new and of the very latest styles and fashion. The store is new and is a handsome building, the arrangements of the goods and furnishings is new and, best of all, the goods are new, and they will always be kept new.

Years of experience in the men's furnishing goods business and a careful study of the needs and of the things heretofore neglected have enabled Messrs. Werner & Werner to make their store much different from the usual type seen in St. Louis, or anywhere else as far as that is concerned.

The entire interior of the new building has a quiet and restful color scheme of a fumed oak of a dull brown tint, and the woodwork panels are of Circassian walnut with a delicate inlay of gray maple.

Instead of long and wide benches usually used to display the goods, there is used handsome walnut library tables. These tables are in harmony with the other furnishing as to color and appear in keeping with everything in the store.

Some of the showcases, that require a soft, mild light, are illumined from above through opal glass. All the fine grades of goods are hung in cabinets, with cathedral glass tops, hand-carved panels and decorated with bronze fittings.

In the main wrapping station in the center of the store, all goods are kept in concealed cabinets, air-tight and solid, to keep out dust.

The octagon columns which support the ceilings are encased in fumed oak panels with highly polished looking glasses. For the sale of high-grade shirts the company has installed a separate shirting room, and this has been featurized. This room has a display window, showing off the styles to fine effect.

The floor space on each floor is 103 by 80 feet. Hats, underwear and clothing occupy the outsides of the main floor and specially arranged cabinets for collars, cuffs and neckwear occupy the center. They enable a general view of the entire floor, all the cabinets having been kept low.

The juvenile department occupies the entire second floor, as the boy of today needs a store of his own to keep him well dressed. Herein are displayed novelties in blouses and jackets and knickerbockers, which have displaced just plain knee breeches and a waist.

On this floor also is the special department for dress suits, Tuxedos, frock coats and formal attire in general. These are displayed in dust-proof cabinets.

The ladies' retiring room, which contains plenty of leather settees and chairs, occupies the front of the second floor, is easily accesible by large and comfortable elevators.

The offices are located in the rear of the second floor, and are connected with all departments with telephones and pneumatic tubes.

An excellent assortment of goods are kept in the stockroom, which occupies the basement, and each department has a stock room of its own. The basement is well ventilated and perfectly dry and free from dust and dirt.

In commemoration of the opening the entire building was decorated with potted palms and flowers.

"The House of Fashion on Quality Corner" is indeed everything the quotation implies and is a model establishment throughout.

Mardi Gras Carnival Attracts Record-Breaking Crowd.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—It is estimated that 300,000 persons visited Coney Island last night and helped make the opening night of the Mardi Gras Carnival the greatest ever known there. From end to end Surf avenue was streaming with banners and blazing with lights. Long strings of electric bulbs made a glittering firmament, under which the great crowds surged to and fro.

There was a parade with floats and a king and queen were crowned with mediaeval solemnity and ceremony. The merrymaking continued into the early morning. Never for a moment did the crowds cease to shower confetti. Good temper prevailed, even though there were some instances of roughness in the play.

B. NUGENT & BRO. DRY GOODS CO.

Broadway, Washington Av. and St. Charles St.

Opening Week at The May Co.

We count it an honor to have you attend the Initial display of Millinery, Costumes, Evening and Carriage-Wraps, Coats, Suits, Waists, Petticoats, Lingerie and Corsets. Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept., 18-19.

Authoritative Fashions approved by the Master-designers of France, Germany, Austria, England and our own United States.

Our Store Entire Responds With Liberal Encores

Our fall opening has been the subject of considerable enthusiastic comment. We have been the recipients of many compliments for which we bow our thanks. We have tried to do the unusual, and the sanction of the public is an assurance that we have succeeded. The "Memento Bargains"—those little keepsake values—were sought after during the first two opening days. We feel that the applause calls for more "Mementos." Thus do we respond to the encore with more of these bargains—perhaps a little stronger in their money-saving character. You may look for "Memento Bargains" on Wednesday and you shall be gloriously rewarded.

A Memento Bargain in Tailored Suits

It was a fortunate thing for us—and also for you—that we bought a large quantity of these handsome Suits. They are Suits of the kind which sell at $37.50, but were specially made up as a Memento Bargain for our Fall Opening. They're made of finest broadcloth, in one of the chic models approved this season. These have the military coat shape, hip length, with seam-fitted backs and straight fronts with fancy vestees. Coats are trimmed with a fancy braid, velvet inlaid and are lined with a soft-finish satin duchesse to match. The skirt is one of the newest plaited models with front and back plaited, side panels. Sizes 14, 16 and 18 for misses and 34 to 44 for women. Colors are black, navy blue, green, wine red, gray and brown. Regular $37.50 Suits. Offered as a Memento Bargain at..... 22.50

(Second Floor.)

OUR FRENCH ROOM is the most elaborate and best equipped in this city. The most exclusive Gowns, Opera Wraps, Afternoon Costumes and Lingeries are shown in this room.

OUR TAILORED SUIT SECTION is now complete and is displaying and selling Tailored Suits from $10.00 up to $175.00. An excellent range of materials and models always shown.

OUR COAT SECTION is brimful of stylish coats in coverts and broadcloths—in long and short models. There are also many Silk Coats, Raincoats, Auto Coats, etc., at popular prices.

A Memento Bargain in
Net Dress Waists

They're worth $6.00, but as a Memento Special we offer these very-much-called-for Waists at $3.59. They were made especially for this sale, and if the maker and we had not sacrificed, they never could be sold at this price. They're embroidery and Val. lace trimmed with yoke designs that embody new ideas. They are ruffled and tucked; also trimmed with medallions; three-quarter and full-length sleeves; colors are black and white; made over Jap silk body. Real $6.00 values, as a Memento Bargain at..... 3.59

(Second Floor.)

Our Made-to-Measure Department

This is the department you have heard so much about. Here you may try on a garment and then choose whatever material you may wish—and choose from several hundred imported and fine domestic materials. 'Tis not like ordering from a picture. You order from the finished garment—except that you select an exclusive material. Made in one-half the usual time—at one-third usual price. Expert man-fitters in charge. Visit this department Wednesday and see the many new styles.

A Memento Bargain in Silk Petticoats

We're offering guaranteed Silk Petticoats, worth $6.00, as a Memento Bargain at $3.50. Very unusual this item for these Petticoats are made of the heavy rustling Regatta Silk that we guarantee to give satisfaction. These Petticoats come in a number of very pretty styles, with high flounces, cut full width. They include black and 25 other colors, both plain and changeable. These Petticoats should be priced $6.00, but we made a special purchase for the opening; therefore, this Memento Bargain at..... 3.50

OUR SEPARATE SKIRT SECTION is a striking feature of the new "School for Style." French Voiles, Domestic Voiles, Panamas, Broadcloths and Fancy Tweeds are shown in very exclusive models.

OUR COTTON AND SILK PETTICOAT SECTION is already a well-known feature. It is the most well-known Silk Petticoat Department in the West. An amazing choosing at proper prices.

OUR WAIST SECTION is replete with waist innovation. The new plaids, the new nets, the new taffetas, the new wash fabrics are displayed in perfection and prices unmatchable.

A Memento Bargain in
"Prince Chap" Coats

Nothing could be more timely. Throughout the land—especially in the East the "Prince Chap" Coat holds full sway. It's a swagger and popular Coat for the Autumn season. 'Tis a design that's becoming to anybody, especially to you. These $12.50 and $13.50 Prince Chap Coats which we offer as a Memento Bargain at $8.50 come in the correct 46-inch length, with that new half-fitted back. This model has the creased, high side vents in the nobby mannish coat. Fly front or double-breasted with tailored collars, lapels, collars and cuffs. They come in all-wool covert cloths, in the new gray overplaids and checks, or broken plaids. Some have shawl collars of velvet, others fancy strapped in velvet and same material. Clever designs for all sorts of wear. These Coats should be priced at $12.50 and $13.50. Memento Bargain at..... 8.50

FALSE CALLS KEEP FIREMEN JUMPING

Seven Alarms in Same Neighborhood, but No Sign of a Fire.

POLICE FAIL TO STOP IT

One Company Answers Every Summons, and Member Suffers Injury.

False Alarms in One Neighborhood.

12:05 a. m.. 281—Jefferson and Madison.
12:30 a. m.. 182—Webster and Sheridan.
12:55 a. m.. 182—Webster and Sheridan.
1:20 a. m..3122—Stoddard and Glasgow.
1:30 a. m..3121—Garrison and Glasgow place.
1:45 a. m.. 182—Webster and Sheridan.
2:00 a. m.. 182—Webster and Sheridan.

False alarm fiends had a carnival early Tuesday morning. The Fire Department was kept busy for two hours between midnight and 2 a. m. responding to seven alarms. Although four came from the same box, the last three after the police had been apprised, no arrest was made.

Henry Kroeger, aged 40, pipeman in engine house No. 5, fell from a hose wagon while responding to the first alarm, breaking his knee. He was taken to his home. The accident occurred at Twenty-second and Howard streets.

It would have been a quiet night but for these false alarms, the first of which was rung in from box 281, at Jefferson and Madison. The second was from box 182, at Webster and Sheridan avenues, and this was repeated almost as soon as the firemen had returned from the run there. Two more alarms were turned in in the course of the next hour from other boxes, and the ringing carnival ended with two more alarms from 182.

Assistant Fire Chief Christy and the engine from the house at Easton and Leonard avenues responded to all these alarms, and the apparatus in Engine-house No. 4, at Twenty-second street and Washington avenue, consisting of an engine and hose cart, responded to five of them. The force in Engine-house No. 5, at Twenty-second and North Market streets, answered all the calls but one. The apparatus there is composed of an engine and ladder wagon.

In no instance was there the least sign of a blaze. All the alarms were from inside the territory bounded by Easton, Grand and Jefferson avenues and Dickson street. Policemen were assigned to watch the corners on which the boxes are located, but as soon as their backs were turned, seemingly, someone stole up and rang the alarms.

The department horses were a sweaty lot of animals when the false alarmists ceased their work and went to bed, and the firemen themselves were tired out from loss of sleep.

On "Governor's Day" at Missouri State Fair, Sedalia, Oct. 2, Gov. Folk will dedicate the new $70,000 live stock show pavilion.

5 BALLOONS IN ONE DAY.

Aero Club to Give Big Demonstration.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Sept. 18.—The Aero Club of America is planning the biggest demonstration in ballooning that has ever taken place in America. It is proposed to send up five large balloons here in one day, each balloon carrying from three to five passengers. The latter part of this month has been selected for the time of the ascension.

Those who will make the ascensions are A. N. Chandler and party of Philadelphia, H. Clay Green of the Lambs Club; George P. Butler, Beals C. Wright, Raymond D. Little, Homer W. Hedge, Leo Stevens and Dr. Thomas and party.

TRAVELERS SEE DUEL.

Restaurant Steward and Negro Wound Each Other.

As the result of a cutting and shooting affray, witnessed by a number of travelers, over $5, Emil Crimmer, steward of the Union Station restaurant, and Homer Jones, a negro formerly employed in the restaurant, are in the City Hospital. Both are in a critical condition.

The negro rushed at the steward with a knife. Grimmer fired, and three bullets lodged in the negro's body. Despite the wounds Jones stabbed the white man in the stomach, in the neck and on both arms.

CAT COMPANION LOST.

City Hall Watchman Hunting His Friend.

Have you seen anywhere in the neighborhood of the City Hall a big grey cat that does not answer to the name of Tom? If you have, you will confer a favor on James Clark, watchman on the City Hall from midnight to 8 a. m., by telling him. The cat has been missing for several days and Clark finds the still watches of the night much stiller without him.

The cat chose Clark for a friend way back in 1902, when the City Hall was still unfinished. One night soon after Clark had come on watch he heard a mewing and yowling and scratching that came from the interior of a wall in the City Hall close to where he was patroling. No opening was near and Clark concluded that a stray cat, hunting for pigeons in the upper unfinished stories of the big building, had fallen between the beams and gone down inside the wall. By searching he found the place through which the cat had presumably fallen, two stories above the place where it was mewing. He let down a long piece of twine noosed at the end, lassoed the imprisoned animal and drew it to the top.

From that time the grey cat has followed Clark about the hall with unwavering fidelity.

Almost Persuaded.

William H. McGuire and Annie A. Gallagher, both of whom gave their addresses as St. Louis, asked for a marriage license at Clayton Monday and then changed their minds. When the wishes of the couple were made known Marriage License Clerk Redman produced the necessary papers, which he was filling out when the young woman suddenly left the office and walked into the Courthouse corridor. The groom remarked that he supposed they could not get a license and followed her. The couple were joined by a second woman in the corridor and the trio left the Courthouse in excellent spirits, laughing and talking.

Editorial

"This is the sixth day that I have been in this store since it opened and every day I feel that I am visiting the World's Fair," remarked a lady yesterday. And that lady voiced the sentiment prevailing throughout the city—"To visit the new Grand-Leader is like going to the World's Fair" has been said by tens of thousands.

The store is a veritable exposition, the magnificence and magnitude of which can only be appreciated by several visits. There are hundreds of points of interest and many new and wonderful features, all of which form a fitting background to the vast displays of merchandise which represent the products of all nations.

St. Louisans have never before been able to choose from such an array of new merchandise—and that they are welcoming the opportunity is evidenced by the remarkable business we are doing.

The vast scope of our merchandise displays makes this pre-eminently EVERYBODY'S STORE. Grades of merchandise that appeal to all the people are here.

Asks $5000 for Loss of Dog.

Herman C. Stifel of St. Louis has filed suit in the Lincoln County Circuit Court against George Muck, a farmer living near Troy, Mo., for $5000 for the alleged killing of a valuable dog owned by Stifel. T. N. Dyer has charge of the kennels of several St. Louis men and last September Stifel's dog escaped and was never returned. It is alleged in the petition that Muck shot the dog.

DUNGEON FOR LIARS WHO SPEAK FIBS IN TRUTHFUL KIRKWOOD

If You Have Whoppers, Prepare to Tell Them Now, for the Mayor and Aldermen Intend Soon to Make Prevaricators Gnaw Their Hearts Out in Cells or Pay Heavy Fines

It is going to mean something to be a Kirkwood liar if an ordinance now before the Board of Aldermen becomes a law. Also cost something.

The ordinance is for the regulation and control of lying within the corporate limits of Kirkwood. It provides heavy penalties for prevarication. It will cost $5, at the least calculation, for anybody to toy with the truth. No matter if it is a wobbly little fib, predestined to early death from inanition, the price will be five.

Whoppers will command prices all the way up to $100.

Liars will also run the risk of being locked up from twenty-four hours to six months, according to the size of their lies.

The ordinance was drawn up by Attorney Albert B. Chandler. Mr. Chandler used to be a newspaper reporter.

The ordinance has two sections, one worse than the other so far as the penalties are concerned. It divides Kirkwood liars into two classes, those who tell lies that are not true at the time that they are told, and those who tell lies knowing them to be untrue, in whole or in part. Able lawyers say that this makes a distinction between unconscious liars and conscious liars. Those who lie naturally and spontaneously, without realizing it, may be fined from $5 to $100 and kept in the Kirkwood Jail from 24 hours to 30 days. For those who lie deliberately and premeditatedly, the lowest fine is to be $25 and the liar may be kept in a dungeon 30 days.

Export Duties on Lies.

The introduction of the ordinance has caused a panic. The leading liars of the town are wrought up about it. They meet each other on the street and with pale, set faces, they ask: "What does it mean?"

Plans of reprisal are being talked over. One of them is to prevail upon the city fathers to make the ordinance retroactive, so as to catch the city attorney, who can't deny that he used to publish stories, and the ordinance as it stands covers publication as well as utterance.

The ordinance also picks out originators of lies. Kirkwood has some very fine original thinkers. They have fancy factories where they make thoughts that are beautiful, but oh, so false. They say this is too much. They cannot give up their tobasco and go back to trite, bromide truths. They are afraid they don't know how. Some are packing up to leave town.

The village poet is also worried. He has a poetic license, but the provisions of the ordinance are so drastic that he fears his license will be used as evidence against him.

The town weather prophet is wearing crepe on his hat. If the ordinance is passed, he will be afraid to prophesy. If he should do so and make a bum guess, it would be to the bastile for him.

The fishermen who will not be able to get away are talking of forming a mutual aid society to help each other out on the heavy fines which they will have to pay. They don't expect anything else. They would rather pay fines and go to Jail than die, and it would kill them to suddenly stop telling fish stories.

To these and others who have the habit so badly that they cannot reform, the ordinance will mean many sacrifices and much self-denial. They will have to do without other things. Some of them may be forced into bankruptcy.

The cheerful liar is in th edumps.

The journeyman liar in good standing will probably advocate the open shop, so as not to attract too much attention.

The occasional liar hopes to be able to take a little flyer in untruths now and then without being caught.

One unfortunate thing about it is that the meanest liar of them all, the mental reservation liar, will probably be able to violate the law with impunity, because it will be impossible to catch him with the goods on him.

Of course, the ordinance may not pass, but quick action is the best bet. The tip to Kirkwood people who have lies to tell is to tell them now. Don't keep them in storage. It will cost something to get rid of them after the anti-liar law goes into effect.

Several kaffee klatches planned for the late autumn will be moved up and pulled off before the next Council meeting. This is to avoid embarrassing complications with the Village Marshal.

Careful, scrupulous, conscientious liars are the only ones not dismayed by the ordinance. These have always felt that the profession was overcrowded, and have yearned for greater exclusiveness. They see their dreams of an aristocracy of liars about to come true. With the prices so high that plebeian liars will have to turn their attention to something else or move to Jail, they expect to have a circle that will be really select.

The hoi polloi have one recourse. When the pressure becomes too strong to bear, they can go outside the city limits and lie as much as they want to, and the Kirkwood constabulary will be powerless. Some of the more sanguine among them are even looking forward to the establishment of a regular rendezvous for respectable liars in reduced circumstances beyond the borders of the city, where they can meet at intervals and swap a few lies.

The constitutionality of the law may be attacked. There are said to be a few scientific and artistic liars in the town. These may claim that a law in restraint of science and in repression of art is against public policy.

Even the ministers are agitated. They say that if the law is passed and enforced, they will sometimes have to decline to preach funeral sermons for some of the best people of the town. It would never do, they say, to have a policeman rush in when the fictitious virtues of the departed were being dwelt upon and lug the preacher away to the lockup.

There is no obituary loophole in the ordinance. There will be no way to get over, under or around it. It is horse high, pig tight and bull strong. It applies to any person, persons or corporation who "shall utter, publish, circulate, repeat or originate, or who shall aid, assist, connive at or have part in the utterance, publication, repetition or origination of any report or statement, verbal or documentary, which shall not be true and veracious at the time of utterance," and so on.

Notice that it must not only be true, but also veracious.

The ordinance is defective in that it does not explain how a corporation that tells a lie is going to be locked up.

At this writing it seems that "figgers" will be the only things in Kirkwood that will be entirely safe from fine and imprisonment after the anti-liar ordinance goes into effect. They never lie.

But liars figure.

The ordinance surprised and stunned the Aldermen at Monday night's meeting. The double bow knot legal phraseology put them into a trance. After Mayor Ochterbeck had said that he thought the ordinance was a good thing, a motion to defer action to the next meeting carried.

City Attorney Chandler denied Tuesday that the ordinance originated in his fertile brain. There was a general impression that Mayor Ochterbeck sustained paternal relations to it, but he said that was a mistake.

"I did not have the ordinance drawn," he said. "I know who did, but I promised not to tell on him. He is a member of the Board of Aldermen. The impression that I received in conversation with him was that it was not inspired by things that have been said in connection with the lid fight in Kirkwood. He is not a joker. He means it. His idea seems to be that such an ordinance would improve general conditions along the lines of veracity."

KATY PAINT SHOPS AT SEDALIA BURNED

Eleven Coaches and General Manager's Private Car Destroyed—Loss $120,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 18.—The entire paint shops at the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad shops burned between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning. The loss is $120,000, covered by blanket insurance.

The origin is not known.

Eleven coaches and cars were burned. Among them was the private car "O 1" of Vice-President and General Manager A. A. Allen, which was in the shops for repairs.

FROM PORTER TO CHIEF OF POLICE; KIELY'S LIFE STORY

Suspended Official's Life, as Related, in Much Detail, to Board—Makes Mayor Attest Manner in Which Prince Henry Honored Him—Says Maroney Maligned Him.

HERE is the life history of Chief Kiely up to the time of his enforced resignation related with marked attention to detail by himself at Monday afternoon's session of the Police Board. Kiely was on the witness stand from 2:35 until 6 p. m., when the board adjourned, his testimony still unfinished.

"My name is Mathew Kiely. I reside at 3628 Dickson street. My occupation is that of suspended Chief of Police.

"I was born in Cherry Grove Parish, Druin Townland, County of Limerick, Ireland, my mother informed me, March 8, 1852. I am now 54 years old.

"My parents had seven children. I had a brother and five sisters. I was the fifth in the family. In my boyhood I worked in the field with my father, who died when I was 7 years old. From that time on I was the sole support of my mother.

"I left Ireland March 26, 1870, and, arriving at New York, found employment there as a coal weigher for the Metropolitan Gas Co. I remained there two years.

Served Hotels Three Years.

"My sole education was received in the parochial schools in my native country, which are similar to the public schools of America.

"In 1872 I came to St. Louis and obtained employment at the Laclede Hotel, being placed in charge of the storeroom. In 1874 I went to work as porter in the Southern Hotel, and a year later went back to the Laclede at an increase of wages.

"June 22, 1875, I was appointed a member of the St. Louis Police Department, commencing duty eight days later as a patrolman in the old Second District, bounded at that time by Chouteau avenue on the north, Osceola street on the south, the river on the east and Jefferson avenue on the west. I walked various beats in that district until the first week of February, 1881.

"My police work in the Second District included the cleaning out of the Duncan Island gang, a band of murderous thieves, and the Arsenal street gang, which was composed of many of the most notorious crooks that ever infested this city.

"Among the captures I made were—"

At this point Prosecutor Williams objected to the witness reciting in detail the list of captures he had made on the ground that such testimony would be immaterial to the hearing. The objection was sustained.

Preferred to Wear Uniform.

"After walking the Arsenal street beat a year and a half I was promoted to the rank of detective and transferred to headquarters, under Chief McDonough. I found that it was more expensive to be a detective than a policeman, and at my request I was put back in uniform.

"I was next assigned to walk a beat at Seventh and St. Charles streets, at that time the most notorious neighborhood in the city. Gamblers, thugs and lawbreakers of all descriptions infested the St. Charles street district. My orders were to clean out the neighborhood, which I did. I had no special hours there, and frequently worked as late as 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning.

"In October, 1881, I was transferred to Sixth and Market streets, where Jack Mooney and Tom Kelly, notorious police characters, had their headquarters. It was there that Patsy Early murdered William Loudermann. I cleaned out that district.

"I was promoted to a sergeantcy March 24, 1882. The promotion was made by Samuel Cupples and E. C. Simmons, then members of the board, after they had inquired into my past record. I remained a Sergeant until made a Captain May 20, 1890. As Sergeant I walked the residence precinct of Central District, which then extended from Sixth to Fourteenth, Market street to Chouteau avenue, and each season was especially assigned to handle the Exposition crowds and arrest pickpockets.

"I arrested many dangerous characters, among them"—

Again Prosecutor Williams objected to details of arrests, and the objection was sustained.

In reply to a question put by his counsel, Kiely then said he was married and that 10 children had been born of the marriage. Resuming the story of his police career, Kiely said:

"As a sergeant I walked in the old 'Bloody Third' District, now the Fourth District, which included 'Kerry Patch,' at that time the toughest district in the city.

"As a captain I commanded the North Market Street District from May, 1890, until October, 1895.

"I was appointed assistant chief Oct. 17, 1895. I say 'appointed' because the law at that time did not provide for an assistant chief. The position was created by the board. During the last 18 months of the late Maj. Harrigan's life I acted as Chief, because Harrigan was in poor health and physically unable to discharge his duties.

"Speaking of my important assignments, I now wish to go back to the time when I was a sergeant. March 26, 1886, I was detailed to start freight trains in the Eighteenth street yards. The railroads had been tied up for three weeks by a strike, and I started the first train out of the yards at that time. I got into a fight with one of the strike leaders—Pat Bunty. He threw a switch in an attempt to derail a train. I came in contact with him, and we mixed it. After a struggle I landed him in police headquarters. It was one of the worst strikes St. Louis ever had. It was called the southwestern railway strike.

Caught Every Gambler.

"After that I was assigned to a crusade against gambling by Mr. Simmons. I carried warrants in my pockets and arrested every gambler in town, breaking up all the vice dens. I put the gamblers in jail, and they remained there until pardoned out some way or other, I don't know how. I remember, though, that their release from jail caused Mr. Simmons to resign from the board.

"I remember the street car strike of 1900. I was captain at that time at Seventh and Carr streets, and I was assigned first to one division and then to another, and I opened up the lines successfully.

"I didn't have much difficulty until I opened up the Lindell division and then I had to disperse a mob of 2000. I first spoke to the mob and told them I meant business, then I gave the orders for inspection of pistols, my men being lined up. I addressed the mob again and when they would not disperse, I suddenly wheeled my men and charged into them, and they scattered on all sides.

"I was commissioned Chief Feb. 26, 1901."

His Phrase Brings Laugh.

Attorney Saunders: What would you like to say about your record as Chief of Police?"

"If you would ask me what the condition of the Police Department was when I was commissioned Chief of Police I would answer—" there President Stewart and other members of the board laughed heartily—"I found the department in a demoralized condition. I reorganized it. I appointed drill masters. I inaugurated the police review. I recommended to the Police Board that medals be awarded to officers making the best arrests. I also recommended district medals for target practice and medals for the best marksmanship of the whole department. All these suggestions were adopted."

Saunders: What else do you desire to call attention to?

"Well, to go back when I was acting Chief, I went to a convention of the Chiefs of Police of the country, and when I returned I recommended the Bertillon system of identification. In that connection I want to say that in 1904 at the World's Fair I saw in the Scotland Yard exhibit the finger print system, and I sent a man to master the idea, and now we have both the finger and Bertillion systems combined."

"Tell how you policed the World's Fair period," said Saunders.

"I was complimented on the manner in which I handled the crowds. The board adopted a resolution commending me for my work."

Prosecutor Williams interrupted with: "I submit that all this is improper."

"All right, cut it out," said Kiely, squirming in his seat.

Kiely then described how he had charge of the police arrangements in connection with the reception of Prince Henry of Prussia.

How He Won Red Eagle.

"Did you meet Prince Henry?" asked Saunders.

"Did I meet Prince Henry? I did, and if the board will permit me I will tell the story."

President Stewart looked bored, but said Kiely could tell the story if he would be brief.

"I had all my men lined up on either side of the path from his train to Market street. When Prince Henry passed through this double line and came out on the street he noticed me and he said to Mayor Wells:

"'Who is that officer?' His Honor answered: 'Oh, that's Chief Kiely, Chief of these police.' Then the Prince said he wanted to meet me, and the Mayor beckoned to me and I rode up on my horse, and the Prince said it was the finest body of men he had ever seen in the world."

Kiely, who had been standing while relating this experience and making gestures, turned to Mayor Wells and said:

"Is that correct, Mayor?"

Mayor Wells looked embarassed, but nodded confirmation.

In answer to Attorney Saunders' question Kiely then said it was true that Prince Henry had conferred upon him the Order of the Red Eagle. He admitted this stiffly.

Kiely then said he was recommissioned Chief of Police February 27, 1905. The board was then composed of Commissioners Stwart, Fristoe, Hanlon, Blong and Mayor Wells.

"After my recommission I enforced all the laws, carried out all the instructions of the board and of the Governor, and my relations were cordial with the board."

Saunders: When did you first have and friction with the board?

"The first friction I knew anything about I learned through the press. The evening papers began opposing me."

"Were your relations with the board cordial until Maroney became a member?" asked Saunders.

"They were."

"Can you recall any conversation you had with Maroney prior to the time he went on the board?"

"He visited my office the evening before I was to select a secretary. He brought with him a friend, Charles Scholl, and asked me to appoint him."

"Did you appoint him?"

"I did not."

"Did Maroney ever visit you after that?"

"He did not."

Had No Chance to Help.

Kiely was asked if the board did not request his assistance in the graft investigation. He replied:

"I was always ready and willing to aid them in every way, but they slighted me. They conducted their inquiry in private. I was not consulted. All I knew of the investigation was what I read in the newspapers.'

Kiely was asked if he inquired of the board members when they requested his resignation February last, if there were any charges against him. He said:

"To answer that question properly I will have to describe the incidents of that meeting.

"I was called into the board room between 9:30 and 10 o'clock the night of Feb. 2, and President Stewart said to me: 'Chief Kiely, the board will be very thankful if you will tender your resignation.'

"I did not know whether he was joking or not until I caught his eye and saw he was serious. 'This is rather sudden,' I replied. 'I would like time to consider the matter.'

"President Stewart said: 'Well, I guess five or six minutes will be sufficient.'

"I told him, 'No, it will take longer than that.'

"I then asked if there were any charges against me.' Mr. Stewart replied that there was none. I then asked which members wanted my resignation. I asked each member separately, and found that all of them wanted it. I said:

"'Well, I see the board does really want it, and under such circumstances it would be unpleasant for me to serve. I am willing to meet the board half way on this proposition.'

"'I will tender my resignation on condition that you make me Captain of one of the districts.' President Stewart leaned over and whispered to Maroney. Maroney shook his head, and then Stewart said the board would not listen to any compromise. I then said: 'That being the case, I cannot resign at this time. I prefer to be dismissed from the force. The eyes of the public are upon me, and if I were to resign, the people would think I was implicated in the graft charges.' That's about all that occurred at that meeting as I remember it."

"Did you have any quarrel with Maroney that night?" asked Attorney Saunders.

"Yes, I said to Maroney: 'Why is it you won't give me a captaincy? You ought to be satisfied to be getting my scalp as Chief. Do you want to send me out into the cold to starve? I have a big family, and I haven't saved any considerable money, and in this Police Department there is no pension fund. If I were crooked I would have plenty of money.'

"Maroney stopped me and asked: 'Why do you address me? Why don't you address other members of the board?'

"I told him it was because he had said things about me which were not true. He asked me what those things were. I told him that he had accused me of deserting my post during the Democratic primaries, March 4, 1904, when I went to Hot Springs, and also that I had spoken disrespectfully of Gov. Folk. I have explained that Gov. Folk incident, that it was all a joke. Does the board want me to go into it again?'"

Kiely was told that he need not go over the matter again. He then devoted himself to a denial of the Rea and June charges, going into lengthy detail. He introduced department records to show that the June transfer was made according to customary method. He did not know of June's past record, he said. In regard to the charge that he knew of Rea's immoral conduct he stated that 20 years ago the members of the department joked about Rea being a "lady's man," but that he paid no attention to the talk.

Kiely said that if Lieut. McKenna was present when he (Kiely) spoke to Maroney about Rea, McKenna must have been under a table, as he did not see him.

SOCIETY GIRL WEDS BASEBALL PLAYER

Member of Topeka's Exclusive Set Elopes With Outfielder and Saloon Keeper.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 18.—George Hurlburt, center fielder of the Topeka Western Association baseball team, which leads in the pennant race, and part owner in a saloon at 410 Kansas avenue, was yesterday secretly married to Miss Hazel Mulvane, 20 years old, a beautiful girl, daughter of J. G. Mulvane, and cousin of John R. Mulvane, capitalist, and Davis Mulvane, prominent politician.

The wedding of Miss Mulvane, member of the capital's most exclusive social circles, to a ballplayer and keeper of an unlicensed saloon, has caused a profound sensation because of the disparity in social stations and the fact that it was not known they were even acquainted.

Hurlburt is 35 and has been playing in the minor leagues of this section for years. He broke into the big leagues once or twice, but lacked class, but is a star in the minors.

It was at the ball park that he met Miss Mulvane. She is an athletic girl, especially fond of horses and dogs. She is known as an excellent horsewoman in Topeka, Kansas City, St. Louis and Eastern cities, having ridden at many horse shows.

A frequent attendant at the ball games, particularly since Topeka took the lead in the race, she admired the skill of the lithe, young center fielder and evinced a desire to meet him. Clandestine meetings followed, and, knowing the opposition that would follow if their plans became known, they planned to wed secretly.

Miss Mulvane spent the forenoon yesterday shopping with her mother, and shortly after luncheon met Hurlburt by appointment. Hurlburt did not wear any coat and Miss Mulvane was dressed in her shopping clothes. They drove to the home of the Rev. J. W. Reed, a Methodist Episcopal clergyman, wher they were married, and were aboard Union Pacific train before it becam known that the ceremony had taken place.

When Dr. Mulvane, who has been practicing medicine here for over thirty-five years, heard of the marriage, several hours after the ceremony, he was dumfounded, but said that there was nothing to do except to forgive and forget. Mrs. Mulvane was prostrated. She declined to admit visitors and would not say anything about the marriage.

Hurlburt is connected with his brother in the saloon business. The latter formerly ran a saloon in Kansas City, Kan., but had to leave when C. W. Trickett, the Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, began his campaign against saloons. He came to Topeka and took his brother into partnership in the "club" at 410 Kansas avenue. Hurlburt managed the place, it is said, and when business boomed frequently donned the white apron and assisted in slaking the thirst of his patrons.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch has over ONE-HALF MILLION more readers than any other newspaper west of the Mississippi.

Eddie Foy Thus Stamps Himself on a Post-Dispatch Cartoonist's Mind

He's Making Big Hit in "The Earl and the Girl"—Amusement Notes.

Eddie Foy is making what seems to be the best hit of his life in "The Earl and the Girl" at the Garrick Theater this week. He has introduced a lot of new funny business in the role of Jim Cheese, dog-trainer and mock Earl, and his impersonations of John D. Rockefeller, President Roosevelt and the Czar of Russia bring down the house. Also does a new song, "The Bird on Nellie's Hat," score a big laughing bit. But he declares that he made a false start in St. Louis, all the same.

"The last time I was here," says Foy, "the cars on your different lines were distinguished by their color. Well, this time, when I reached St. Louis on Sunday morning, I wanted to go straight out to see some friends who live on Compton Heights, so I crossed over from Union Station to Eighteenth street to catch a red Compton car. There didn't seem to be any trouble along the line, but I'm blamed if anything but yellow cars came along. I reckon I waited there an hour, rubbernecking at every approaching car in the far distance, hoping to see a red Compton, but not a one showed up, and finally I indulged in lamentations on the subject.

"'Why ain't there no red Compton cars running this morning?' I complained to another man who happened to stop on the corner. 'I don't want to pass the rest of my life waiting for one!'

"'Hello, Rube, is that you?' answered the stranger. 'Well, now, Uncle Jost, you'd better make a quick get-away from this neighborhood or somebody'll sell you a gold brick the first thing you know. Red Compton cars—say, there ain't been such a thing here in ages! Get wise—get wise, young fellow, and read the signs on the cars—they don't play 'em by colors now!'

"And I ducked into the next car that came along."

Columbia's New Bill.

Although Miss Minnie Dupree, assisted by Robert L. Dempster, in a clever sketch entitled "When the Earthquake Came," is the topliner of the Columbia's new bill, which opened yesterday afternoon, the big hit of the week is made by Miss Artie Hall, "the genuine Georgia girl," in negro songs. This is because the Hall act is a true bit of "nature in the raw," as genuine a presentment of the Southern negress as the stage knows, and the singer has a voice so typically African, melodious and plaintive as to be astonishing to those familiar with the type pictured. Also is Miss Hall a genuine actress of the sincerest emotional range—if somebody can only build a play for her with the tragic figure of a young negro woman as its central character she'll make a hit long to be remembered. Other excellent features of the new bill are Hennings, Lewis and Hennings in "Mixed Drinks," Fred Lennox and company in the one-act George Ade sketch, "On His Uppers;" the truly marvelous Kaufmann troupe of bicyclists, and Caron and Herbert, comedy acrobats. The imitations by Katherine Nugent, who was so good as Flora Wiggins in "The College Widow," are not strikingly suggestive of their principals—Miss Nugent should have an original comedy sketch of her own. Murry K. Hill in songs and talks is the weakest feature on the bill.

West End Heights Vaudeville.

The vaudeville bill which closes the West End Heights season was put on for the last week last night and proved pleasing. Miss Nellie Turnwall, soprano soloist, was well received, and the Gans-Nelson fight pictures and Mlle. Esmathilde's act made a favorable impression.

Closing Week at Alps.

Special musical programs rendered by the Alps Orchestra under the direction of Nahan Franko are the attraction at the Alps this week, which closes the Alps season. The farewell concert will be given Saturday night and on Sunday afternoon a testimonial benefit concert to Mr. Franko will be given at the Odeon. Mr. Franko will be the soloist on that occasion. He will lead an orchestra of 60 players and a program of uncommon attractiveness has been arranged.

Valet Cut in Fight.

William J. Underwood, a negro, who says he is valet to George J. Kobusch of 2240 St. Louis avenue, president of the St. Louis Car Co., was badly cut in a fight with two negroes at Jefferson avenue and Pine street Tuesday. Underwood has a long razor slash across the forehead, another across the throat and several scratches on his face and left hand. He says the attack was unprovoked. The assailants, whom he does not know but says he can identify, escaped. He was taken to the City Hospital.

St. Louis has more Post-Dispatch readers every day than it has homes.

FAMOUS' MAGNIFICENT AUTUMN OPENING

Is Attended by Thousands of Delighted St. Louisans.

From the very moment the doors were swung open Monday morning up to this writing Famous, Broadway and Morgan, was thronged with thousands of eager spectators, who came to view the elegant fall opening displays on exhibit in every department of this progressive establishment. All Famous' previous efforts are outdone in this remarkable showing. Every section of Famous has donned its holiday attire—the beauty of the new goods, the rich blending of the fall colors, the tastiness of the decorations—all add a festal air to the surroundings. The magnitude of the new fall stocks, the immensity of the assortments and the thorough desirability of the merchandise exhibited were very favorably commented upon.

The very popular Women's Ready-to-Wear Section on the third floor, with its thousands of new, crisp and fascinating suits, skirts, coats, waists, petticoats, etc., seemed to be one of the main centers of attraction. Thousands of charmed visitors marveled at the practicability and elegance of the garments exhibited. Every new and correct effect that Dame Fashion has decreed as proper for this autumn's service, is here and modeled in strict accordance with the most authentic style thoughts.

The Millinery Section, decked out in gala attire, was the scene of intense activity. Here, also, thousands were delighted, studying fashion's latest fancies—artistic creations of the cleverest Paris and New York modistes as well as exquisite conceptions fresh from the adept fingers of Famous' talented milliners were lavishly shown.

The Corset and Muslin Underwear Sections also came in for a liberal share of attention, the splendid new stocks attracting many admiring spectators.

The new, rich silks and dress goods, linens, ribbons, neckwear, art linens, laces, embroideries, belts, leather novelties, hosiery, underwear, shoes, etc., were all beautifully displayed and Famous is certainly to be congratulated on the elegance and character of their new stocks.

The store throughout was elaborately decorated. Live palms and sweet-singing canaries were everywhere.

Anton's clever string quintet was in attendance from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m., rendering the latest popular music.

As has been Famous' custom for many seasons to immediately acquaint its patrons with the new stocks, a series of exceptional opening day specials were offered, and judging by the tremendous crowds and enthusiastic buying in every section, St. Louisans evidently appreciate the extreme saving chances these specials present.

The opening continues today, Tuesday. A series of new opening specials have been prepared, and as an additional feature Famous will give two Eagle Trading Stamps instead of the usual one all day Tuesday with every cash purchase of 10 cents and over as a resistless inducement for everyone to attend Famous' magnificent opening, which is on a much grander and broader scale than this splendid establishment has ever before attempted.

A surprise party was given Miss Anna Binz by her brother and sister Thursday, the occasion being her birthday. Those present were: Messrs.—M. Dinzler, Acton, Branson, Begtol, F. Binz, Simrock, Patton, Clark, Thalgott, A. Gray, E. Meyer, Paul Binz.

Misses—Anna Binz, Alice Brunacker, Paula Brunacker, Kate Binz, Lily Crowley, Mary Binz, Eva Frey, Martha Severence, Margie Hawkins, May McCann, M. Hughes, A. Waldron.

IN SOCIETY

Notices of social events intended for publication in the Sunday Post-Dispatch should reach the Post-Dispatch office not later than noon of the Friday preceding.

The marriage of Miss Genevieve Dionysius, the eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry J. Dionysius of Kirkwood, to Frank M. McDonnell of that place will be one of the early fall weddings. The bride has chosen Oct. 4 for her nuptials and the marriage will be solemnized in St. Peter's Catholic Church at 6:30 mass. Owing to the early hour set for the wedding the young couple has dispensed with wedding invitation. The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Mamie Dionisius, and the bridegroom by his cousin, Mark J. McDonnell of Pueblo, Colo. The couple will leave immediately to spend their honeymoon in the West.

The engagement of Miss Bertha Semple and Walter Greaves of New York was announced by Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Semple of Westminster place at the summer home at Cape Cod. The wedding will be quietly celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents early in November.

A pretty romance of childhood sweethearts will end in the marriage of Miss Hermann to Charles G. Eyermann, Tuesday afternoon by Pastor Nollau at the residence of the bride, 1328 South Seventh street. The ceremony at 3 o'clock will be witnessed by members of the immediate family. Miss Henrietta Gerlack and Edward Neubauer will serve as bridemaid and groomsman. Mr. Eyermann is employed in the Water Department at the City Hall. After a short Eeastern honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Eyermann will be at home at 1328 South Seventh street.

The engagement of Miss Sarah Leivy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Leivy of 1221 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, and Emanuel Wachtel of Louisville has been announced. The marriage will take place in the middle of October and will be attended only by members of both families. Miss Leivy is a graduate of the East St. Louis High School. The Wachtel home will be in Louisville.

Mrs. D. Cramer of 5043 North Market street will give a cardinal luncheon Friday in honor of Miss Harvey Cantwell and Addison Sturgeon of Vermont, who will be married Saturday. The dining room will be entirely in red for the occasion and red flowers and red foliage plants will be used in the decorations. Covers will be laid for 10. The bride, who is a niece of Mrs. Bowles Hoffman, is a Hosmer Hall graduate. The attendants will be Miss Ena Bordeaux, maid of honor, and James Campbell best man.

Mrs. D. Graham McCarron of Theodosia avenue entertained with a linen shower Saturday in honor of Miss Irene Healey of Stewart place, who was married to Thomas J. Walsh Monday. Among those present were: Misses Irene Healey, Angela Healy, Lillian Gavin, Nellie Qualey, Maude Gardeidler, Ella Miller, Jennie Miller, Blanche Hogan, Frances Hogan, Josephine Carten, Julia Carten, Julia Burgan, Nellie Walsh, Mammie Walsh, Keath, Margarete Scarry, Julia Scarry, Adel Scarry, Rose Carroll, Cecelia Conklin, Markarette McCarron, Nettie McCarron, Florence Hausman; Mmes. J. Mcnliken, William Murphy, W. B. Bachof, Kohler, M. Sequin, C. Dougherty, J. J. Walsh, M. Burchfield, J. L. McCarron, L. McCarron, R. Ruer, R. J. Lynch, R. S. Miller and D. Graham McCarron.

A quiet but pretty wedding was that of Miss Margaret Doll of the South Side to Richard Harrison, which was among the events of Wednesday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Stephan of Marvin Memorial M. E. Church at the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. F. Doll of 2702 Missouri avenue. The bride and groom left for their honeymoon tour, and upon their return will reside in the South Side. The bride was attended by Miss Carrie Doll, and Phillip Kaber was the bridegroom's best man.

A pretty home wedding was celebrated Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin, 3420 School street, the parties being Lester W. Martin and Miss Kathryn J. Stolberg of 3513 Evans avenue. The rooms were beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers.

At 7 o'clock the wedding march was played by S. C. Kelley and the bridal party came in from an adjoining room, Mr. Martin being accompanied by A. F. McIntire as best man and the bride on the arm of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Stolberg, who gave her away.

The bride carried a large bouquet of flowers. The bride is a member of one of the old St. Louis French families, her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Stolberg, being a Deuvenger, one of the first settlers here when St. Louis was first laid out as a city.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin left on the midnight train for a visit to Chicago and the lakes. They will be at home after Oct. 1 at 3420 School street.

Mrs. H. W. Kreeger of Cleveland avenue gave a birthday party to her daughter, Lalle, last Friday evening. Present were:

Misses—Georgia Meyer, Florence Stifel, Lilda Schleicher, Geraldine Dwyer, Martha Meyerburg, Edna B. Dienst, Lalle Kroeger, Dorothy Bluthardt, Edna Sensenbrenner, Irene Nealon, Evelyn Hickel.

Messrs.—Ernest Krutzsch, Roland Reipholdt, Carl Meyer, Wm. Kranke Jr., Homer R. Heege, R. W. Rombauer, A. G. Stifel, Harry Kroeger, Harry Stocker, Frank Schleicher, Oliver Hickel, Clarence Krieger.

The Dearle Club gave its last outing of the season Sunday. An enjoyable day was spent. Among the members present were:

Misses—Ida Eschmann, Julia Rheinlander, Elsie Barckley, Helen Bokelu, Raelia Meyer, Hannah Rubelmann, Adele Homes, May Bivoux.

Messrs.—Angelo Davotte, Dr. Anton Schuler, Rudie Rheinlander, Harry Meyer, Gustave Stamm, Will Stamm, Walter Keller, Chas. Kasselbaum.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Noack of Fulton avenue celebrated their thirty-eighth wedding anniversary Sept. 13. The afternoon was spent in music and dancing, after which supper was served. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Hunning, Hollman, Steinbeck, Bangard, Schrader, Evers, Spear, Mundsberg, Reinning, Rottman, Bush, Stefner, Murray, Koppman, Erchanf, Mekan, Mohr, Scharr, Sleeper, Mueller, Schowalter, Drehhof, Pape, Miller, Schlueter, Nicoll, Reinwart, Smith, Lange, Winge and Mr. and Mrs. Von Borne.

Miss Laura Miller of 3811 Hartford street and Thomas A. Gunn of 3158 Park avenue were married at the rectory of St. Kevin's Church Tuesday evening by Rev. William L. Shea. Miss Mayme Malton acted as bride maid and Joseph Wisman served as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Gunn departed for a two weeks' visit in the West, after which they will be at home to friends at 3427 Park avenue.

A birthday party was given in honor of Miss Agnes Walsh at her home, 1428 Papin street, Monday evening. Those present were: Messrs. and Mmes. B. Fox, A. Walsh; Messrs. Dillon, Luvier, Hopkins, Canteny, Atterberry, Beatson, Tierney; Misses Alive Dillon, Annie Nicholson, Maggie Bovel, Alice Walsh, Blanch Hawkins, Nathlie Blake, Agnes Walsh.

The Entre Nous Club, composed of 12 girls, gave a lawn party at the home of Miss Helena Gruenhut, 2847 St. Vincent avenue, Tuesday evening. The lawn was decorated to represent the garden scene of the "Mikado." Those present were: Misses Frieda Abrams, Hattie Meyer, Belle Shrbal, Ray Abrams, Helena Gruenhut, Charlotte Sonnenschein, Libbie Lyons, Selma Haas, Mamie Isaacs, Julia Singer, Blanch Seidel, Leona Caplan, Hattie Jacobs, Emilie Caplan, Hilda Warner, Dore by Caplan, Edna Loebner, Alma Haas, Jessie Fox, Tillie Saft, Jennie Nassauer, Sarah Saft, Roe Burg, Jennie Goldstein, Rose Crohn, Eva Davidson, Fosie Steiger, Hattie Steiger, Hilda Stampfer, Gertrude Weil, Sophie Grunhut, Mildred Paul; Messrs. Woman's Nightmare

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful and pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

Mother's Friend

WHY WOMEN SUFFER.

Women have so much to go through in life that it is a pity there is so much needless suffering from backache, headache, dizziness, languor and other common aches and ills of kidney complaint.

Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new life and strength to thousands of women afflicted in this way.

Women are prone to kidney trouble. They have so much indoor work to do, so much lifting, bending and stooping; they are bound by custom to tight, heavy clothing. They get little outdoor exercise, and any little cold may bring on a kidney weakness.

Don't worry if you feel tired and dragged out—if you have a backache, headache, dizzy spells, faintness and lack ambition. Don't think it some trouble peculiar to the sex. Men suffer in the same way when they have kidney trouble.

Ask yourself this question: "Are my kidneys well?" The condition of the kidney secretions may give you an answer. If affected it is time to begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Delay may run you into Bright's disease or diabetes.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a special medicine for the kidneys, and do not affect the bowels or any other organs. There is not a particle of poison in them—just the pure roots and herbs that nature intended for curing the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of kidney trouble. Read the testimony of a woman of your own city, perhaps a neighbor.

ST. LOUIS TESTIMONY.

Mrs. J. L. Weber of 2907 Caroline st., says: "I have no idea what caused my back to ache for four or five months, nor do I know why during the latter part of that time it became more severe, but I noticed that if I contracted the slightest cold the aching was increased and often, too often to be pleasant. I was scarcely able to get around to perform the ordinary household duties. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised I procured a box at the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and took them according to directions. They stopped the aching across my loins and strengthened the lame back in a very short time. I am only too pleased to add my endorsement to others in St. Louis."

CANADIAN LABOR POLITICAL FACTOR

Trades Congress Considers Formation of New Party to Enforce Recognition.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 18.—The Trades Congress, which commenced its sessions in Victoria today with representatives of 400 unions and 25 members present, will consider the question of the entry into politics, a resolution to that end having been introduced yesterday afternoon by E. C. Gray, president of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council.

This resolution urges the formation of a Canadian labor party with a combined national, provincial and municipal platform, whose candidates will be sworn not to accept office in any government without consent of the recognized labor members. The platform of the labor party will include old age pensions, conciliation and arbitration acts, restrictions of coolie immigration, public ownership of railways, telegraph, telephones, waterworks and lighting plants; government fire and life insurance, etc. A resolution was also brought forward which asked that the postal staff of the Dominion be increased to give employes an eight-hour day with increased wages.

Hon. Mr. Templeman, Minister of Inland Revenue, and Premier McBride, this afternoon addressed the Congress as guests of the delegates.

A Hopeful View.

From the Washington Star.

"Do you think America will take a leading place in art, as it has in commerce?"

"I shouldn't be surprised," said Mr. Dustin Stax. "We captains of industry are just waking up to the great increases of value that are to be gotten in works of art if you only know how to buy."

BUSCH SUGGESTS LIMITED FRANCHISE

Will Accept 50-Year Term if Repeal Clause Is Withdrawn.

CAN'T DEPRESS TRACKS

Car Rates Are as Low as Estimates Justify, He Declares.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We presented the Manufacturers' Railway bill, which has passed the Council and is pending in the House, believing that it is calculated to solve the commercial problem of South St. Louis upon terms acceptable to the city and to us. If that bill contains unfair advantage to us it should be defeated. If it does not afford us fair protection, we should not accept it. We do not come either as philanthropists or as beggars. We have been at pains to submit a measure whose chief guaranty of performance may be the mutual interest of the public and ourselves.

In its main features the bill has met, as we believe, with public approval. The only opposition of consequence has been directed at the following points:

1. It has been insisted that the tracks should be depressed throughout the city limits. We have yielded to this demand at every important street crossing. This will necessarily destroy much adjoining property for manufacturing purposes. The additional cost to us is in itself great; and we are obviously put at a disadvantage compared with other roads. Furthermore, we are always subject to any general regulation which the city may at any time enforce against railroads. If, therefore, without such general regulation, a depression of our tracks at all crossings is now prescribed, we shall be compelled to abandon the project, finding it inexpedient under existing conditions to assume so large and disproportionate an expense.

2. A larger compensation to the city is another demand that has been urged. The sum fixed by the bill is nearly double the amount that it now paid annually by all other steam roads for privileges within the city limits. This fact speaks for itself. We do not ask to be made beneficiaries of past mistakes, but we submit we should be left in something like a fair competitive position.

3.—The rates for hauling cars have been attacked. We have carefully considered this feature of the bill. Our conclusion is that we cannot accept the responsibilities of the proposed franchise on easier terms to the shipper. Experience may reduce these terms, but we are not willing to bind ourselves to lower rates.

4.—The chief objection appears to be that the bill proposes a perpetual franchise, which it is urged should be limited to 50 years. We are advised that the final clause of the bill, which reserves the right to the city at any time to amend or repeal the franchise, absolutely protects the city in this respect. Perhaps discussion will lead to no result, but we are prepared to put this question to a practical test. If the city will withdraw the final clause referred to we will accept the 50-year limitation. That will limit the franchise as desired and will give us the necessary protection in the meantime.

Finally, we want to say that the railway does not need this franchise, and its officers and stockholders do not care to antagonize public sentiment to obtain it.

It is admitted that the present growth of St. Louis calls for acre upon acre of ground available for manufacturing purposes.

The territory in question is undeveloped and has for many years been neglected. Having made part of it accessible to railroad communication, we are prepared to extend this work, provided the people and their representatives approve the project, and are willing to have us undertake the work upon terms that in our judgment justify the undertaking.

If the decision should go against us, no harm will be done. We have made no reckless expenditures. Our real estate investments, made in anticipation of a successful issue, will, we believe, yield fair returns in any event. We are not objects of sympathy. In view of the marvelous growth of our city, we feel that our energies will not lack employment. If not in South St. Louis, railroad development, no doubt in some other locality or kind of business.

It is therefore for the city to consult its own interests and to determine whether or not we are to be charged with this particular work. The bill has been under consideration for a long period of time; we have submitted our side, and shall not press it further. Whatever the decision may be, we shall hope to enjoy the good will of the community with whose prosperity we have always sought to link our own success.

SPLENDID ORIENTAL DISPLAY AT BARR'S 57TH FALL OPENING

One Rug Worth $10,000 in Large Collection Obtained From the Best of Persian Makers—Every Nation Drawn On for the Daintiest in Decorative Needlework.

The fifty-seventh annual fall opening of the William Barr Dry Goods Co. began Tuesday and will continue through Wednesday. The display is the most complete and artistic ever shown in the more than half-century of the store's existence. A number of lines are the largest and richest ever brought to the West. The rug and carpet department contains varieties from the most inexpensive mats to a magnificent Persian rug costing $10,000. The stock of Oriental rugs is the largest in the history of the store.

Two of them are nearly 200 years old and were made before the art of rug weaving began to decline in the Orient. There are not many of their equals outside private collections, museums and the homes of Oriental rulers and chiefs. Both are of Persian silk and were bought from poverty-stricken sheiks of that country. They have that peculiar and unequaled quality of the genuine Persian rug that they become softer in tone and texture with age. The Oriental rugs comprise several thousand of various sizes and run from Anatolian mats at $4.50 and up to Kirkanshahs at $700. The two oldest rugs cost $2500 and $10,000 respectively. A full collection of American woven carpets is also displayed in a great variety of designs, so that the requirements of all tastes may be met at suitable prices.

Besides the rugs and carpets, the third floor also contains a splendid lot of beautiful upholsteries, rich hangings for wall decorations, curtains and tapestries.

Fine Lace Curtain Effects.

An exhaustive selection was made in this line. Beauty, utility and price have been carefully making the stock a wonderful one to see or choose from. The stock of lace curtains of all makes and effects is included in these lines.

This floor contains, besides, the daintiest of art needlework. Every country on earth has been drawn on for its most beautiful decorative needlework. The display is harmoniously arranged and will delight the most exacting. Simple little doilies, pieces of Battenberg, Mexican drawn work and other varieties are shown beside the most intricate and wonderful designs of needlework.

Brass and iron beds, blankets, bed linens and domestic and imported counterpanes occupy a part of the third floor.

On the second floor is the most attractive showing of women's wearing apparel ever displayed at Barr's. All the designs of the season are reproduced in an amazing variety. The expensive lines are as complete as the less expensive and one may have as many costumes to choose from in buying a $150 gown as in purchasing one for $25.

Furs on this floor have perhaps never before been equaled in the West in number, richness and variety of make-up. They contain almost everything worn in furs in the civilized world, running from $5 to sables at $1500 a set. One beautiful broad-tail coat made of Persian lamb is greatly admired. Its price is $900.

On the same floor are the Parisian importations and the best American designs in millinery. The showing is particularly attractive. There is a beautiful blending and shaping in the styles this season.

Bordeaux, green, brown and toupe are prominent among the leading shades, and many fancy quills, birds and rich ostrich feathers have been used in the trimmings. Several hundred model hats are included and it is safe to say that the feminine heart in St. Louis will be more than delighted.

One reason the line of lingerie on this floor is so beautiful and complete is that the store's buyer has been in Europe all summer selecting the display. Especially is the stock of French hand-made and hand-embroidered undermuslins complete.

Men's and boys' clothes are on the second floor, too. Every demand of the youngster, the youth and man may be found in the latest styles and in the most serviceable makes. From overalls to romp in, to the prettiest of costumes the youngster may be put in, the line is complete. Play and school clothes and dress suits for boys are shown in all sizes.

The airy main floor is one of the most beautifully arranged ever seen in St. Louis. Not a garish note exists in the arrangement of the color made necessary in a display of such great variety.

Leather goods, handbags, belts and the like are displayed in all treatments of various leathers. They run from the simplest to the most elaborate in design and material.

The stock of rich Italian jewelry, American and other manufacture, is complete in rings, fobs, bracelets, pins, watches and other articles.

Laces Are Unequaled.

The laces have never yet been equaled by the store. The buyer searched Europe for three months this summer and the result shows for itself in the best of lace makers' art. A large display of American-made lace is included in the display of hand and machine creations from Europe.

The main floor on the Seventh and Olive streets sides have been fitted as one of the most complete ladies and men's shoe stores.

The fixtures are of solid mahogany and every element necessary for the convenience and comfort of customers has been considered. Men's hats, umbrellas and canes are also in this section of the first floor, as are complete lines of Centeniri and Reynier's gloves.

The dress goods and silks constitute, perhaps, the largest exhibition of the kind ever made in the West.

On the lower floor are shown everything needed for travel in the way of bags, suitcases, wall trunks, steamer trunks and trunks and valises of every variety. The largest line of vases and bric-a-brac ever seen in St. Louis is shown here, including Italian marbles, French bronzes, Cloisonne. They run in price from 50 cents to $500.

House furnishings for the laundry, kitchen and other parts of the house are shown here with a beautiful line of American aid imported china.

JEROME CROWD TO NOMINATE SULZER

District Attorney's Candidacy Believed a Failure—Congressman New Aspirant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Congressman William Sulzer loomed up today as a formidable candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Simultaneously with a conference at the Astor House to formally put him in the race and the opening of his headquarters at the Hotel Victoria, it became known that those who heretofore have been backing District Attorney Jerome are preparing to turn to Sulzer, convinced that the Jerome candidacy is a failure.

Indications point to Sulzer or Justice Gaynor as the candidate of the conservative Democrats who want to beat William R. Hearst. It was learned on the best of authority that the Jerome boom is going to be dropped at the first good excuse.

Those who have been urging it have been greatly disappointed at the almost total lack of response. They are now convinced that either Gaynor or Sulzer will prove the ideal candidate to pit against Hearst, for the reason that either would rob Hearst of a large part of the labor vote. Sulzer particularly, it was pointed out, would run well in the East Side districts where Hearst is strongest.

PANIC IN HOLD OF SHIP IN HURRICANE

622 Steerage Passengers Battle in Dark to Open Locked Doors.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Sear-scarred, her rails bent, ventilators gone and big dents in her superstructure, the Fabre Line steamer Massilia made port yesterday and brought in a story of a 12-hour hurricane in mid-ocean that for a time threatened to send the ship, with 700 souls on board, to the bottom.

The Massilia arrived 17 days out from Palermo, Italy. Capt. Michael Murli says that he had fair weather and a smooth sea until the morning of Sept. 11, when the barometer suddenly began to drop and great clouds began to show dead ahead. The wind strengthened to a gale and within half an hour the Massilia was in a 70-mile-an-hour hurricane, the worst Capt. Murli has experienced in his 42 years of seafaring life.

The Massilia carried 622 steerage passengers, all of whom Capt. Murli ordered to be locked below. Men, women and children became panic stricken when the ship began to pitch, and they battered at the hatches to be freed, fearing the vessel would sink. The Italian Royal Commissioner of Immigration, Michael Carturano, was sent to the steerage to quiet them.

Battle in Dark Hold.

While the gale was at its height something went wrong with the electric wiring in the steerage quarters, putting it in total darkness. Men and women fought one another to get to the doors of the companion ways, shrieking to be released. Others dropped to their knees and prayed that the hurricane might cease.

Six steers were in stalls in the hold of the vessels. When the ship began to roll a number of barrels of wine smashed against the stalls and freed the terror stricken animals, who raced about the hold of the vessel. When the ship rode out the storm it was found that two of them had been crushed to death by the wine casks and the others had broken legs.

For 12 hours the ship battled with the raging sea, Capt. Murli remaining lashed on the bridge. The wind died down as quickly as it came. When the passengers were permitted to come on deck all knelt in prayer, thanking Providence for their deliverance. Capt. Murli was cheered by the passengers.

After the storm ceased a baby boy was born in the steerage. He was named Murli Massilia Caruso.

CLOTHES TRICK FOILED.

Giving his name as Frank Roberts and his address as 2 Westmoreland place, a well-dressed youth ordered a suit and an overcoat valued at $65 from a downtown department store Monday and asked that the goods be sent C. O. D. When the clothes were prepared for delivery the suspicions of one of the managers of the store were aroused and the police were asked to investigate.

A detective was sent to the address, which is the home of James Campbell, the millionaire broker, and there he met the delivery clerk from the store standing in front of the house with the new clothes. The clerk told the detective that Roberts had met him outside of the house and had sought to gain possession of the clothes. When the clerk insisted upon making the delivery to the house, Roberts ran away.

INSURGENTS FIRE ON U. S. OFFICERS, BEG PARDON, FIRE AGAIN

PALMA GATHERS 2000 TROOPS FOR THE DEFENSE OF HAVANA

HAVANA, Sept. 18.—Government forces, 2000 strong, under command of Col. Betancourt, are concentrating at Matanzas and are expected to march to Havana.

The rebels are again destroying property of the Cuban Western Railroad, a British enterprise.

The cruiser Dixie arrived this morning at Cienfuegos with 300 marines aboard, to assist the Marietta in protecting American plantations there. Her commander makes no report of further disturbances.

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 18.—Some subordinate officers of the United States cruiser Denver, the flagship of the American squadron in Cuban waters, were fired on by rebels as they were riding in the country in an automobile Sunday night. Nobody was hit and when the rebels found who the automobilists were they made profuse apologies.

They explained that the Government had issued an order forbidding anybody except officials to go outside of Havana in an automobile. The rebels were expecting Gov. Nunez to pass that way and sent a volley after the first automobile that came along, which happened to be one carrying a party of American naval men.

The apologies were accepted and the party went on.

Presently there came another volley with the same result—nobody hurt. Explanations and profuse apologies.

But the Americans decided to take no further risks and put up for the night at a small town close at hand. They came back to town this morning, their uniforms being a protection in the daylight.

When they returned to the ship and their adventure came to Commander Colwell's ears, he issued an order forbidding shore leaves, for the present.

The political vane points toward a satisfactory compromise of the difficulties in Cuba. Both the Government and its opponents are working to that end and for the most part harmoniously.

Senator Alfredo Zayas, the leader of the Liberals (who are the insurgents) came to town today on a passport obtained for him by Gen. Menocal and held a conference with the leaders of the Moderate party and with Public Works Secretary Montealvo. Gen. Monocal was present.

Both Sides Make Concessions.

The Post - Dispatch correspondent learns that both sides have made concessions.

When the Government's proposition was submitted to him Senator Zayas said:

"Let us wait until Secretary Taft arrives. There is no hurry."

But the representatives of the Government pressed him until Senator Zayas yielded on some points. There will be further consultations.

The indications are that President Palma will remain in office until a permanent peace has been arranged and then will resign, whereupon Vice-President Mendez Capote will succeed to the presidency.

Congressman Chibas of Santiago, a Moderate, said today: "I, with many other Moderates, am willing to resign my seat if it would bring peace. The real head of the revolution is Juan Gualberto Gomez, who has no property, and who, like others, could not live on the Government if there was American intervention."

When the possibility of Capote becoming President was communicated to the political prisoners in the Presidio they failed to comprehend the news for several moments.

Juan Gualberto Gomez, first recovering from his amazement, exclaimed: "O, it would be better for Cuba if we were kept here for life or assassinated than for such an outcome."

He said this because he considers Capote's political ambitions unbounded.

Gens. Cobreco, Francisco Valiette, Tomas Pardo and Senator Bacardi left last night for Santiago as peace emissaries from the veterans and the Government. Bacardi and Pardo, bitter personal enemies, united in the work for peace. Bacardi is a Moderate.

Dr. Molint has gone to Camaguey Province as a peace emissary.

Leopoldo Figueroa and Manola Carera have gone to Santa Clara.

WOMAN SLAYER SAVED.

Confesses Husband's Murder, Only Charged With Perjury.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 17.—Mrs. Aurelia Scheck, whose testimony as a self-confessed accomplice of Ernest G. Stackpole in the murder of her husband, Joel Scheck, which was one of the most sensational incidents in the criminal annals of Southern California, yesterday was arraigned on a charge of perjury in havin gtestified at the Coroner's inquest that burglars killed her husband.

This arraignment was the first actual admission by the District Attorney that as a reward for turning State's evidence the woman, whose age is 19 years, is to escape the murder charge.

INSANE FROM OVERWORK.

Chicago Merchant Suffers of Softening of Brain.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—John T. Shayne has been declared insanse by a jury in the County Court and the American Trust and Savings Bank has been appointed conservator of his estate. Instead of being sent to an institution he was given into the custody of his wife, Martha Shayne.

Mr. Shayne for years had been the head of John T. Shayne & Co., State street merchants, and he was a leader in various civic movements. For 12 months past he has exhibited signs of mental disorder and his relatives finally decided to go before the court and ask the appointment of a conservator.

The disorder from which he suffered is declared by physicians to be in the nature of softening of the brain and caused by overwork.

PROBATES OWN WILL.

Avoids Litigation by Making Gifts Before Death.

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Told by his physicians that the span of his life is nearly run, Addison J. Nowlen, the "Sage of Irving Park," and one of its wealthiest citizens, will dispose of his estate, estimated at $250,000, among the institutions in which he is interested before the last summons comes. He hopes in this way to avoid the possible legal complications that might follow the administration of a will and it is his desire now to accomplish the distribution of his fortune before he enters the shadows.

In this resolve he is seconded by his wife. The first gifts were made last night when two houses were given to two churches of Irving Park.

To the First Baptist Church of the suburb he gave a residence worth $4000, and which brings in a handsome monthly revenue.

The Reformed Presbyterian Church, also of Irving Park, was made the beneficiary of the other donation, a $3000 modern residence, which also produces good revenues in rent.

Mr. Nowlen, who is almost an octogenarian, celebrated the 56th anniversary of his marriage yesterday.

St. Louis has more Post-Dispatch readers every day than it has homes. "First in everything."

DO YOU WANT AN ELCHEE?

An "ELCHEE" is someone who is empowered to represent you—your ENVOY—someone whom you have sent on a mission or an errand for you. The word is Persian.

Nowadays we make a classified advertisement, our "Elchee," and within the space of twenty-four hours we have been present, BY ENVOY, at thousands of firesides—in thousands of private offices.

Our story has been told, by proxy, to A MAJORITY of the people in the city who could, by any means, be induced to take an interest in it.

If you keep your "WANT AD ELCHEE" busy enough, you will be able to sit at home or at the office and have your errand done, your quest pursued.

You may find employment, lodgers, lodgings, lost things, tenants, buyers of things you have to sell, sellers of things you want to buy—if you

ALTON BRIDE WHO SAYS SHE WAS GIVEN POISONED CANDY

MRS. WINFRED VOORHEES HALEY

BLAMES MOTHER OF BRIDE FOR CHARGES

Man Accused of Giving Poisoned Candy Declares Older Suitor Was Preferred.

Louis P. Haley, an organist of Madison, Wis., who is charged by his bride, formerly Miss Winifred Voorhees of Upper Alton, with drugging her with poisoned candy to induce her to marry him, declared when seen at his home in Madison by a Post-Dispatch representative that his mother-in-law was at the bottom of the separation and the charges.

His bride, Tuesday, asserted that her mother had nothing whatever to do with the estrangement; that she herself had tried earnestly to love Haley when she found she was married to him, but that his actions inspired so great a disgust in her a short time after the wedding that she found it impossible to live with him.

"He asked me to patch the seat of his trousers a week after we were married and while we were away on our honeymoon trip," the bride told a Post-Dispatch reporter at Sunnyside Farm, the 250-acre Voorhees estate, about two miles north of Upper Alton.

"He was always doing something uncouth," continued the young woman. "In New York at a restaurant he ordered a serving of salad, and when he was charged 50 cents for it he made a scene, denounced the waiter and got a policeman to have the man arrested.

"He took me to the Casino Theater in New York and bought tickets for the balcony. This part of the theater is entered through the lower floor. Mr. Haley called an usher aside and offered him a dollar to get us a seat in the parquet. The usher accepted the offer. We were hardly seated when another couple came with checks for the seats we were occupying. We moved no less than four times before we finally were left in peace. When the usher came around to collect his dollar, Mr. Haley denounced him openly, telling him that such service was hardly worth 25 cents and that he would not pay a cent more than this.

Wore an Old Gray Suit.

"Mr. Haley had told us that he had fallen heir to $75,000. On our honeymoon trip he wore an old gray suit of clothes that had been rained on and had not been pressed afterward. In Trenton he showed me that two great holes had been worn in the trousers and he asked me to sew them up for him. I refused point blank.

"During the World's Fair Mr. Haley came West and invited himself to put up at my mother's home. I had several girls stopping with me and one day they cut up a lot of horse hair fine and sprinkled it in his bed between the sheets. This angered him so that he departed the next morning."

"Winnie and I were engaged for eight years," said Haley in Madison, "and during all that time, with the exception of two years, letters passed between us and I have a whole box of them that I can produce. We had our quarrels, but none were serious. She has fallen under her mother's influence. Her mother will not let her come back.

"Charles Sleuter, a wealthy widower of Upper Alton with two daughters, who has been for years a suitor for Winnie Voorhees' hand, is preferred to me. In return for money which Sleuter loaned her, Mrs. Voorhees promised him her daughter's hand and did her best to persuade or force Winnie to marry him. The girl steadfastly refused and seemed to be loyal to me.

"Early this summer Miss Voorhees visited Madison and stayed at the home of my parents. I again proposed marriage to her and she accepted, although she knew her mother's opposition.

"Mrs. Voorhees, in Alton, did not know that her daughter was staying at my parents' home, but thought her daughter was with her grandmother at Windsor. A week before the marriage Miss Voorhees told me she wished to go to Windsor to see her grandmother. Instead, Miss Voorhees went to Milwaukee, where she met Sleuter and stayed until the following day and returned with him.

"Miss Voorhees stayed at the home of her aunt, Mrs. M. S. Spaulding, over night, but she refused to let Sleuter go to a hotel and he, too, stayed at the Spauling's.

"Mr. Voorhees came to Madison to see his daughter and urged that we be married as soon as possible before Mrs. Voorhees interposed further objections. The matter was rushed, a special license was gotten out Aug. 21, and Aug. 22 the ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Spaulding, and we went away on a trip.

"Mrs. Voorhees was furious when she heard of it and threatened me with violence if I came to Upper Alton. A week ago my wife told me that she was homesick and would like to visit her old home. I agreed, but the date of her visit was not fixed.

Mrs. Voorhees in Madison.

"Then Mrs. Voorhees came to Madison. She telephoned to my parents' residence and my wife talked with her over the phone, but refused to tell me to whom she had been talking. Next morning she announced her intention of visiting Upper Alton. I told her to go and gave her $28 for traveling expenses.

"Mrs. Voorhees refused to call at our residence, but met her daughter at the depot. My wife promised me faithfully she would return after spending a few days in Upper Alton. Then came the letter, in which she said that she would never come back."

Both Mrs. Voorhees and Mrs. Haley deny what Haley charges concerning Charles Sleuter. They assert he has nothing whatever to do with the present estrangement.

Mrs. Haley admits her father was present at the wedding, but declares that he attributed her unusual symptoms, due to the candy, to the excitement naturally attending a wedding.

"We went from Madison to Chicago, and there I became so sick that a doctor had to be called. He said I had eaten something I ought not to have eaten, and applied a stomach pump."

Mrs. Haley says she will at once apply for a divorce.

Winifred Voorhees, before her marriage, was a teacher in the Humboldt School in Upper Alton. Her father, Prof. George L. Voorhees, was formerly Superintendent of the Upper Alton public schools and later of the Western Military Academy there. He is now principal of a school in Chicago. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin in the class of '79 and is a classmate of President Van Hise and of Senator La Follette.

The bridegroom is organist of the First Baptist Church at Madison and a song writer. In several of his productions "Winnie" and "Sunnyside Farm" figure.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The alleged hero of 127 duels with swords, rapiers, daggers and pistols, in which he killed 17 men, A. N. Sullivan, formerly an officer in the Austrian army, is here on a sightseeing trip with his bride.

Sullivan, a lithe, dark-haired man of medium stature, resembles on the surface a crazy quilt pattern, because of the many scars he has received in duels and in fencing for the pleasure of it. He and his bride are making a tour of the world and arrived a few days ago on the Moro Castle from Havana.

Sullivan and his bride have been sweethearts since they were 7 years old and it was because of her beauty and the attention paid her by others that many of the duels were fought. She was born in Hanover.

Sullivan is averse to talking of the men he fought and killed, but said that of the 17 two had been killed in Paris, 12 in Austria and three in Italy. He did not produce the burial permits.

POOR MAN CAN'T FIND COMPANY OWING $1000

Patrick Friel Has Searched Year for $100,000,000 Transit Company.

For more than a year, Patrick Friel, who 10 hours each day runs an elevator in the Board of Education Building and gets a salary of $12 a week, out of which he must pay rent and support a large family, has been in close pursuit of the St. Louis Transit Co., a $100,000,000 corporation which has suddenly disappeared as if the earth had swallowed it.

Doctors' bills, lawyers' fees, court costs and other expenses growing out of a suit for personal injuries received in a collision of two cars of the St. Louis Transit Co. have been cheerfully paid by Pat Friel as they have fallen due.

The St. Louis Transit Co. owes Pat Friel $1000. He sued for $5000. There was no doubt in Pat's mind that if he won his case, the judgment awarded him would be paid promptly. It took him three years to get a judicial hearing. Before the case was called for trial an agent of the Transit company approached Pat and said:

"If you want to settle without going to trial, we'll give you $500."

That offer convinced Pat of the justice of his claim.

"I can't do it," he replied. "I wouldn't go through what I did as a result of that accident for $10,000."

Not His First Accident.

It was not the first time Pat had suffered in a street car accident. When he came to America from Ireland, his birthplace, 15 years ago, he found employment as a hostler in New York.

He had saved up a few dollars and everything was progressing serenely in his home when he went out one evening with a member of his family for a short walk. Passing a crowded thoroughfare, Pat was knocked down by a street car and run over. His right leg was severed.

For several months Pat lay in the hospital hovering between life and death. But he never complained. A street car agent made him an offer and he accepted it. With the money he received he bought a cork leg. This he was wearing when thrown from a Grand avenue car at Grand avenue and Olive street in St. Louis three years ago.

The cars collided with a great crash. Several passengers fell on Pat as he rolled into the street. In a spell of pain and then lapsed into insensibility. The artificial leg was smashed and the knee cap was injured. In addition, Pat suffered injuries to his back and shoulder. After he recovered consciousness he was removed to his home, 1421 North Grand avenue. His recovery was slow.

He has never missed a day from work outside of the time he was forced to spend in the hospital as the result of the street car accident.

When Pat Friel's suit and the suits of hundreds of other St. Louisans who have been maimed and bruised by St. Louis street cars were pending in the courts, 14 months ago, the St. Louis Transit Co., claiming to be insolvent, turned over its assets, or what remained of its assets, to the United Railways Co. It was represented to the public by the street railway officials that the St. Louis Transit Co., which leased the street railway companies from the United Railways Co., had defaulted in the payments of its bonds and other fixed charges.

Same Men in Control.

What puzzled everybody not familiar with the methods of the street railway promoters was that the same men who controlled one company also managed the other.

When the Transit company started to flee from litigants who had obtained judgments amounting to more than $250,000, the same officers who conducted the affairs of the St. Louis Transit Co. continued in charge of the United Railways Co. But these officers now deny that they know anything about the St. Louis Transit Co.

J. Brooks Johnson, a St. Louis money-lender, who has attacked the deal whereby the United Railways Co. gained control of the Transit company property, is so confident of being victorious in the courts that he has offered to buy up all Transit company judgments, paying 90 cents on the dollar for them.

In an interview recently President Beggs of the United Railways Co. told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the United Railways corporation had made it a point to settle all just obligations of the St. Louis Transit Co. It appears there was a long string tied to the Beggs offer. It applied only in cases in which, in the judgment of United Railway officials, the claimant, who had been awarded a judgment by a jury, was entitled to damages.

If Pat Friel could find any Transit company assets he would promptly levy on them. But he declares he can't even find a man who knows a solitary thing about the Transit company.

Some time ago he read about a dozen St. Louisans—each of them reputed to be worth a million or more—who participated in the deal whereby the United Railways took over the Transit company. Some of them received as high as $100,000 in the shape of fees or bonuses for permitting the use of their name in connection with this consolidation. He also noticed that many of those who had subscribed to stock in the St. Louis Transit Co. had not paid up their subscriptions.

No Representative There.

"After I won in the Circuit Court," said Pat, "the Transit company took an appeal to the Court of Appeals. They didn't put up any appeal bond. When the case was called in the appellate court no Transit company representative appeared. Accordingly, the Sheriff was directed to execute the judgment of the court. He went to the street railway company's offices at Vandeventer and Park avenues, but they said they had never heard of the Transit company. One man, who said he was connected with the treasurer's office, remembered there used to be a corporation of that name. Meanwhile, the case is before the appellate court for decision."

Circuit Clerk John Fitzsimmons said: "No litigant is required to put up an appeal bond unless he desires to do so. The fact that he does not, however, is sufficient reason for the Sheriff to proceed to collect the judgment against him, in the present case the Transit refuses to pay, or rather claims to be insolvent."

Newsdealer Missing.

Clarence Ryan, 22 years old, proprietor of the Euclid News Co., at Euclid avenue and the Suburban tracks, has been missing since last Thursday. Mrs. Ella Ryan, his mother, says that he asked her to stay in the store while he went to another news company's office, saying that he would be back in an hour.

CITY PRESCRIBES SIX MEALS AND OPEN AIR FOR CONSUMPTION

Board of Health Conducts Daily Clinics and Has Treated Hundreds of Cases Since July—Eggs Ordered Four Times a Day.

THE outdoor cure for consumption has been adopted by the Health Department of St. Louis in its "Clinic for Communicable Lung Diseases."

A circular just issued for patients by the clinic contains the following:

"You must live in the open air. If you can do so, fix up a tent in your yard, on your roof or on your piazza, and spend your time there. Fresh air and sunlight kill the germ that causes your disease. You must get at least nine hours' sleep at night. Better 10 hours. The more you rest, the more you eat, the more you sleep, the more you stay out in the air and sunshine, the sooner will your body overcome the disease."

The clinic has been in operation in the old City Hall since July 7, and 148 cases of true consumption have been taken in charge, and several hundred cases, suspected of being consumption, have been discharged, with instructions calculated to insure immunity from the disease.

Elaborate machinery for the detection and treatment of the disease has been installed. The first step toward the absolute identification of the disease is the analysis of the sputum of the patient by the City Bacteriologist, to determine the presence of the germ that causes the disease. The exact weight and lung capacity of the patient are taken, and by auscultation the exact location and extent of the affected parts are ascertained.

By means of the most curious rubber stamp in any office in the city the location and extent of the disease are recorded. The stamp is a diagram of the upper part of the human body as it would appear if the covering of muscular tissue and skin were removed from it. Upon it in red ink are indicated the parts of the patient's body diseased. There are two stamps, one showing a back view, the other a front view.

Germs Carefully Guarded.

The most elaborate precautions are taken to prevent the escape of a single pathogenic germ from any patient at the clinic. A number of graniteware cuspidors are supplied in the room, each of which is about half filled with a solution of carbolic acid, quicklime and copperas.

The circular which adopts the outdoor treatment for the disease also gives the patient a "scheme of daily diet," consisting of six meals a day, as follows:

"A glass of hot or cold milk on getting up in the morning.

"Breakfast consisting of what you want, with two glasses of milk and one or two eggs.

"Luncheon at 10 a. m., pint of milk and two eggs.

"Dinner; meat, vegetables, dessert and a pint of milk.

"Luncheon at 3 or 4 p. m.; pint of milk and two eggs.

"Supper, whatever you like, with a glass or two of milk and an egg or two."

The clinic is in operation every day from 7 to 10 a. m., 4 to 6 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m. On Sunday the clinic hours are from 9 to 10 a. m.

Killed by Train.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BROOKHAVEN, Miss., Sept. 18.—J. C. Bryant, supervisor of Lincoln County, was instantly killed at a railroad crossing near Houck's Retreat when an eastbound Mississippi Central passenger train crashed into the wagon he was driving. A team of mules was also killed.

FRANCIS GLAD BRYAN EXPLAINED

Says on Starting Home That Government Ownership Is Sure of Defeat.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—President Francis of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition arrived here today from Brussels, where he presented the St. Louis Exposition medal and diploma to King Leopold. The mission abroad of Mr. Francis is thus completed and he is exceedingly gratified at the receptions accorded him by the various crowned heads whom he visited. Mr. Francis will leave Cherbourg tomorrow on board the Kron Prinz Wilhelm for New York.

Mr. Francis is watching the political developments in the United States with keen interest. He told the Associated Press today that in his opinion the party advocating Government ownership of railroads would be defeated in 1908. He was glad, therefore, to see that Mr. Bryan, in his Louisville speech, had disclaimed the intention of trying to commit the Democracy to that doctrine.

COMMITTEEMAN TO URGE RIVER FUND

Ransdell Addresses Portland Commercial Club and Indorses Appropriation.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 18.—After viewing the rivers and harbors of the Northwest, Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana, member of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, of the House of Representatives, left last night for Sacramento. Mr. Ransdell yesterday addressed the Commercial Club on the subject of his investigations and urged his auditors to join in the movement for a $50,000,000 annual river and harbor appropriation.

Mr. Ransdell quoted statistics to show the rivers and harbors had been inadequately recognized by Congress and that other objects of expenditure, such as the army and navy, lighthouses, postoffices and pensions, had received sums far greater by comparison, although river and harbor work could be made to save the people far more than its cost.

Congressman Jones of Washington, member of the same committee, inspected the line of the Celilo Canal Friday and the Columbia bar jetty Saturday and left for Seattle Sunday night.

Ate Poisoned Ice Cream.

PADUCAH, Ky., Sept. 18.—D. W. Coons, his wife and sister, have recovered after a precarious illness from eating poisoned ice cream. He is secretary of the Commercial Club and bought the cream at a local confectionery.

COMMITTEE WILL WATCH CONGRESS

"People's Lobby" to Be Formed as New Force at Next Session.

ABLE MEN ARE MEMBERS

Will Be to Legislation What Trade Journals Are to Commerce.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—If anybody is naughty in Congress hereafter he will have to reckon with a new force. This is the "people's lobby," which is announced to begin work at the next session of Congress. Its first duty, according to the announcement in the October number of Success, which is sponsor for the idea, will be to watch all committee and executive work through a permanent bureau established in Washington, and combat the attorneys for "special interests."

Incidentally the bureau will keep records of the public career of each Senator and Representative. There is to be nothing frantic in the work, the magazine promises, and politics are to be faithfully avoided.

Compared to Trade Journals.

The lobby will be to Congress and to national politics what Dun's and Bradstreet's are to commercial life, its promoters hope, and to give it standing and to free it from suspicion of magazine control, a governing committee is being organized.

Mark Twain is named as a member of this committee. Half of it is already made up. There is included Lincoln Steffen, Henry Beech Needham, William Allen White, the Kansas editor, and James B. Reynolds, one of the authors of the Neill-Reynolds meat inspection report.

Others are R. M. Allen, secretary of the Interstate Pure Food Commission; Francis J. Heney, special Government prosecutor in the Oregon land fraud cases; John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California.

Henry Beech Needham is credited by the magazine with being the author of the scheme.

MUSEUM FOR SCHOOLS.

City Official Wants Education Board to Take Collection.

President O'Reilly of the Board of Public Improvements has suggested to WJ McGee, director of the St. Louis Public Museum, that he negotiate with the Board of Education for taking over the collections of the museum.

"I am not in favor of the city assuming charge of the collections of the museum," said President O'Really to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "There is no official in the City Government easily equipped to pass on the value of the collections. The Board of Education can readily determine what educational value the collections have and also be able better to fix the salary when the curator or 'expert' in charge of the collections should receive.

"The only connection the Board of Public Improvements or I personally have had with the museum project has been to show a willingness to pass on the changes proposed in the Lindell pavilion, which the museum authorities desire to use for the temporary storage of the collections. Any change made in the pavilion must be approved by the board. The ordinance providing for the changes must originate with the board before it can be passed on by the Municipal Assembly. I understand the use of the pavilion is to be only temporary and I have suggested to Mr. McGee that he direct himself to the Board of Education if he desires to transfer the collection permanently."

THE RAPID TRANSIT PROBLEM.

The Municipal Assembly is asked to grant two important transit franchises—one for a loop to be used by the McKinley system and the other for an elevated railway system, with an open subway downtown.

Both provide for desirable objects. The loop sought by the McKinley system will bring the city into direct connection with a network of trolley lines running through the richest and most thickly populated portions of Central and Northern Illinois. The lines touch a number of populous and thriving towns. But however desirable this object, the conditions upon which the franchise is to be granted should be determined wholly from the standpoint of the city's interests and needs now and in the future. Downtown loop space for surface lines is scarce and valuable. Certainly freight cars should not be permitted to intermingle with passenger cars and obstruct the streets.

By far the most important franchise bill from the standpoint of the future conditions of transportation within the city is that providing for the subway and elevated system. The granting of a franchise of this extent, ostensibly designed to provide rapid transit to the suburbs, north, west and south, would probably determine rapid transit conditions for 20 years. That the city will need rapid transit facilities and that we should plan for them in advance must be admitted. But does this bill meet the need? Do we want an elevated structure, which is merely an intermediate makeshift, until a subway can be built and operated at a profit? The experience of the greater cities points to the underground system as the final solution of terminal and transit problems. Is the short, open subway provided for in this bill feasible or desirable? Will the roads as planned stand in the way of future development? Would the depressed tracks be obstacles to a real subway?

It is important that we cease at once to grant franchises on the plans and the terms of franchise seekers. The plans should be prepared by the city authorities for the city's benefit. The terms should conserve the public intetest. Let us thrust aside the desires and interests of those who seek the privilege and determine what are the needs and what will safeguard the interests of the people who are dependent upon the franchise grants for transportation facilities.

Some of the terms offered by the franchise seekers are attractive on paper, but what do they actually mean? The compensation of $30,000 a year looks good as compared with some other street railway payments, but it may not be at all adequate. The offer to sell at the end of 10 and 20 years may or may not be practical or desirable. It would not be desirable if the roads are badly planned and built or if another form of rapid transit is more advantageous. It is not practical if the city is unable to purchase the roads at the end of the designated periods. Franchises have been granted on terms which turned over the transit systems at the end of a moderate period. Well-planned street railways in growing cities are profitable enough to give ample returns on the investment and create a purchase fund within a period of not more than twenty-five years.

One thing ought to be settled beyond peradventure, viz.: that no franchise of this kind be granted upon terms which will offer an opportunity for a speculative job or for financial juggling which will rob the city of millions and compel the people to pay high fares for an inefficient service. We want no repetition of the St. Louis Transit Co. and the United Railways job. The owners of the franchise under the terms of the charter should not be permitted to get more than a fair return upon the money invested and the remainder should go into reduced fares and improved service. The city should be a partner in the enterprise on conditions which will assure a fair share of the earnings and benefits to the people. Business-like safeguards of this kind are better than offers to sell, with looting privileges.

Another point ought to be settled, namely, that no franchise will be granted to unknown or irresponsible franchise promoters. The ability of the seekers of the franchise to carry out their promises and their good faith should be made clear. But if the terms of the grant are just and wise the possibility of speculative franchise jobbery will be cut off. The city will find no difficulty in disposing of franchises of this kind upon fair terms to conservative investors. The bill should be carefully studied and modeled in the interest of the city. It would be wise to refer the plans to the Board of Public Improvements for revision and approval.

In his letter to the public published in today's Post-Dispatch concerning the Manufacturers' Railway bill, Mr. A. A. Busch says the backers of the project do not want to antagonize the public, nor to obtain the franchise upon unfair terms. This is a fair and commendable attitude. But Mr. Busch must be cognizant of the fact that there is strong and widespread public objection to several features of the bill in its present form and that it does not conserve the public interest at all points. He expresses his willingness to accept a limited in place of the perpetual franchise, if the clause reserving the right of repeal, which under decisions of court is practically useless, is repealed. The franchise should not be made perpetual. The compensation should be changed to terms which will make the city a sharer in the earnings of the company and give it supervision of the business. Monopoly should be guarded against and no charges equivalent to a bridge toll should be permitted. The charges should be regulated by the earnings. We do not believe with the free bridge pending that any terminal franchise should be granted now, but certainly the future interests of the city and its terminal needs should be carefully guarded in any bill.

A GRAVE OFFENSE.

Is the police machine a joke? Is it a pacemaker to promote speeding through the streets on the part of reckless auto drivers who want to test the speed of their machines and their own skill as chauffeurs by leading the police a merry chase?

One or the other of these conclusions seems necessary from the account of "Tommy" Carter's race with the police. It was an exciting race, in which the young man did his best to maintain his record of uniform escape up to that time, but was compelled to stop in order to avoid a general smash-up. Unfortunately, this is only one of many instances in which the police and auto drivers have figured as participants in dangerous racing.

A final stop should be put to that sort of thing by providing and enforcing a severe penalty—not a mere fine, but a fine and imprisonment, with deprivation of license for refusing to obey a police order or signal to stop and for attempting to evade the police. Excessive speeding in violation of the law is bad enough, but defiant speeding to escape the police is a grave offense. It combines reckless disregard of life and limb with contemptuous disregard of law and authority.

As founder and Mayor of University City, Mr. E. G. Lewis is doing a good public service which the authorities of St. Louis County failed to do—he is clearing out the law-breaking saloons and disreputable resorts in the district around Delmar Garden. Delmar avenue west of the Suburban track was a nuisance to the respectable residents of the neighborhood and to those who were compelled to pass it. It was worse than a nuisance—it was, by reason of the low resorts located there, a menace to the morals of the young. Mr. Lewis has started his new town on a good foundation of law enforcement and moral cleanliness.

THE DEVIL IS ABOUT AGAIN.

According to Col. Henry T. Olcott, the chief of the Theosophical Society, financial success depends upon the good will and active co-operation of gnomes, sylphs, undines and salamanders, who infest the personality of the promoter. "Unless," says the Colonel, "the man who undertakes to control money, oil, diamonds and other treasures of the earth, has a few gnomes to pilot him he might as well go into bankruptcy before he lands in a madhouse."

In olden times, when a man showed an excess of talent or special power, the envious had a ready reproach: "Thou hast a devil." Col. Olcott is a polite man and employs the terminology (fine word that—terminology) of fairyland, but his accusation comes to the same thing. To get down to brass tacks, then, John D. Rockefeller, Harriman, Morgan and the other busy bees of the financial hive succeed by the power of the devil. This is good news. It is the current popular belief that they are pushing, greedy persons, who want more, more, always more. But that is a mistake. They are poor victims. They have each one of them a devil; or, to suit all temperaments, let us say, a devil has them. They are not to blame. It is the old adversary still going up and down seeking whom he may devour.

This should soften public sentiment against monopolies and trusts. We should legislate directly against the devil, or, to be polite, with Col. Olcott, against the gnomes, salamanders, sylphs and other cunning little elementals who sit in the game with the lambs and fleece them for the benefit of the poor unfortunate men whom they possess.

Col. Olcott makes Wall street men happy. The high financier, when caught playing tricks, can say: "I did it not, the gnome, he did it." The Colonel ought to be let in on the ground floor.

Unquestionably the fact that Fraulein Krupp, the richest woman, spends only $250 on her wedding trousseau has amazed the feminine world. Doubtless the Fraulein expects to need her money for family and household expenses.

NO UPRISING IN MEXICO.

The report of the Post-Dispatch special correspondent sent to Mexico to get the facts about the rumored uprising dispels all fear of disturbance while President Diaz lives.

Independence Day, which rumor appointed for the massacre of Americans, passed off like a great holiday, celebrated by a united, prosperous people. There were the usual meetings and national rejoicings. In the City of Mexico Gen. Diaz himself was the principal figure, opening the Congress and reading the speech which set forth the internal condition of the country and foreign relations.

Order in Mexico is still synonymous with Porfirio Diaz. While that great man lives the country will be well governed, the laws will be obeyed, foreigners will be protected and business enterprise encouraged by the sympathy and assistance of the Government.

The motive and source of the sinister rumors of the past few weeks are not known, but, of course, there is more or less disaffection arising, as seems probable, from disappointed personal ambitions. It is plain, however, that no personality is strong enough to be matched with Diaz. He is the hope, as he has been the savior, of his country and lovers of progress and order will wish him a life long enough to establish the institutions of government on a foundation so firm that insurrection and revolution will find no support among a contented and patriotic people.

One of the feminine Astors is to marry a poor man. The rich young women of the country should hasten to follow so good an example.

Secretary Shaw's solicitude for Labor should greatly enlarge his boom. There are few politicians, however, who are not loving Labor.

NO HARM IN DREAMS

There is no harm in dreaming
That man is good at heart,
And that a few more years and he
From evil shall depart.
There is no hurt in thinking
That John D. will repent—
He never will, but bless you,
The dreams don't cost a cent.

There is no harm in dreaming
That men will all be good,
And that reformers pretty soon
Shall lead us from the wood.
There is no hurt in thinking
That conscience will redeem
The Armours and the packing kings—
For it's a pleasant dream.

There is no harm in dreaming
That what with expose,
The bad monopolist has seen
The peril of his way.
There is no hurt in thinking
The crooks will all grow straight—
They never will, but thinking so
Is sweet, at any rate.

Illusionists of splendid faith,
Dream on and on, with zest,
And see with sweet, fine prescience
Utopia the blest.
But don't forget old Adam and
The apple and the fall,
For men are all the sons of him—
And that's no dream at all.

SLANG.

We have always resented the Englishman's claim that he is the guardian of the purity of the English language. It is preposterous.

John Stephen Farner, an Englishman, is the author of "The Dictionary of Slang." His creditors held a meeting in London the other day, and they found his debts totaling $2750. England seldom bought his book, and he went the way of the unpopular author.

Have we done as much for the purity of English? Have we frowned upon George Ade? Have we refused our good money for the writings of Billy Baxter or passed up at the book stores the deadly assaults made upon good English by the redoubtable John Henry?

Yes, thank goodness, we have done these things. George Ade's Indiana farm is heavily mortgaged, and it is understood that his friends have denied him succor. John Henry hasn't chirped for some time, but his publisher goes every day to the lowly hut with the bill. Billy Baxter is dead—and buried in Pittsburg. Henry Blossom, who wrote "Checkers," is an exile in New York.

Englishmen the guardians of good English! Bah!

HARDLY.

ST. LOUIS THROUGH FUNNY GLASSES

WRITTEN FOR THE POST-DISPATCH

By Irvin S. Cobb.

Jays and What They Feed Them On.

THERE is, we are told, a power which looks after the falling of the sparrow; it is evident to the most casual observer that Providence must also have a beneficent eye on the jays.

Otherwise St. Louis would never have attained its present size.

In the interests of the truth of natural history we fain would add that all the joys do not come from the tall and erstwhile ungarnered. Many a man who has his neck shaved oftener than twice a year and who can carry a cane without spraining his own knee with it belongs, nevertheless, to this interesting ornithological branch. Simply because a gentleman travels hither in a day coach with his shoes off and climbs half way out of the car window every time the train stops to wave at the station agent is no sign that he is better qualified to wear the blue topknot and the long tail feathers than some austere party in a white waistcoat and gold teeth, residing in the very heart of our prosperous county seat.

There are great numbers of us that know "haricots verts" and don't know beans. And this town is undoubtedly the principal jay aviary.

For example, let us take the matter of the food dispensaries which dot the bustling thoroughfares.

There comes along a wise foreigner with a skillet and a potted palm, who makes arrangements for hiring a gas range and a bone-felon orchestra, and then opens up a new restaurant. New restaurants are much needed here, there being at present only one to every seven inhabitants. Sometimes it is so bad that fully half the business houses on a downtown block will not be restaurants.

But to resume: The foreigner opens up his little spider parlor and the local flies begin to blow in. Presently our bright Sunday papers, ever upon the outlook for what is new and true, print the glad tidings that here at last is a place where the real hygienic cooking is to be had.

We learn that it's the resort to which the true Bohemians now repair of an evening to discuss the day's doings at the white goods counter and the business college. Inside of 48 hours the rush to secure seats looks like 6 p. m. at the Eads Bridge.

After that the proprietor knows that no matter what he does to 'em they'll keep on coming. It is then that he makes the orchestra play very loudly to prevent his patrons from hearing him laughing at them. He furnishes them salads of burdock leaves and machine oil. He gives them entrees tasting of mother of onion. He provides them with the same kind of service that a stray horse gets in a livery stable. He uses leather findings in his ragouts, and his stews are based on remnants from the tanyard.

But what of that? Is it not the resort of the true Bohemians? It is, for so the paper said. Then let joy be unconfined.

What, ho! landlord! Fresh glasses all around and another bottle of the pokeberry juice.

HUMOR FROM AUSTRIA

Louise: Aren't you going to Ostend this year?

Kathie: No—nobody knows me there.

Louise: Then why don't you go to the Riviera?

Kathie: Because everybody knows me there.—Die Muskete.

Customer: I won't take this photograph; it makes me look as if I hadn't any nose.

Photographer: That is because the photographic plate is not sensitive to red.—Wiener Salonwitzblatt.

Visitor: Where did you get this fine X-rays photograph?

Host: Pardon me, that is my eldest daughter.—Floh.

Elder Young Lady: Don't you find that I have altered much in the last few years?

Gentleman: Yes, but only externally, you know.—Figaro.

Fritz (whose mother has been married again to a man he doesn't like): Mamma, let me go with you next time to choose one.—Floh.

Felix: I don't think poor Toby is getting along well in the other world—just look at him when he was alive, the way the fleas always troubled him—and now we have had him stuffed and the moths are feeding on him.—Floh.

Bride (tenderly): We have fully twenty minutes before the train comes, when we must bid one another farewell—isn't that nice?

Bridegroom: Capital. We can go into the station restaurant and eat something together.—Wiener Salonwitzblatt.

Beggar (to lady): Ah, but your husband is a kind gentleman. He has promised me his old overcoat, as he is going to buy a new one.

Lady: So—then send your wife to me and I will give her my autumn jacket!—Bombe.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

This column is open for discussion of public questions. Letters should not exceed 150 words.

Tennis a Nuisance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Out in Cabanne the residents take a pride in the "quiet West End," but the tennis players have invaded the quietude, and it is now the noisy West End. Out on Bartmer avenue every evening after school hours, and all day on Saturday, the quiet-loving property owners are compelled to listen to ear-splitting yells and warwhoops of the boys playing tennis. True tennis is a fine game, and good recreation, but if it must be accompanied with continual nerve-racking noises, then it must be voted a nuisance in the midst of a restricted residence district.

A VICTIM.

Poor Child.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Of all the injustice to which children are subjected by reason of their inability to defend themselves, the fault-finding, scolding parent is perhaps the one most keenly felt. In every large family there is always a child, usually a girl, who by inclination becomes the little mother to the rest. She is up early in the morning sweeping, cleaning, preparing breakfast, while the mother, worn with work and cares, is glad to rest a while. Yet after all she does this child will be the one upon whom the whole volume of the scolding mother's wrath will fall. She comes down on the willing worker like a cyclone, wrath in her voice and passion in every expression. She seeks in every corner for something the child has overlooked. "The coffee boiled too long"; "it is not boiled enough"; "those eggs are too hard," or, "too soft"; "that bed is not made properly"; why didn't you sweep out that kitchen?" Is it any wonder that children detest housework and that as soon as they are old enough they seek employment in offices, shops or factories and that it is almost impossible to secure competent household servants?

OBSERVER.

Suburban Street Car Service.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The street car service in the city suburbs is very much neglected, for instance, in the southwest part of the city, Gratiot, Lindenwood and also Greenwood. People living in these localities for 15 years have always been compelled to walk several miles to the street car. The city should, by all means, regulate the street cars. Bring them within reasonable walking distance from all parts of the city.

ONE INTERESTED.

Jacks: Townley is an exceedingly cautious man, don't you think?

Johns: Cautious! Why, he wouldn't pay a compliment without getting a receipt for it.—Tit-Bits.

ON THE SUBURBAN TRAIN

By CLARK McADAMS.

The Commuters Discuss Winston Churchill.

"I SEE Winston Churchill is hard-pressed in the fight for the Republican nomination for Governor in New Hampshire," said the Insurance Man, looking up from his morning paper.

"His publishers will have to hurry into the field with some more money," said the Boss Printer.

The Brakeman came in with the Screamos, and the train rattled out of the yards and into the soft gossamer overlying the fields. It was one of those Indian Summer mornings when the suburbanite can love everybody but the General Passenger Agent.

"Speaking of Churchill," said the Wholesale Druggist, "I wonder if the original of Jethro Bass is for him?"

"Maybe Jethro isn't a Republican," the Insurance Man suggested.

"I judged by his tactics that he was," said the Boss Printer. "But Churchill ought to be shut out at the convention. He doesn't deserve it. Not that he isn't an honorable man and all that, but his political ambition made him without faith in his own State of Missouri, and he went to New Hampshire, where he thought a Republican would stand some sort of show. Churchill is a keen fellow in most respects, but he didn't foresee the Mysterious Stranger. If he had foreseen him he would have stayed right here, and it is oats to opals he would be the one man in the way of young Mr. Hadley today. Nothing would have pleased Missouri more than to have given him anything he might have pointed out, and that's more than they are doing for him in New Hampshire. The only possible show he stands up there is that his opponents will err in their excessive eagerness to beat him.

"All the same," said the Boss Printer, "he will not be beaten. Defeat would not only end his political career, but it would discredit him as a novelist. His publishers would no more let that happen than they would permit him to write a new novel under a fictitious name. They rely upon him just as an old soldier depends upon his pension. Ever since he wrote "The Crisis," every member of the firm has had a sea-going yacht and a land-going automobile, and they are not going to let a few cheap political ringsters in a 2x4 State imperil those luxuries. If you will look into these cases, you will see that a novelist's publishers never permit him to go down to defeat. Did they beat Churchill when he ran for the New Hampshire Legislature? Not on your life. Did they beat Booth Tarkington when he shied his castor into the political ring over in Indiana? Nosireebob. The publishers see to those things. Do you think the Harpers would sit by with their hands folded and watch a lot of politicians put kibosh upon Mark Twain? Do you suppose Upton Sinclair's publishers are going to let him lose at the polls this fall just because he is a Socialist? No; they will all win—the novelists. It is not their ambition that is at stake, but their prestige. The publishers protect that, and they have the money to do it with—the publishers. Indeed, they're the ones who get the money."

The mists of Indian summer thickened to the smoke pall which overhangs the city. The commuters took a last look at the glorious sun, the Brakeman hustled out with his footstool, and directly he sang out:

"St. Louis!"

A FEW CHOICE STORIES

An Astute Boy.

The late Alfred Beit, the famous diamond magnate, had a small, handsome house on a large lot in Park Lane, London's most fashionable street, and here he gave occasionally very elegant dinners.

An American, at one of Mr. Beit's dinners, asked the millionaire what quality he considered most essential to success.

Astuteness, provided that industry goes with it," Mr. Beit replied. "The power to see quickly and to seize every advantage, large and small alike, is the quality that above all others insures success.

"Mr. Carnegie," Mr. Beit went on, "tells about a little Scotch boy who had this quality of astuteness highly developed.

"The boy's grandmother was packing his lunch for him to take to school one morning. Suddenly, looking up in the old lady's face, he said:

"'Grandmother, does yer specs magnify?'

"'A little, my child,' she answered.

"'Aweil, then,' said the boy. 'I wad juist like it if ye wad tak' them off when ye're packin' my loonch.'"

An Unappreciated Pun.

John F. Stevens, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, has been in various limelights in Washington during the investigations, but he carried his point and has been told at last to go ahead and build the kind of canal he has advocated. He is a man to carry points when he makes them. He is an ideal engineer, rugged and strong, and every motion indicates unlimited reserve power. His face is rather handsome, but determination dominates, from the thick, dark hair and heavy eyebrows to the brief, strong mustache, over lips which close like a punctuation mark when he has said his say. He missed it once, however, and told the story as though he rather enjoyed it. He was sitting on the counter in a Western grocery store when a cowboy came in, and, taking him for a clerk, said: "Gimme some raisins!"

There had just been a couple of impromptu hangings in the next town, and looking up without moving the young engineer asked:

"Do you want the same kind of raisin's they had over yonder?"

The next instant he was looking into the business hole in the cowboy's shooter. He says that it was as big as a cannon, and he was getting ready to slide off and hunt for raisins when the proprietor came to the rescue, begging the cowboy not to spatter up his place. He took advantage of the pause to apologize.—New York Press.

"My dear madam," remarked the weary wayfarer, "I have had nothing to eat for 24 hours."

"Poor man," sighed the dear madam; "have you no appetite? Let me give you one of my tonic tablets."—Philadelphia Record.

"I wonder now," mused the dog, "what fool thing it is that my master wants me to do with that hoop he is holding out before me. Maybe he wants me to jump through it. I'll try it, and see * * * That was it, all right. How little it takes to make a man happy!"—Chicago Tribune.

GIRLS WHO WANT MEN TO SPEND TOO MUCH MONEY

Helen Oldfield in the Chicago Tribune.

THERE are some women who make their lovers purse slaves. This is often, let us hope, usually done in thoughtlessness. Nevertheless, there are not a few girls who, as the saying is, "sponge" upon their lovers. They are not satisfied unless kept constantly supplied with candy, flowers and with even more costly offerings; unless their admirers are ready with invitations to theater, concert and opera, which last at least entails the additional expense of carriage hire. When a man has to earn his living, a modest one at that, these demands are a serious drain upon his finances. In fact, many young men fear the expense of courtship as much as they do those of matrimony, and in that fact lies one answer to the oft-mooted question, "Why don't the men propose?"

Let it not be understood by this that present giving is in itself objectionable, excepting when carried too far. But if a man and woman truly love each other the intrinsic value of the gifts will be little or nothing in comparison with the affection which they represent.

When one sees young women complacently accepting the devotion of their lovers as shown in spending money on them, which, if they reflected for a moment, they must know could be gained honestly only by denying themselves actual necessaries; occupying seats at the theater altogether out of keeping with the lover's means, one cannot but reflect that there is "something wrong somewhere." Still, it must be admitted that it is not always, by any means, the woman's fault. It is marvelous how much ingenuity some men display to conceal the real state of their finances. As one such said when remonstrated with upon his extravagance, "A fellow must cut some sort of a figure with the girl he is in love with." It simply never occurred to him that the extravagance was actual deception on his part. He had not the courage to own his poverty. He would not acknowledge it, of course, but he was really afraid that the girl would think less of him if she knew the small amount of his salary.

Lovers often act this deceptive part quite unconsciously of sheer love. They think nothing too good for their adored, and are extravagant without thought, saving for the present moment. It simply never occurs to them that the woman whom they accustom to receive such costly attentions will look forward to their continuance. The lover who acts the part to his fiancee of a man with $5000 a year, and who marries upon $1000, will not find the course of his life and love run as smoothly as he possibly expects. It is merely common prudence which exacts that each of a couple should know precisely upon how much money they can count after marriage. It is also important that every couple should know what they got engaged upon.

No one will dispute that it is a laudable impulse of any lover to be lavish of his best where the woman whom he loves is concerned; but the best he can bestow upon her is the home which he has asked her to share with him, and any unnecessary expense or extravagance which defers their marriage is not a proof of love, but of selfish improvidence.

Sweet Pepper Relish.

Eleanor Marchant in the September Housekeeper.

In making sweet pepper relish remove the seeds from six red and 12 green sweet peppers, chopping them very fine like rice, adding in the order mentioned one pint of finely chopped red cabbage, the same of the white variety, one cupful grated horseradish and half a bunch of young minced celery; now mix in thoroughly one and one-half tablespoonfuls of salt and let the vegetables stand for several hours. During the interval, place over the fire in a saucepan one quart of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of brown sugar, two cloves of bruised garlic, one bay leaf, one onion cut in slices, one sprig of thyme, one blade of mace, 12 whole cloves and the same of allspice, a tablespoonful of celery seed. Cover the kettle closely and cook for 30 minutes, letting it stand until cold and then straining through a jellybag, over the drained vegetables; pack in jelly tumblers; cover the tops with paraffine wax when cold and store in a dark closet; this is a particularly delicious relish to serve with cold roast mutton or fish.

Plant Like a Clock.

There is a plant, a native of Borneo, which is known as the "clock plant." The name is derived from the action of the sun's rays on the leaves, which are three in number—a large one extending forward, with two small ones at the base pointing sideways. These, coming in contact with the rays of the sun, oscillate like the pendulum of a clock, the larger leaf moving upward and downward, going its full length every 45 minutes, the smaller leaves moving toward the larger, completing the distance forward and backward every 45 minutes, thus resembling the hour and minute hands of a clock.

Should Christians Make Fortunes?

From Harper's Weekly.

One of London's dog-day topics this year was, "Should Christians Make Fortunes?" Mr. George Bernard Shaw took the negative. The question seems somewhat too general for intelligent discussion. Shrink it to the query, "Should Christians Make Fortunes by Buying Stocks on Less than a 20-percent Margin?" and there still remains an ample field for argument. The ethics of stock speculation abound in complications and perplexities. In that field of action, as in so many others, the important point is not so much what you do as how you do it. It is hazardous to generalize about it; yet it may be said, with reasonable security, that stock speculations are not conducive to spiritual development. The game is sordid at its very best.

FOR THE HOME TABLE

The housewife is daily puzzled to know what to have for dinner. Why not try one of the various recipes for cooking Spaghetti that are given in our free booklet, "Spaghetti and Some of Its Uses"—we will gladly send it to anyone on request.

Faust Spaghetti is a valuable food at all times—it takes the place of expensive meat dishes—with Spaghetti you can dispense with starchy pastry. It is not only nourishing, appetizing and healthful, but it is economical as well. As a warm weather food it is unequaled—as a food for every day in the year it has no superior. There are so many delightful ways in which Spaghetti can be used that one never becomes wearied of it—it never jades the palate.

Faust Spaghetti is sold by all grocers in a beautiful air-tight, dust and germ proof package, which effectually preserves its goodness.

THE WOMAN'S CORNER

Women Bad Spellers.

"The best, the loveliest of women, are notoriously bad spellers," says William Dean Howells, discussing spelling reform in the September Harper's, "and agonize lifelong through recurrent misgivings, after each letter they write, even when they have asked their husbands how to spell the words they halted at, and then spelled wrong or think they spelled wrong. For the sake of these, the wives, the mothers, the sisters of the race, as well as for the sake of the tender infants whose steps they are so little able to guide among our orthographical snares and pitfalls, we can only hope that the hour of liberation is at hand, when it will be the badge of a futile servility, even to try conforming to the present usage."

To Dissatisfied Wives.

In the October number of Harper's Bazar, Mary Stewart Cutting continues her wide-discussed "Talks to Wives" with a paper addressed "To the wife who is growing dissatisfied." A great deal of this dissatisfaction, Mrs. Cutting believes, comes from the wrong attitude that other people assume toward the young wife. "She is pities for everything; pitied because 'a woman has so much to go through' * * * for having the sewing on her hands, and for being 'tied down;' pities because 'her husband doesn't realize all she goes through'—though, goodness knows, it isn't because she doesn't tell him, and it's her right to tell him if she wants to. She is pitied because she can't go to parties and make calls, and pitied for every ache and pain and limitation, herself. She must learn to guard against physical fatigue; to leave un- * * * as if each cause for pity had not its root in some joy or some gain or some privilege." The remedy, Mrs. Cutting thinks, lies largely with the wife done the nonessentials; to cultivate enthusiasm and a broader outlook; and, "for the rest, there's a simple prescription—to enjoy what we enjoy more than we dislike what we dislike. We don't get so tired if we do that."

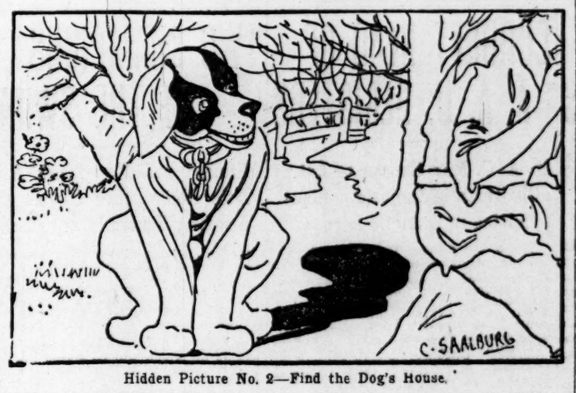
THE PETER PAN PUZZLES

Drawn for a Post-Dispatch Artist.



Hidden Picture No. 2—Find the Dog's House.

THE POST-DISPATCH here prints a hidden-picture puzzle. It will print one every day this week. Each picture is complete in itself, but if you will cut out and save the six pictures of each series and put them together properly at the end of the week you will be surprised to find that they make one big seventh picture that not only belongs to the group, but without which the series would be incomplete. Save the "Peter Pan" series and find the seventh hidden picture.

Women Travelers' Mannish Ways.

From the Philadelphia Record.

Women travelers, according to the testimony of hotel men, are more and more falling into the new fashion of omitting all descriptive prefix to their names when signing hotel registers, and the same practice is coming in, it is said, for letter writing. "It's bad enough when you can't tell from the signature whether a woman is madam or miss," says an Atlantic City hotel clerk, who came into the city the other day, "but still worse when she doesn't spell out her first name. 'R. E. Morse' nowadays is just as likely to be Rebecca as Robert, for instance. The only good point about the new style is that it serves to distinguish the woman drummer or other business woman from the old style of feminine creature who travels but little, for the latter kind generally still writes out the prefix in full, so that, according to the absence or presence of it, you know the absence of guest you have."

Cured of Rheumatism by Cooper's New Discovery

Humanity Should be Interested in a Remedy that Cured Disease

MR. COKER

Here is positive and convincing proof that we have a new discovery in medicine:

The Cooper Medicine Co.,

Gentlemen—Last fall I was taken down with a severe case of rheumatism. I suffered continually during the entire winter, neither physicians nor medicine giving me any relief.

Hearing of the remarkable cures effected by the Cooper remedies, I decided to try them, and before I had taken the first bottle, I was entirely relieved of every symptom of rheumatism.

I think Cooper's New Discovery one of the greatest rheumatism remedies known, and I hope every person who suffers from rheumatism like I did, will try this remarkable medicine and be cured.

Signed, E. C. COKER,
No. 522 Buchanan St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Rheumatism is a Blood Disease caused by the excessive acidity of the fluids of the system. The primary cause of rheumatism is indigestion. Undigested food ferments and sours and a poisonous acid is produced, which is taken up by the circulation and carried into the Heart, Lungs and Kidneys.

The organ which is in the most receptive condition receives the poison. Should the Kidneys become affected, uric acid is added to the acid from the stomach and is taken into every part of the system where the vital fluids circulate.

Cooper's New Discovery will neutralize these acids perfectly and expel them from the system, and will fill the veins with pure, rich, red and healthy blood.

Cooper's New Discovery costs $1.00 per bottle; six for $5.00. Cooper's Quick Relief, the assistant remedy, costs 50c per bottle. They are sold by

The Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Cor. Sixth St. and Washington Av.

BROADWAY BOXERS AMBITIOUS FELLOWS

South St. Louis Club Will Send Impressive Team to Local Tournaments.

Dr. E. A. Scott, athletic director of the South Broadway A. C. is planning to turn out an amateur boxing team to represent the club this winter that will be a winner. Last year Dr. Scott developed a number of men that in an inter-club tournament between the Missouri A. C. and South Broadway A. C. at the M. A. C. made the wearers of the Cherry Diamond hustle to win the meet by a narrow margin.

The Missouri A. C. men regard the boxers of the Crescent A. C. as a joke, but Dr. Scott at the South Broadway A. C. has turned out any number of amateur boxers and wrestlers that have defeated M. A. C. men.

The South Broadway will have Dick Senf, who has boxed for several years in the 145-pound class, Frank Raugh, who won for the South Broadway club in the 145-pound class at an M. A. C. tournament is another good man that the club is relying on. In Mike Dempsey, a red-haired 118-pound boy the club has a fast, clever boxer, who should develop into a first-class man. Dr. Scott is especially anxious to get Dempsey and Fred Jones, the M. A. C. 118-pounder, together.

Frank Schleter, a 135-pounder, who is known at the club as Battling Nelson because he resembles the Dane and can take any amount of punishment, is going to be a hard man to beat when he picks up a few more fine points of the game on the offensive. He fights in a crouch and when he wades in covered up it is almost impossible to find an opening through which to send a decisive punch.

The club also has several other promising boys who are being kept under cover. Besides Dr. Scott, Jean Jeanette, who knocked out Eddie Toy and several other good men and was formerly "Young Corbett's" sparring partner, works out with the South Broadway boys. The South Broadway club has lost the services of William Grupp, who was developed by Dr. Scott and won the W. A. A. U. 135-pound championship. The M. A. C. took Grupp away last spring and he cannot compete for the South Broadway A. C. until next spring because of the A. A. U. rules.

Dr. Scott is out with an offer for a dual tournament with the M. A. C. boxing team. He says that as long as the South Broadway team went to the M. A. C. last winter that the M. A. C. should be willing to return the favor by agreeing to a return tournament.

Dr. Scott says he knows that he could not accommodate all the M. A. C. club members that would want to see the contests at the South Broadway A. C., but that he plans to rent some big hall for the evening. There would be no admission fee of any kind, but only the members of the two clubs could witness the bout.

Dr. Scott said that it would be quite an expense, but that he knows that the members of the South Broadway A. C. would be willing to stand for it, as he is confident that the tournament would be a beauty.

Several wrestling bouts could also be put on, as the South Broadway A. C. numbers among its members Gus Tiefenthaler, the clever little 115-pounder, and Jack Pollock and Al Heltzenroeder, 145-pound men.

An amateur tournament will be held at the M. A. C. on Oct. 20 and it is probable that athletic director Bassett of the M. A. C. will accept the offer of a dual tournament with the South Broadway A. C. men for any time after that.

GRADY DEFEATS ROSS AT GLOUCESTER.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 18.—Mike Grady of Boston won the decision over Gus Ross in 12 rounds last night in the Gloucester Athletic Club. Grady had the advantage of the earliest rounds, but in the ninth and tenth Ross came back strong and did the leading. When the bell tapped at the beginning of the eleventh honors were even, but in the eleventh and twelfth it was all Grady and he easily won the decision.

CORBETT HEAD OF A. A. U. REGISTERS

M. A. C. Man Chosen to Act as Chairman of Important Committee in Athletic Affairs.

While the annual meeting of the western division of the A. A. U. for the purpose of electing officers and transacting other important business was held in the Board of Governors' room on the third floor of the Missouri A. C. Monday evening, the genuine session was held in the lobby of the club before the delegates went upstairs. Everything was framed up nicely so that when the delegates went up to the board room all that remained to be done was to go through the motions.

In all there were over forty men gathered in the M. A. C. lobby, and they moved about in groups. It was soon arranged that John J. O'Connor, who has held the office of president for four years, should be re-elected in spite of the fact that he declared positively that under no conditions would he accept the position again.

When the M. A. C. and Kansas City men saw how matters were going there was a hurried conference and it was agreed that they should stick together, and that J. Arthur Corbett should be elected chairman of the Registration Committee while the M. A. C. was also to boost the K. C. A. C. for several offices.

Everything agreed upon the representatives of the clubs went up to hold their meeting. After Mr. O'Connor had made a speech urging the W. A. A. U. to try to secure more public playgrounds, Treasurer Bailey read his report showing that the W. A. A. U. had 790 registered amateurs, the club representatives were asked to name the delegates from their clubs.

The M. A. C. men, Wallace McCargo, Athletic Director Bassett and J. Arthur Corbett, sprang a surprise by naming Mr. Corbett as the M. A. C's. representative on the Board of Governors, which made it impossible for Wallace McCargo to accept any office. Mr. McCargo was not after Mr. O'Connor's position, but Mr. O'Connor had announced that he was going to retire and that Mr. McCargo would be a good man for the position.

McCargo in the lobby session had learned that Mr. O'Connor was to be re-elected, and as he had all he wanted of the job of chairman of the Registration Committee, he decided to get out by having some other man represent the M. A. C. on the board of governors. Only members of the board can act as officers for the division.

Then came the election of a president. Florence Curran nominated John J. O'Connor. Mr. O'Connor protested, but it was moved that the nominations close. Mr. O'Connor put the question and he was unanimously elected.

Mr. Corbett was elected chairman of the Registration Committee.

It was necessary to have two more members on the committee, and Florence J. Curran and John C. O'Brien were the men who received the highest number of votes, and they were appointed to assist Mr. Corbett. Delaney, Stephens and Hercus, the latter representing the Scottish Clans, were also nominated, Hercus receiving six votes, Stephens two and Delaney none. O'Brien received 10 and Curran eight. Theodoric Bland was again elected official handicapper for the division. C. T. Beck of the Central Y. M. C. A. was named as secretary and treasurer.

The delegates to the National A. A. U. meeting, to be held on Nov. 21, at New York, were then named, after which the meeting adjourned. It was a very quiet and lady-like session in the board room, but on the first floor some of the wire-pulling that was done would do credit to a topnotch downtown ward politician.

OF Interest to Inquirers

K. D. B.—How many rounds did the fight between John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain last? Sullivan defeated Kilrain in 75 rounds at Richburg, Miss., on July 8, 1889.

A. B.—A batted ball hits the pitcher's leg and the second baseman fields the ball and throws the runner out. Do pitcher and second baseman both get credit for assist? Yes.

Bramsch—Man on second base and none out. Batter swings at ball and hits to third baseman, who throws to first base, retiring batter, but man on second reaches third on the play. It was not the batter's intention to sacrifice. Does the batter get credit for a sacrifice hit? No.

89 — How many fingers has Miner Brown, and is he a right or left-handed pitcher? Brown has the first two fingers, half of the third and his thumb. He is a right-hand pitcher.

C. W.—Does George Stone reside in St. Louis? Stone resides in St. Louis during the baseball season, but his home is at Red Cloud, Neb.

I. H.—How many times did the Browns win the pennant? The old Browns won the championship of the American Association in 1885, 1886, 1887 and 1888.

Quiz—Is not the Cornell, 1906, eight considered the fastest American college crew? It is a matter of opinion. Cornell defeated Harvard rather easily in the spring, but many claim that Harvard improved very much later on.

H. B. Ewing—Is not Holly, Hostetter and Hoelsketter the same person? Yes, but the Cardinals have a new man named Ed Holly, and trouble is liable to ensue over the names.

W. J. C.—Who do you think is the most valuable man to his team, Frank Chance of Chicago, Hans Wagner of Pittsburg or Lajole or Cleveland? Wagner, to Pittsburg; without his fielding at short and his batting, the Pirates would be sadly crippled. Wallace is even more indispensable to St. Louis.

TWO CHAMPIONS OF THE SWIMS

Missouri and New York Athletic Clubs Have Claims to Leading Honors in Aquatics.

To avoid any unfavorable comment the Missouri A. C. has decided to award two banners for the recent National A. A. U. swimming championships. The Missouri A. C., counting points for the junior and intermediate events as well as the senior events, scored 48 points to 46 for the New York A. C.

The M. A. C., however, will receive a banner on which will be stated the fact that the Missouri A. C. scored the greatest number of points in the junior, intermediate and senior events at the National swimming championships. To the New York A. C. will be awarded the championship banner proper, as New York scored 45 points in the senior or championship events. The Missouri A. C. scored 31, while the Chicago A. A. secured 11 and the Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. 3, while the Muegge Institute gained 13 points.

As points for the championship banner at the annual track meet are awarded for points scored in the senior events and not in the junior events, the M. A. C. figured that it would be unjust to claim the championship, although it was the first year the junior and intermediate events had ever been decided at a swimming meet and the M. A. C. could probably have done so. It is probable that at next year's championships that a banner for the junior and intermediate championship, as well as the senior championship, will be awarded.

GETTING READY FOR HORSE SHOW

Big Prizes Expected to Bring Fine Horses and Fine Horses to Bring Fine People.

Four big feature prizes are to be offered by the St. Louis Horse Show Society for its coming exhibition at the Coliseum during the week commencing Monday, Oct. 8. These prizes will be $500 each, and will be for heavy harness horses, gaited saddle horses, runabout horses and roadsters. These are the largest prizes ever put up by a St. Louis Horse Show. It is expected that they will draw the best horses in the country. Numerous purses of $200 a piece will be offered and all told the money to be hung up will be considerably in excess of what has ever before been given away at a St. Louis show.

One of the biggest show ring exhibitors, Lawrence Jones, the Louisville millionaire, has declared his intention of sending his entire string here. Mr. Jones has the largest and finest collection of heavy harness and show ring horses in Kentucky, and this year his stable is larger and better than ever. He was a prominent winner at St. Louis last year, and at Louisville beat Mr. Reginald Vanderbilt's horses in almost every event in which both competed. Mr. Jones also carried off some valuable ribbons at the New York show over the biggest stables on the continent.

A large number of entries are also promised from the Campbell Horse Co. of the National Stock Yards, East St. Louis. This will be the first time this firm has ever consented to exhibit at a St. Louis show.

It has been decided to again offer prizes for decorations of stores in the Horse Show colors, green and white. Most of the large department stores have delared that their decorations this year will be more elaborate and beautiful than ever before, and many stores in other lines of trade will also make handsome displays. The green and white buttons of the Horse Show are to be seen in many coat lapels and interest in the affair seems keen.

The posters selected for this year are expected in a few days. They are even handsomer than those of previous shows, surpassing anything ever seen here.

SCHAAB DEMANDS PROOF OF CHARGES

President Southwestern Rowing Association Would Have Accuser Punished.

A meeting of the Southwestern Amateur Association has been called for Friday night by Secretary Ernest J. Hess, at the request of President John Schaab. Routine business will be transacted but the most important matter to be considered is the charges that President Schaab will file against one of the members of the St. Louis Rowing Club.

At the annual regatta of the Southwestern Amateur Rowing Association, held at Creve Coeur Lake a couple of months ago, after the races on senior day, Sunday, one of the members of the St. Louis Rowing Club is alleged to have made a public charge that the officials of the S. W. A. R. A. were grafters and that they were receiving money from concessionaires at the lake for their own personal purposes.

President Schaab heard the statement and for a few moments was going to personally call its maker to account. He determined to bring the matter up at a meeting of the association, however. President Schaab and the oarsmen know who the St. Louis Rowing Club man that made the remark is, but they refuse to give his name.

It is thought that the only thing that can be done is to have the association ask the St. Louis Rowing Club to either have their man prove his charges or the club will be asked to expel him. The meeting Friday night will be held at the St. James Hotel.

ST. L. RUGBIANS AT LAKE BEULAH

Big Men, Strong Men, Fast Men and Great Kickers Join University Squad in North.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAKE BEULAH, Wis., Sept. 18.—Hughes, a 200-pound guard, from Carbondale, Ill., has reported and showed up well in practice. He is fast on his feet and has the making of a good man. Robison is kicking better than ever. He succeeded in landing eight out of ten drop kicks from the 45-yard line and he is punting fully 55 yards on an average.

Capt. Kenny is temporarily laid up with a strained back. Coach Cochems was ill Saturday and Sunday with malaria, but is somewhat better and will resume his duties today. Practice consisted of puting, catching, kicks and forward passing.

At present the squad consists of Capt. Kenny, Robinson, Gillick, Clancy, Orr, all of last year's team; Murphy, a fast man who played quarterback on St. Mary's College team '08; Acker, 175, halfback from the University of Southern California; Law, 170-pound halfback from Drury, and Schneider of last year's track team.

ASK INTERNATIONAL SWIMMING RULES

Englishmen Wish Co-Operation of America in Formulating Aquatic Code.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A. Baxter of Manchester, England, president of the Amateur Swimming Association of Great Britain and one of Britain's acknowledged authorities on water polo, is now in this country on a short visit. Mr. Baxter will visit Travers Island and other points of interest. Yesterday Mr. Baxter talked with James E. Sullivan, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, in regard to forming an international association for the government of swimming, the idea being to create a body that will make uniform laws, define an amateur and establish distances in swimming for which records will be accepted.

Mr. Baxter was amazed at the American lack of interest in swimming. He says that in Manchester alone they have 2000 swimmers competing, and that much of their success is due to the fact that they have plenty of baths to encourage the youngsters. This country is considered absolutely weak when one considers the indoor bath question.

BASEBALL BABBLE

The Ravens and Highlanders will clash again Tuesday afternoon. Glade or Powell will go to the mound for the McAleerites while Orth or Doyle will twirl for Griffith's men.

Rockenfield found Chesbro's shoots safely three times. Ike was at bat four times.

Niles, Jones, Hemphill and O'Brien gathered clusters of two hits each. Hartsell made one. Stone, O'Connor and Peity failed to get any.

Rickey batted for Pelty in the ninth inning and fanned fallaciously.

Laporte swung his willow best for the Highlanders. He made two hits in four trials. Keeler manufactured two in five attempts.

Niles swung away outside of third base in the ninth inning and Conroy's beautiful throw caught him by inches at the plate.

Chase with a double to left was the author of the only extra base hit of the game.

Griffith made too much fuss and when he insisted upon treating Umpire Connolly to some of the choice words of his vocabulary he was chased off the grounds.

Williams, Laporte and Chase pulled off the only double play

Chase stole second and third base in the initial inning, but his thefts worked nothing in the way of scoring.

Niles, Jones, Hemphill, Rockenfield and O'Brien each stole a base off Kleinow.

Chesbro's spit ball caused six Ravens to miss it three times.

Bobby Wallace was on the coaching lines Monday afternoon. He still walks with a visible limp.

Elberfield covered a world of ground around the space between third and second base. He made a couple of nice stops and throws.

Spike Shannon batted .333 Monday. Spike made one hit in three tries.

Chase can get low ones, high ones, fast ones, slow ones and any old kind of ones. He is surely a wonder.

O'Hara, the outfielder from the Tristate League, and McGlynn, the pitcher from the York club, will join the Cardinals this afternoon at Philadelphia.

The Cardinals will open at Philadelphia, where they will play a three-game series.

Buster Brown or Carl Druhot will probably go in the box for Manager McCloskey. The Cardinals will likely be opposed by Pittinger.

Ed Holly of the Johnstown club will join the Cardinals in Philadelphia on Wednesday.

The Giants hammered a young pitcher named Moser for 15 hits and 13 runs. Two triples and a double were included in the 15.

Two doubles and two triples in the second and seventh innings was the direct cause of the Blues' downfall. Rhoades was on the slab for the Larrupers, while Falkenberger adorned the National green with his bean-pole figure. Anderson and Stahl batted best for the winners. Each made two hits. Turner and Rossman did the same as Anderson and Stahl. Schafly accepted the eight chances sent his way in faultless style.

Jiggs Donohue used his club best for the White Sox. He was the author of a pair of hits in four times at bat.

Lord Shean, Oldring and Waddell each made two hits for the Athletics.

The Athletics made 21 assists and four errors in 11 innings of play.

Donovan of Detroit was punctured for 12 hits and seven runs by the Beaneaters. A double and two triples were included in the dozen.

Payne of Detroit continues to bat like a madman. Monday he made three hits in four trials. McIntyre broke even. He made two in four efforts.

Tannehill lead the Boston aggregation with the bat. He was at bat twice and each time he stung the sphereoid saiefly.

Godwin batted once and made a hit, when he hurt his leg and was forced to retire.

The White Sox won an 11-inning game from the Athletics by the score of 5 to 4. Waddell handed the shoots for Connie Mack, while Walsh was on the line for Comiskey.

So Harry Niles, who has a beloved wife and two children up in Michigan, is to be the next Raven ti get married? What is McAleer running a baseball club or a branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints? Of course, the paper which printed such an atrocious and unfounded statement could not be any other than of the same order which had Glade going to New York, Mertes being traded for Elberfeld and Welgand playing third for the Ravens. To be sure, only a trifle of unfortunate readers is deceived and misled by such absurd statements as these latter, but it may pain a gentle woman to read a statement that her husband is to be married. But what do such people know of the feelings of gentlewomen?

The White Sox still lead the Highlanders by eight points. The race for the pennant in the American League has narrowed down to the Highlanders and White Sox. The Highlanders are 48 points in front of Connie Mack's men, and unless they take a decided slump the Athletics will never catch them.

Several interesting handball matches were played on Engine Co. No. 35's court Sunday. Jack Lydon, playing with Mulvoy Jr. of 35's, defeated Fitzgerald, and Costello of No. 7's, 21—8, 21—20, 21—11. Lydon and Mulvoy challenge any two players in the city under 20 years of age. Murdoch and Pohl of 35's defeated Lester Fitzgerald and Walsh, 21—19, 21—20.

ATTELL MATCHED WITH M'GOVERN

Skillful Featherweight Agrees to Battle Slugging Lightweight at Philadelphia.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—After negotiations which have existed over the past two months, Abe Attell, featherweight champion of the world, was yesterday virtually matched with Terry McGovern for a six-round bout in Philadelphia. The matter of weight was settled when Attell, who reached New York yesterday, agreed to meet McGovern at catch weights, with the proviso that the actual poundage of both men be announced to the audience from the ringside.

The National Athletic Club of Philadelphia was given first call on the match. Manager McGuigan has held out inducements to both men, and Attell last night wired McGuigan that he would sign articles if guaranteed $3500 for his end. As the club manager has repeatedly told both boxers that they would draw far in excess of $10,000 at his club, Attell believes that his terms are reasonable.

KANSAS CITY VS. MISSOURI A. C.

Physical Director of Former Organization Wishes to Arrange Dual Meets.

While Martin Delaney, athletic director of the Kansas City A. C., was in the city Monday he asked President Joseph Guyett of the Missouri A. C. why the M. A. C. and K. C. A. C. could not get together in some dual athletic events.

Delaney proposed to play the M. A. C. basket ball and also offered to meet the M. A. C. in a dual indoor track meet at Kansas City this winter. Mr. Guyett declared that he could give no reason why the athletic teams of the two clubs should not come together, and assured Delaney that he would take up the matter with the Athletic Committee of the M. A. C.

Meanwhile Delaney says he has heard nothing at all from Manager of Athletics Caldwell of Missouri University, who is trying to promote a dual meet between the M. A. C. and K. C. A. C. track teams to take place on the Missouri University athletic field at Columbia, Mo. Athletic Director Bassett of the M. A. C. has received several letters from Caldwell, but Delaney says all he knows about the proposed meet is what he read in the Post-Dispatch.

The Kansas City man said that he knows of but one good reason for holding the meet at Columbia and that is that there are eight Missouri University men who could compete on the M. A. C. team who could not leave school to do so if the meet was held any other place but Columbia. Delaney is not averse to competing against the M. A. C. at Columbia, but is waiting to hear from Caldwell before he will say whether or not he is willing. Delaney returned to Kansas City Monday night on a late train.

PLAY AT PLATE DECIDED FATE

Not Until Niles Was Touched Out at Home in Ninth Were the Ravens Defeated.

New York won one of the most exciting games of the season at Sportsman's Park Monday, when the Ravens went down to defeat before Chesbro and the Highlanders, 4 to 3. Up to the seventh inning the game had been a grand struggle between Pitchers Chesbro and Barney Pelty. St. Louis had scored one run in the fourth and were leading.

In the eighth the Highlanders tallied twice, but St. Louis, by good baserunning and nice hitting, scored two more in their half of the eighth, giving to McAleer's men the lead, 3 to 2. Pelty's fumble on Conroy's bunt, after Laporte singled, followed by Hoffman's sacrifice and Kleinow's single, gave New York two more runs in the ninth and the game, 4 to 3.

The Ravens made a grand try in the ninth, but could not quite make connections. With but one run needed to tie, Niles singled and stole second. Jones singled to left. Niles tried to come home on the hit, but Conroy's great throw to the plate nailed Harry by inches, after which Stone and Hemphill fanned.

Do Your Feet Hurt?

THE SPORTSMAN'S NICHE

Rugby football will afford more interesting study during the approaching season than it has furnished in many years. This, for the reason that coaches and players will be confronted with new and unusual conditions. Under these we shall have a chance to discern and mark the merit of football players and instructors. The men who will succeed this fall will be, you may be sure, of parts, of originality and of a resource. It will be well to watch them for reference in years to come.

It is amusing to read some of the pre-season gossip concerning some of the plays, teams, etc. For instance, Missouri University is lamenting a lack of weight and size in her men. While it will ever be that a good, big man shall be superior to a good little man, it is by no means certain that under the new rules weight will at all be the sine quan non it was under the old. With flying passes instead of flying wedges, forward passes on side punts, etc., it would appear that speed and celeritous cogitation should be of more importance than mere dull weight. To be sure, the big man who is fast and of foot and fancy will always overcome the little man similarly equipped. But big men so blessed are always scarce. So the small man will have a chance.

George Brooke, the football expert of the Post-Dispatch, is advising young players to armor up. Frankly I cannot see where armor will assist the player under the new rules. It was the most objectionable feature of the old game in that it handicapped speed and made battering possible. Now with the battering ram largely prohibited, with rough playing severely punished and with speed and clarity of vision so much of a desideratum, it seems to me that a return to the jersey and running pants of English rugby would be about the right thing.

We shall watch the developments of football this fall with great pleasure and some curiosity. Not only shall we see the game grow up under our eyes, we shall learn who is who in rugby, who is possessed of original comprehensive and receptive faculties and who depends upon the old "army" game for results.

It should be a great year for coaches. He who succeeds in 1906 should command respect and his own price in 1907.

A philosophizing correspondent writes to protest against the shipment of Mertes and Grady to other clubs simply because, as he says, they dared to aspire to their manager's position. He proceeds to quote the Constitution of the United States, which guarantees life, liberty and freedom of aspiration to citizens who live under it, and accuses McCloskey of little-mindedness in being inclined to fire Mertes and Grady for looking for his job.

All of which is, in the abstract, no doubt, quite true. Yet it is not the custom of men to let others stick the stilleto in them and while the blade envenoms their bowels fall into rhapsodies of admiration over the carving on the pearl handle. More particularly is this lack of admiration of the pluted haft liable to lacking when said handle sticks out of the back, which is the place. McCloskey's friends say. Mertes and Grady handed it to him.

When Pitcher Fromme, with Springfield, Ill., defeated the Chicago Cubs, the Cardinals forthwith signed him. Then, with the Cardinals behind him, the Cubs defeated Fromme. All of which inevitably leads us to the conclusion that the only mistake McCloskey made when he signed the pitcher who beat the Cubs, was that he did not sign the team which helped him beat them.

Also, with Holly, who is Hoelsketter, and Holly who is Holly, the Cardinals are qualifying for nomenclature of the Hully Gee order.

Somehow or other we do not seem to "fall" for the fall series between the Cardinals and the Ravens. In all truth both seem to have done enough of falling without insisting upon falling some more with the flowers that fall in the fall.

NEGRO HUGS YOUNG LADY.

He Follows Her Off Car in Webster Groves.

Miss Fannie Winthers, 22 years old, who was attacked by a negro near her home in Webster Groves, was unable Tuesday to identify James Lyles, a negro living in Webster Groves, as the man who followed her Saturday night and put his arm around her. Lyles, who had been arrested on suspicion by Marshal Nace, was released.

Miss Winthers was detained late Saturday by shopping in St. Louis. As she was going home on a Suburban car she noticed a negro looking at her. She left the car at Swan and Elm avenues, Webster Groves, and the negro leaped off after the car had gone 100 feet farther.

He overtook her and put his arm around her. She tore loose and ran screaming to the home of M. Harmon, near by, the negro still following. Night Marshal Donworth was attracted by the screams, but the negro had disappeared when he arrived.

HONOLULU CONGESTED.

Two Wrecks Cause Great Inconvenience to Passengers.

HONOLULU, Sept. 18.—As a result of the stranding of the Manchuria and the transport Sheridan, both on their way to the Orient, and now followed by the Mongolia striking a reef near Midway Island, all within less than a month, there is much congestion of passengers here and the long interruptions of mails are causing great inconvenience.

Many people who were traveling on important business are stranded here. Some of them intended sailing on the Mongolia, others on the Buford. The latter was scheduled to sail for San Francisco tonight till 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the order was received to proceed to Midway Island.

The Midway trip is most unwelcome to steamship officers as the locality is notoriously dangerous because of the reefs and currents. The tug Iroquois, the largest and most powerful tug in Honolulu, will probably leave for Midway tomorrow.

The Sunday Post-Dispatch has over ONE-HALF MILLION more readers than any other newspaper west of the Mississippi.

"First in everything."

Needn't Worry, Says Evans.

Chairman Evans of the Democratic State Committee, who presided at a session of his court in Shannon County last week, returned to headquarters Monday.

"Everything is in good shape for the Democrats in the country districts," said Chairman Evans to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I see no reason for the Democracy to worry about the result of the November election. The Republicans are doing all the talking, while the Democrats are remaining quiet, but working effectively."

UNEXPECTEDLY WEDS GIRL AT HOME OF HIS FIANCEE, WHO ATTENDS

Youth Greeted at Door by Intended Bride, Is Suddenly Escorted by Wedding Party to Altar, Where He Is Married to First Love, Whom He Jilted

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—William Frank Thober of Newark, N. J., had the novel experience of plighting his marriage vows to a girl he had never intended to wed, while his fiance, clad in her bridal finery, acted as bridemaid.

The marriage took place Saturday at No. 249 Fifty-third street, Brooklyn, the home of Miss Mary MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. MacDonald. Twenty-four hours later she was to have become the bride of Thober, after an engagement of six months. The bride-to-have-been had barely recovered from the shock of this tragic scene when her brother, who had been ill only a few days, died suddenly yesterday.

When Thober arrived at the MacDonald residence on Saturday evening, it was filled with the fragrance of flowers. All appeared to be in readiness for the wedding, which was to take place the next evening. It was to be the culmination of a romance that began a year ago, when the young man, successful in business ventures in Trenton, met Mary MacDonald at the home of mutual friends in Brooklyn.

Thober bounded up the steps and entered the house, happy over the prospect of his marriage with the girl he loved. As he had fondly hoped, she met him at the door. She was in her wedding gown of white. She had nerved herself for just such a greeting and with Spartan courage acted her part without flinching.

"Why, Mary, how beautiful you look!" exclaimed Thober. "You must be all ready and waiting."

At that moment they were joined by Bartholomew Griffin, Miss MacDonald's brother-in-law. Mr. Griffin said that all was in readiness for the wedding.

"Yes, so I see," replied Thober, "and I can hardly wait till tomorrow night."

"Well, if you feel that way about it I guess there is no necessity for waiting," added Mr. Griffin. "Come with us," he said.

He and Miss Mae MacDonald led the astonished Thober into the drawing room. Once inside the room, Mr. Griffin gave a signal and in marched the wedding guests. At their head came Miss Violet Glover, and immediately behind her were her father and mother.

Intended Bride Present.

"I have taken the trouble to arrange all the formalities for your marriage," said Mr. Griffin. "The ring is here and everything is in readiness. There is no reason for any further delay. The Rev. Mr. Meyer here is pastor of St. Jacob's Lutheran Church, and he will perform the ceremony for you and Miss Glover. Mary here will be her bridemaid and Mr. Casey has consented to act as your best man."

For a moment Thober seemed to be at a loss to understand what was going on around him. He stood facing Miss Glover like one in a trance. Then he turned a pleading look at the girl he had expected to make his bride. She smiled encouragement and nodded toward the young woman who was waiting for him to join her before the clergyman.

As the situation dawned on Thober he turned his gaze first on the door and then toward a window as if the thought of attempting to escape had flashed across his mind. But every avenue appeared to have been cut off. Stern-visaged men and women were all about him, so he decided to accept the inevitable. Joining hands with Miss Glover he led her up to the clergyman and the marriage service was soon over.

None but those most deeply concerned have realized that a tragedy was being enacted in the little drawing room, gay in its wedding finery. To all appearances, a happier bridemaid than Miss MacDonald never witnessed a marriage service. She was all solicitude for the girl who was taking the vows with the man she herself had expected to call husband.

Even the wedding supper was not wanting and one of the merriest of those seated around the table was Mary MacDonald, who was at the bride's side.

But there was one notable absentee. The bridegroom himself was missing.

Hardly had the final words of the ceremony been pronounced when Thober was summoned into the hall, and there Mr. Griffin handed him his hat, while Mr. Casey, the best man, ceremoniously opened the front door.

Absence Requested.

Mrs. MacDonald came out at that moment and said:

"You had better leave us now, Mr. Thober. I hope you will spare me the necessity of saying more at this time."

There was icy determination in her words, and Thober, still dazed to the point of speechlessness, took his hat and departed. Immediately after the wedding supper the bride returned to her home, 173 Summer avenue, Newark. With the departure of the last of the wedding guests, Miss MacDonald collapsed.

It had been agreed that the strange wedding should be kept quiet, although Mrs. MacDonald had insisted that notice be given of her daughter's engagement. That notice appeared yesterday in a Brooklyn newspaper. It was:

"Engagement of marriage between Miss Mary MacDonald and William Frank Thober is canceled, owing to the bridegroom having a wife in Newark.

"MRS. R. A. MACDONALD,
249 Fifty-third st., Brooklyn."

By prearrangement a notice was published simultaneously in the Newark newspapers at the instance of Mrs. Glover, the bride's mother, to the effect that her daughter had been married secretly to Thober in Brooklyn on Dec. 21 last. This was supplemented with the statement that it had been a runaway marriage and that although there was objection to it at first it had finally ended happily and the family blessing had been given to the pair.

Thober is only 22 years old, but has been in business for himself several years in Trenton and has met with considerable success. His home in Newark is only a few doors from that of the Glovers and the two families have been intimate for many years.

Young Thober was three years the senior of Viola Glover. They played together as children, and even before they were out of school it was understood that some day they were to be married. The neighborhood was interested and great was the amazement some seven or eight months ago when it became noised abroad that the engagement was at an end.

It was by mere chance that he met Miss Mary MacDonald about a year ago. He had gone to Brooklyn on business, and while visiting the home of a friend was introduced to her. She was pretty and just 19. It was not long before the young man found an excuse to call at her home and was desperately in love.

Told of First Love.

One day last week Miss MacDonald chanced to meet a young man from Newark at the home of a friend in Brooklyn. Up to that time she never had a single doubt as to Thober's sincerity. She had several times visited the Thobers in Newark and was happy to know she would have such charming relatives after her marriage to her chance acquaintance from Newark. She happened to mention Thober's name.

"Why, is it possible that you know Frank Thober?" asked the young man. Miss MacDonald blushingly admitted that she knew him quite well, and said she had once visited at his home.

"I have known Mr. Thober for quite a long time," continued the young man. "He was engaged to a very sweet girl over there at one time, and I presume we shall be hearing of their wedding before very long. The girl is a Miss Glover, daughter of a wealthy baker."

Miss MacDonald was shocked at the news. Thober in his lovemaking had assured her many times that he had never loved another, and she had never doubted him. Now it was different. She confided her fears to her mother, and that evening her brother-in-law called at the MacDonald home. He advised the family to make a quiet investigation.

Miss MacDonald at first demurred and said she would not permit her doubts to carry her to such an extreme, but her mother sided with Mr. Griffin and his counsel finally prevailed. A friend of the family spent some time in Newark last Wednesday.

Not only was the report of Thober's devotions to Miss Glover confirmed, but he came back with a report that was even more alarming.

With the wedding only a few days off a family council was held and Mr. Griffin insisted that they must investigate the matter themselves before it was too late. Miss MacDonald gave a reluctant consent, and on Friday she and Mr. Griffin went to Newark. They called on Miss Glover and she confirmed all they had heard about Thober. Innocent of the fact that she was talking to his bride-elect, she told how she had been engaged to him nearly a year ago, and when she had prepared her trousseau four months ago he suddenly broke off the engagement without assigning a reason.

Information Exchanged.

She said she had trusted him implicitly until the very day he deserted her. Miss MacDonald then tearfully told Miss Glover of her engagement to Thober.

"Of course, I shall never marry him now," said Miss MacDonald. "He has done you the greater wrong, and if it lies in my power I shall see that he makes reparation as far as he can. He shall marry you. Tomorrow night he is coming over to Brooklyn to my home to stay until our wedding on Sunday. You must come over there in the afternoon and wait there until he comes to see me."

Miss MacDonald returned home with her brother-in-law and another family council was held. It was decided to make all preparations for a wedding and then take Thober by surprise. Mr. Griffin called on the Rev. Mr. Myer and told him the circumstances. The clergyman agreed to perform the ceremony providing the young man consented to it when the time came.

Early Saturday Miss Glover, with her father and mother, had reached the MacDonald home. Mr. Glover at first refused to stay and meet Thober lest his temper might get the better of him and lead him to attack the young man, but wiser counsel prevailed and so he was present at the wedding. It was Miss MacDonald who cooled the parental wrath and interceded for Thober.

"After all, it was the happiest termination the affair could have had," said Mrs. MacDonald yesterday. "It would have been a great misfortune, indeed, if we had not discovered Mr. Thober's relations with Miss Glover in time to prevent his marriage with my daughter. And now in our great sorrow over my son's death I trust that we shall be spared further annoyance about this marriage."

GOOD RESULTS IN LUNG TROUBLE

MRS. VICTOR A. BEAUCAIRE.

Mrs. Victor A. Beaucaire, a prominent club woman of Chicago, Ill., contracted a severe cold from being exposed in bad weather which resulted in serious lung trouble.

Mrs. Beaucaire, after taking several doses of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, says it has helped her wonderfully, brought the color to her cheeks, and that she would not be without it.

She pays high tribute to the world's greatest tonic stimulant in the following letter:

"As I am a member of the Hull House Women's Club, I was called out many times when the weather was very bad and so caught a very hard cough, and doctors claimed that my lungs were affected; in fact the left lung was almost gone, but since I have taken your valuable DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY, I feel better and would not do without it. I have not been taking it very long, but I am sure of good results; I have good color in my face and feel that I can work with a great deal more ambition. I cannot praise it too much. I have recommended it to several of my friends and they, too, are thankful for the benefit they have already derived from it." Mrs. Victor A. Beaucaire, 255 Ogden Av., Chicago, Ill. May 4, '06.

DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY

If you wish to keep strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions, and take no other medicine. It is dangerous to fill your system with drugs, they poison the body and depress the heart, while Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is the only whiskey that is recognized as a medicine. This is a guarantee. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has stood severe tests for fifty years and has always been found absolutely pure, free from fusel oil and to contain great medicinal properties.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist or grocer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal whiskey, and is sold only in sealed bottles—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00. Medical booklet and doctor's advice free. THE "Apollo"
Piano

Is the Only "Complete" Piano in the World

It is the only "player piano" that has telescoping end centers, and a take-up roll for playing all the different standard perforated music rolls; in fact, it contains five distinct scales of 58, 65, 70, 82 and 88 notes each.

This means the entire range of the modern piano keyboard, 7 1-3 octaves—88 notes can be used most effectively in this player.

No other "Player Piano" (Combination Piano) or Cabinet Piano Player has a range of over 5 octaves—65 notes.

The "Apollo" also has the unique and superior feature of being the only instrument with a Transposing Tracker Range (mouthpiece), by which the music can be transposed to a different "key" to suit any voice or accompanying instrument, such as violin, flute, mandolin, guitar, cornet, etc.

Special Notice

The "Apollo" can be had in the form of an easily moved separate cabinet, ADJUSTABLE to any upright, square or grand piano, but not fastened to it, and easily rolled away when hand playing is desired.

The "Apollo" Piano is a high-grade, standard upright piano, with the Apollo Concert Grand mechanism included in the case, always ready for either hand playing or automatic playing.

BEEF TRUST GETS INDEPENDENT PLANT

Purchase of Two Local Concerns by Nelson Morris Co. Leaves the "Big Three" Practically Without Competition in St. Louis Field and Removes Limit on Prices.

The purchase of the Independent Stockyards Co. and the St. Louis Packing Co. by the Nelson Morris Packing Co. of Chicago has given the "Big Three," Armour, Swift and the Morrises, practically a monopoly of the local packing business, and has placed the St. Louis market where prices can be forced almost at will.

The Independent Stockyards Co. and the St. Louis Packing Co. were the largest independent packing plants in the city, and controlled 70 per cent of the independent meat output. Their daily capacity is about 2000 head of cattle.

The purchase of the Independent Stockyards Co. and the St. Louis Packing Co. leaves only two important independent packing houses in the city—the Independent Packing Co. and the Frey Packing Co. Their combined daily capacity is estimated at about 400 head of cattle.

C. D. Middleton, who represented the Morris interests in the purchase of the local plants, said that his company was not considering the purchase of any additional plants here at present. The competition of the remainder was not such, he said, as to cause annoyance and the local market was now practically under control. He would not say whether any advance in meat prices will be made in the immediate future.

The prices paid for the control of the companies purchased is withheld, but it is said the deal involved over $500,000. The Union Packing Co. is capitalized at $1,000,000, and the Independent Stock Yards Co. at $100,000.

A corporate reorganization followed the transfer of the property, and several new directors were elected to the board to fill the places of stockholders who disposed of their holdings to the trust.

The new officers of the packing company elected were L. H. Heyman, president, and C. D. Middleton, vice-president, both of Chicago. Middlebrook will manage the plant. J. F. Apple of St. Louis was elected secretary and treasurer. Mathew Courtney retires as president of the stockyards company.

E. St. Louis News

Mrs. A. H. Murphy of 3145 Bond avenue lost two diamond rings valued at $250 while washing her hands in the Missouri Trust Building, St. Louis.

Mrs. Lulu Kincaid, aged 24, of 357 Railroad avenue, swallowed laudanum with suicidal intent Monday night, but Drs. Wiggins and Moeller declared her out of danger, after working with her for several hours. She left a note to her husband, Angelo Kincaid, saying, "What made me do it? You know, Goodbye." Her husband said that he and his wife had had a quarrel because he was out of work and had no money.

John Frieze and wife of 2723 Ridge avenue returned Monday from a four months' tour of Ireland, England and Germany.

The forty-third annual celebration of Emancipation day will be held Saturday at Rehhart's Grove by the Afro-American State League. A parade will precede the celebration and a barbecue will be a feature of the meeting.

H. H. Cook, saloon keeper, near Third street and Broadway, was fined $10 and costs Monday by Justice Hriday on a charge of violating the Sunday closing law. After his release he was rearrested, charged with selling liquor without a license.

John Regan of 2200 Missouri avenue was accidentally shot through the right hand Monday while handling a 32-caliber revolver.

WOMAN BEATEN BY SALOON KEEPER

Assailant Gets Warrant for Himself and Pays Fine to Thwart Prosecution.

J. C. Shelton, a saloon keeper at 225 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, went to Justice Brady's court Monday afternoon and entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery "by striking Mrs. F. R. Rehbach with his open hand," and was fined $5 and costs. The fine was remitted and Shelton was released upon the payment of the costs, amounting to $4.85. He was later arrested on a State warrant on the complaint of Mrs. Rehbach's husband, charging him with assault to do bodily harm, and gave bond for his appearance before Justice McKane.

Mrs. Rehbach is confined to her bed with a broken right arm, broken cheek bone, left arm twisted and sprained, a serious cut on the right side of her face, one eye swollen and closed, and she is internally injured. Dr. State, who is attending her, said Tuesday that she is in a serious condition, and that she is spitting blood resulting from internal injuries, but that the extent of the internal injuries could not be ascertained yet.

Mrs. Rehbach and her husband conduct a cleaning and dyeing establishment at 227 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, adjoining Shelton's saloon, which is known as the Blue Ribbon Bar. The assault was committed on the porch in the rear of the saloon and just outside of the rear door of Mrs. Rehbach's kitchen.

According to Mrs. Rehbach and her husband, Shelton called Mrs. Rehbach out of her kitchen to the porch, and C. A. Palmer, Shelton's bartender, shut the door and held it while Shelton struck and kicked Mrs. Rehbach and prevented her husband from coming to assist her.

Husband to the Rescue.

When Rehbach finally pulled open the door and got outside, the bartender ran, and Rehbach pulled Shelton off of his wife, who had fallen to the floor and was being beaten by Shelton. In a hand-to-hand struggle between Shelton and Rehbach, Shelton was getting decidedly the worst of it when neighbors separated them, Rehbach is a much smaller man than Shelton. Palmer, the bartender, weighs probably 230 pounds.

The trouble was caused by Mrs. Rehbach complaining about men passing through her rooms on Sundays in an effort to get to the rear door of the saloon and buy drinks. She says that last Sunday one of the Rd lifters became intoxicated and lost his way in her rooms while trying to get out, and she found him asleep in a rocking chair in her parlor. She complained to the authorities about what she called a nuisance, and Monday at 2 p. m., when Shelton called her out, he asked her if she had made the complaint to the authorities. When she said she had, Shelton is said to have struck her, knocked her down and then beat her into insensibility.

After Rehbach and Shelton had been separated, Mrs. Rehbach was carried into her home and Dr. State called. She was unconscious for some time after the assault.

As soon as Shelton had washed the blood from his face and hands he went to Justice Brady's office and told the Judge that the latter had let a scrap with a woman and slapped her in the face." He said he wanted to pay a fine for assault and battery before she had him arrested.

Confession Thwarted Prosecution.

Justice Brady drew up the complaint charging him with assault by slapping the woman in the face with his open hand, and accepted $4.85 in payment of the costs and settlement of the case. Under the Illinois law, a person cannot be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense, and the payment of a fine on a charge is a bar to another fine for that offense.

Shortly afterward Rehbach went before Justice McKane and charged Shelton with assault to do bodily harm, and a warrant was issued, and a prosecution will be made on that charge.

When Shelton was arrested and taken to the Police Station he was very indignant and refused to give a bond on the second charge, saying that he had paid his fine for beating the woman, which he said settled the case. When the police started to lock him up he changed his mind and arranged for a bond and will appear for trial.

Shelton could not be seen Tuesday to give a statement of his side of the affair, and the saloon was in charge of Bartender Palmer. The bartender was very reticent in giving information, and said he did not know exactly where his employer lived, but that it was "way out on State street," and said "he wasn't home anyway." When Palmer was asked if he had held the door to prevent Rehbach from coming to his wife's assistance, he said:

"Now, why should I be standing out there holding the door? I was 'tending to my business.'" When told that Mrs. Rehbach was said to be in a serious condition Palmer remarked, "Well, she ought to have her neck broke." When asked why that should happen, he muttered something about persons minding their own business, and said he did not see anybody selling beer there Sunday.

Southeast Business.

St. Louis' recent looks toward the iron and coal sections of the Southeast were directed there by the lines of railroad terminating in St. Louis—Southern, L. & N. and Frisco—which penetrate that section. That the coal and iron business in that section, around Chattanooga and Birmingham, is in the most flourishing condition is evidenced by the last report of earnings of Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific, which takes a vast volume of the tonnage of iron, steel and coal out of Birmingham, Chattanooga and other iron and coal centers in Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia. General Manager Garrett's report is for the fourth week of August, showing earnings of $258,553, an increase of $14,975. For the month of August the earnings were $709,796, an increase of $44,389.

LOCAL STOCKS FIRM, HIGHER

Stocks and Bonds of United Railways Have Advance on Sales.

BANK LIST IS QUIET

Chicago Railway Equipment Shares the Feature on Sales at Big Advance.

The opening of the local stock market was firm, active and at an advance for several stocks in the miscellaneous list.

The recovery and marked activity of the day in United Railway bonds and stocks was noted and the final advance in the sale prices of Bank of Commerce shares was the only feature in the bank list.

One of the local commission houses has developed a strong interest in the stock of Chicago Railway Equipment and the stock had a good advance in the considerable trading in large blocks.

The stocks of National Candy Co. and Kansas City Home Telephone Co. were firm and in active demand.

BELLEVILLE TAKES THE 7-MILE STRIP

East St. Louis Cemeteries Now Inside Limits of Rival Town.

As a result of the annexation of a seven-mile strip of new territory to Belleville, the East St. Louis cemeteries are now a part of Belleville and East St. Louisans must go to Belleville to get burial permits.

The City Council of Belleville Monday night ratified the action of the voters in an election upon the annexation proposition July 31st. The vote being almost unanimous. The new territory is about seven miles long and 3000 feet wide on the west side of Belleville, following the course of the Rock road to Edgemont.

Edgemont, a suburb of East St. Louis, is divided by the passage of the new ordinance and several saloons in the village are placed near the Belleville limits where licenses cannot be obtained.

Two cemeteries, Mount Carmel and Mount Hope, where East St. Louis persons have buried their dead, are now in the Belleville city limits.

The passage of the ordinance Monday night followed an agreement between the City Council and the East St. Louis & Suburban Railroad whereby the railroad, which runs in the annexed strip, agrees to carry passengers from Belleville to Edgemont and vice versa for 5 cents fare for one year after Jan. 1. The railroad also will not prosecute its suit for a permanent injunction to restrain Belleville from enforcing the new territory. The injunction was sought because the aim of the annexation scheme was to put the trolley line inside Belleville all the way to Edgemont and thus force a five-cent instead of a ten-cent fare.

As a result of the annexation the St. Clair Country Club is now about the geographical center of Belleville.

The Belleville authorities promise fire and police protection to the new territory and say that electric lights will be installed as rapidly as possible.

The Belleville Council adopted an ordinance Monday night granting a franchise to the Southern Illinois Traction Co. for the use of certain streets upon which to construct its tracks for an electric line from East St. Louis to Belleville. The company has deposited a forfeit of $2500 with the city clerk that the road will be completed within a year.

SNAKE HAD APPENDICITI

Surgical Operation Fails to Save Serpent's Life.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—First of his kind to go under the knife for such an operation, Pete, a big rattlesnake in the snake house in the Zoological Garden in Bronx Park, had his appendix removed, but died. The operation was performed by Dr. C. William Beebe and Raymond L. Ditmar, one of the curators at the Zoo.

Pete, in all the glory of his eight-foot body, had been a favorite of visitors at the snake house since he was taken there, four years ago, from Florida. He was also a pet of the keepers.

No snake in the cage enjoyed imprisonment as Pete did, and he seemed to thrive under the conditions in the snake house. Two weeks ago there came a sudden change in his actions. He was no longer the happy Pete, and visitors began to comment on this. Then the attendants noted his condition. When they put food in front of him he refused to pay any attention to it. The fattest of rarebits were pushed into the cage, but he refused to do anything more than lie and wink at them.

Noticing a curve in the snake's back, extending from the head about three-quarters of the length of the body, an attendant touched the reptile with a stick. Pete wriggled away, showing that it was a very tender place and for the rest of the day refused to allow any one to come near him.

After a consultation it was decided that he should be operated on. An anesthetic was applied, and Dr. Beebe opened the reptile's back. He then saw that the appendix was swollen and inflamed. The cause of Pete's suffering was now evident, he had appendicitis, and, moreover, it was the first case of the kind on record.

When the appendix was opened a large piece of rabbit's fur was found. Pete came out of his stupor after his back had been sewed up, and it was announced that the operation had been successful, but Pete died yesterday.

STOCKS OPEN ACTIVE, HIGHER

Most Standard Rail Issues Advance—Missouri Pacific 99 1-2 Opening.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—On the opening of the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday the first quotations showed a slight advance over the closing prices of Monday for nearly all of the standard rail issues.

On the reported control of Baltimore & Ohio and Reading by Harriman in the interest of Union Pacific, the stock of B. & O. was only slightly stronger at the London opening and in this exchange the price at Tuesday's opening is 124, against 123⅝, the close of Monday. Reading was stronger, however, opening 152¼, against 150⅝, the close of Monday.

The Harriman Pacifics both advanced fractionally on the opening and Missouri Pacific is quoted ⅝ lower.

St. Paul opened ½ higher at 178½ and Canadian Pacific opened at close of Monday 125, opened very strong, but declined Monday and on heavy selling at once advanced a point 40¾.

Rock Island was also very active and ½ higher at the opening of 28⅝.

In the industrials U. S. Steel opened ¼ higher at 46⅝c and Amalgamated Copper ⅝ higher at 115¾. The other industrials were fractionally better on an active market.

Toward noon the announcement was made on the floor from Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, that the report of the sale of B. & O. and Reading control to Harriman is premature; that the negotiations while under way are not sufficiently close to completion to announce a deal. The stocks of the two roads were active in the market during the forenoon, but did not sell out of line.

The sales to noon were 672,400 shares, evidence of a return of the market to its normal activity of over a million shares for the day.

Figures (unofficial) on the value of the securities involved in the Harriman B. & O. deal are said to exceed $250,000,000. The deal will give Harriman and his Pacific system a fine transcontinental if control is exerted over Chicago & Alton between Kansas City and St. Louis to connect with Baltimore & Ohio there.

LIVESTOCK MARKETS.

CATTLE—Receipts, 9500, embracing about 7000 natives and 2500 Southern cattle and included a good representation of all kinds. Estimated receipts of native cattle made the market's run in the history of the yards. Native Steers sold steadily, but the general market was a shade lower. The Southern supply sold steady with yesterday's close, brought 10c lower than morning trade.

BELLEVILLE LID IS ASKED.

Council, However, Tables Petition Which Women Sign.

At a meeting of the Belleville City Council Monday a petition was presented asking that the Illinois laws relative to the closing of saloons on Sunday be enforced. The petition was signed by 584 persons, half of them women.

The committee, after reading the paper, tabled it. The first part of the petition was a copy of the Illinois statutes relative to the closing of saloons. The closing law is an old one, but, the petition says, has never been sufficiently enforced.

Motorman in Derailment Dead.

James S. Davis of 903 Bremen avenue, motorman on the Broadway car that jumped the track Sept. 4 died of his injuries at St. John's Hospital Monday. When the car left the rails it crashed into a building at 4833 North Broadway, and Davis was thrown to the pavement. His skull was fractured and his foot crushed.

St. Louis has more Post-Dispatch readers every day than it has homes.

12 RUSSIANS, 19 JAPS ARE SLAIN

Oriental Poachers Clash With Officers Who Seized Vessels Off Kamchatkan Coast.

FORTS FIRE UPON BOATS

Vladivostok Turns Guns on Enemies Sketching the Fortifications and Sounding.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 18.—Advices were received from Japan today of a fatal affray between Japanese poachers and Russians off the Kamchatkan coast, which resulted in the killing of a Russian officer and 19 men and the killing of a dozen Japanese, including Lieut. Odake and a Japanese captain of a fishing vessel.

Six fishing vessels from Nigata, Sakata and Hakodate, Japan, were fishing, when a party of Russians seized the vessels on the charge of poaching.

Suseki, an interpreter, drew a sword and killed a Russian sub-lieutenant. A melee ensued and 19 other Russians and about a dozen Japanese were killed before the Japanese got their vessels away.

Another report tells of the firing on the Japanese fishing boats by the forts of Vladivostok.

The Russian journal at Vladivostok says the action was due to the fact that the Japanese were sketching fortifications and sounding.

Talks on Teeth

By B. I. REX, M. D., D. D. S.

The Trend of the Teeth

To successfuliy circumvent anything you must move a little quicker than it moves. The trend of the teeth is towards dissolution; and it is a very rapid process. Once it gets a good start it has much the advantage of YOUR best efforts, unless you invoke the aid of Dentistry that is vastly more skillful than the trend is active.

There is no dentistry that is alert enough to make impossible future annoyance by troublesome teeth save Dr. Rex's. This is because the doctor has gone into the tooth-study a bit deeper than anybody else.

Let us suppose that your teeth are many of them, missing. You have lost them. You have been advised to have them extracted and have been told that there is nothing for you but a plate of teeth—about the most abominable thing you can put in your mouth. Unsightly for that matter if one could see one's self as others see them.

Now, you don't need to have a plate in your mouth to have new teeth. That is one of the secrets Dr. Rex wrung out of the human teeth science. New teeth and no plate! The doctor calls his method the Alveolar Process. It is a full supply of perfectly natural teeth, firm, sturdy, life-like, serviceable, good-as-they-ever-were for all practical purposes. No whole plate, no partial plate, no vestige of a plate at all!

Now, this is the biggest stride that has ever been made in dentistry! On the face of it it looks incredible. Lots of practicing dentists will tell you it is IMPOSSIBLE! But, really, as a matter of fact, it is so possible, so practical, so credible, so absolutely certain and proven that when Dr. Rex demonstrated his Alveolar Process before the dental faculty they said "yes" because there was nothing else to be said.

But Dr. Rex goes still further. If you have loose teeth he will make them as tight as they ever were AND SAVE THEM! He will restore them to their fixedness as if they were never loose.

You can form some idea what this all means when we tell you that people come from all over the country to have this work done; come because their friends have been treated and send them.

If you are teeth-worried ever so little, call on Dr. Rex. He invites you to call for consultation and examination, for which there is no charge. Dr. Rex has published a book entitled Alveolar Dentistry. It is worth reading by anybody; but to one who is in need of teeth it is invaluable.

If you cannot come to the office send for this book, which will be mailed free to you. The reading of this book has brought patients from the four corners of this continent.

EVANS SAYS HAWES BETTER STAY HERE

Speeches Would Be More Effective in St. Louis, Chairman Declares.

PLANS TO STUMP STATE

Gov. Folk Will Also Speak in Behalf of Ticket, It Is Announced.

A frost settled on the headquarters of the Democratic State Committee Tuesday when announcement was made that Harry B. Hawes had decided to make a campaign speech in every congressional district of Missouri.

Shivering from the unexpected chill created by this announcement, Chairman Evans held a hurried and earnest conversation of an hour with Secretary Napier, who hails from ex-Gov. Dockery's bailiwick in Northwest Missouri.

Both Chairman Evans and Secretary Napier are pronounced supporters of Gov. Folk. They attribute much of the hostility to the Governor shown by many Democrats to Hawes and his associates.

The fact that Hawes, who opposed Folk's nomination in 1904, is going to take the stump, is interpreted by some Folk supporters as a signal of war.

Judge Evans rubbed his numbed fingers together when asked if the State Committee would assign speaking dates for Mr. Hawes. Then his face lit up with a smile.

"I am not making speaking dates for congressional districts," said Judge Evans.

Better Stay in City.

"I suppose Mr. Hawes has invitations to speak in many parts of the State, and doubtless will accept them, independent of any arrangements we may make.

"At the same time it is my judgment that Mr. Hawes can make more votes for the Democratic ticket by speaking in St. Louis."

Judge Evans' face was serious when he uttered the last sentence, but there was a trace of sarcasm in his voice.

The action of the "old guard" in monopolizing the Bryan reception arrangements here has not been forgotten by the Folk men.

Hawes made an army of friends, politicians say, while stumping the State in quest of the Democratic nomination for Governor, even if they did forget to vote for him on primary day.

As Hawes is out of "practical politics" in St. Louis, according to the announcement he made at the Jefferson Club recently, he has concluded not to mix up in the city campaign. In the State, his friends figure, he will be regarded more in the light of a statesman if he talks about the tariff, Bryan's public ownership plan and other national subjects.

Says He's Been Asked.

"I expect to speak in all of the congressional districts," said Mr. Hawes Tuesday to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

"I have promised to make these addresses in response to requests throughout the State. It will not be possible for me to accept all the invitations to speak, but I hope to make at least one speech in each of the 16 congressional districts."

Secretary McCoy of the Republican State Committee remarked that he hoped Gov. Folk would take the stump as an offset to Mr. Hawes.

"I don't know of any two things on which Harry and the Governor agree, but I know they would make things interesting and instructive in a joint debate. Just let them talk on anything, and I will guarantee a great many new votes for the Republican ticket."

Gov. Folk is billed to deliver a number of addresses in the campaign.

SONNENFELD'S DISPLAY.

Store Is Stocked With Attractive Garments From the Old World.

The three floors of Sonnenfeld's, Broadway and Washington avenue, have been turned into a small wonderland, as a direct result of a four months' European trip this summer by the company's buyer and manager. The store has been stocked with garments from Paris, Berlin, Vienna and London and a beautiful assortment of capes, mantles, hats, suits and furs make up an exquisite creation bought direct from the workshops of the most famous and noted makers in the world.

Sonnenfeld's have taken special pains in the dressing of their show windows and a mere glance will suffice to prove their elaborateness. Not only are the furnishings and trimmings very beautiful, but handsome gowns and hats ornamenting figures also have been used.

Besides the imported goods, the company has a complete stock of tailor-made suits of domestic make and many of which embody foreign ideas. These range from $15 to $75.

The children's department shows a great variety of styles and makes. Also the novelty goods, especially the jet ornaments, pocketbooks, belts and jewelry, show that they have been selected from the latest stock of the old world. The imported gowns are made by such firms as D. Slovici and H. Sinmoyes, Jules Pilet of Paris, Victor Druilhe of Paris and other noted fashion firms of Worth, Paquin and Frances.

A very pretty garment is made of the new automobile shade of red, with a blouse and pedlem, light blue military colored collar and hand-embroidered and a fancy leather belt. The skirt is of the very latest pattern and tunic style.

Another handsome garment is the red, borated, velvet mantle, trimmed all over with real sealskin trimmings, and lined throughout with very handsome borated satin in very effective style. This mantle is 56 inches long, with a very full empire back.

Finds Dead Man's Daughter.

Through the efforts of Mrs. C. A. Brayhon of 2963A Franklin avenue, the body of Louis Joachim, killed last week by a street car, is saved from potter's field. Mrs. Brayhon, with whom Joachim boarded, has been untiring in her search for the dead man's relatives, and was successful Monday, when word was received from the Postmaster of Jersey City that the man's relatives would receive the body. The only daughter of Joachim lives in New Jersey. Joachim died of a fractured skull. He was knocked down by a car while crossing the street.

William C. Bleakney Dead.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—William Cassidy Bleakney, 42 years old, for many years a resident of St. Louis, died in the German Hospital in Brooklyn Monday of tuberculosis of the bones. Mr. Bleakney was a son of the late W. C. Bleakney, engineer during the Civil War of the gunboat Benton on her sensational run past Vicksburg. The younger Mr. Bleakney had been connected with the wholesale hat house of Goss, Shelton & Co., and later with Huenicke Bros. In 1893 he severed his connection with the latter house and came to New York, where he joined the firm of R. E. Bonar & Co. of Broadway. In the reorganization of that firm as the Miller-Allan Hat Co., Mr. Bleakney went with the new firm, where he was at the time of his death. He was buried here today at Mount Hope Cemetery.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. SUFFERERS SHOULD INVESTIGATE MY TREATMENT, METHODS, ETC. IT WILL PAY THEM AND ME.

Indisputable Evidence Vouched for by Hundreds of Former Patients.

I present for the benefit of those who are afflicted with piles, fissure, fistula, and other rectal troubles, the names, in fac-simile, of a few of my hundreds and hundreds of cured patients who live here in the city. I present the names in this manner so that there may be no doubt in the reader's mind as to their genuineness, and for the further purpose of enabling all who are afflicted to make a most thorough investigation of my work by writing to one or all of the parties, and learning directly from them what I did for them. If you don't care to write, go and see them personally; if you will investigate in this manner you will know beyond a doubt whether or not you want to put your case in my hands. It is important to you to know before you are doing, and it is equally as important to me that you should know before you come to me, that I am the Doctor you want to treat you.

I do not want to appear as egotistical, but I say without fear of contradiction that I have cured more St. Louis people of various rectal troubles than many other physicians in the city combined.

Experience Counts!

My extensive practice brings under my observation almost every day the widest possible ranges of the diseases I make my specialty, and I have under treatment all the time cases in various conditions and stages of affliction, thus giving me experience in my line far greater than would be possible if I were treating the sick in general practice.

Does it not seem reasonable to you that a physician who devotes his entire time to treatment and cure of one special class of diseases should become more proficient in that class than if he devoted his time and thought to the whole list of ills?

It is so, and this is why I excel in the treatment of rectal and female diseases. This is why I am able to present such strong evidence to the afflicted. This is why I can send them to my former patients. You know beyond any doubt that the parties whose names and letters I publish from time to time would not permit it unless what I say and what they say is true and trustworthy. They are well-known tradesmen, business and professional men, and will gladly tell you what I did for them. What I did for them I can do for you.
